BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind,
and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books,
from the invention of printing to the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints
and Arundel Prints are included.
The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best,
bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most-easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication
which gives the entire catalogue
of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

THE MEDICI SOCIETY

takes pleasure in quoting this passage from a letter received on August 16, 1915, from Messrs.——, Booksellers, of Auckland, New Zealand:—

"The workmanship in the samples sent is excellent and reflects great credit on those in England who have turned out such artistic work. It is only another proof that given a fair opportunity the British Workman can produce as fine an article as any German or Austrian."

It is not the War which has given this "opportunity" to the home workman, but the fact that while The Medici Society has asked a fair price for its publications, it has also, and always, paid a fair price to its Printers.

The Society has, also, never employed a foreign Printer when an English Printer was able to give it like quality, even though at a somewhat higher price than his foreign rival.

English Booksellers, seeking lines of quality unrivalled by any others of equal price, will find that the following are steady and sterling sellers.

DENMARK & THE DANES

This book contains a sympathetic account of recent social, economic and political movements in Denmark, and a description of the origin and development particularly of institutions peculiar to that country. During the last fifty years the Danish peasantry have been liberated from virtual serfdom, and their condition improved from the verge of bankruptcy to a position of economic security. The land-system has been reorganised; education has been liberalised; finance and agriculture have been raised to a pitch of excellence which commands the admiration of Europe. "Denmark and the Danes" is an important account—written by men who know their subject—of the principal features of this significant re-birth of an ancient and historic power, akin to our own in blood and speech and sympathies.

"A New Profession for Women"

Bookselling

In a particularly interesting number of the Atlantic Monthly, for September, there is a long article by Earl Barnes, entitled "A New Profession for Women," in which the writer suggests that there is a great opening for women as publishers and booksellers—an immense opening. It seems that Vassar and all the other very numerous colleges for women in the United States are turning out sweet girl graduates at an embarrassing rate. The problem is to find work for these more or less well-educated young women, who, in ante-Vassar days, would have done the work their mothers and grandmothers did. In this country there is much the same difficulty. There are more women than men; young men find the competition of the young women in work which was formerly all done by male workers so serious that they are unable to marry and keep a wife and have a family.

Earl Barnes—it is curious how many American Republican and Democratic mothers make earls of their sons—begins his twenty-column article by the assertion that "The book trade in the United States is in a bad way." He does not adduce much in proof of this—except that our present Ambassador to England, Mr. Walter H. Page, has had a long and successful experience as editor and publisher, and he says that "American men spend more for neckties and our women spend more for buttons than either of them spends for books." Mr. Page's grammar does not seem to be quite like Cæsar's wife. Mr. Barnes appears to be much impressed by this and other discoveries, e.g., that "Reputable publishers have been driven to send out canvassers, selling special editions from house to house, and even offering premiums to buyers"—but, in spite of this, which to everybody's knowledge American publishers have been doing for half-a-century, "it is a matter of public gossip that some of our largest book producers are passing dividends, or are in actual financial difficulties."

It is cold consolation for our book trade to hear these stories of the bad state of the book trade in America; but we must remember Earl Barnes has got to make out a bad case before he can apply his remedy. His argument appears to amount to this: Male American publishers and booksellers have, in a great measure, failed to give the American public the books they really want to buy—in spite of what the American Ambassador says as to their preference for neckties and buttons—so he propose, to let loose some thousands of charming young, well-educated women, to make their American fathers and mothers and other relations buy the books they don't want to buy. They are to look upon bookselling and book publishing as a career open to them from bottom to top. They are to open establishments for the sale of books—partly on cash subscribed by their families. Brilliant Vassar graduates are to be backed by their fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers, cousins, uncles and aunts, with sufficient capital to furnish a book-store. (The Americans seem not to use the word "shop" quite in the way we do.) Then the publishers, perhaps 1,000 miles away, are to supply the young lady with a stock of their books on sale or return. It is curious how many amateur American critics of the book trade are discovering the "On sale or return" delusion to be the panacea for book trade ills. Supposing Earl Barnes starts as a publisher in New York, and Miss Jones in her new book store 1,000 miles away orders 100 lbs. weight of books on sale or return, who is to pay the carriage and the re-binding of the soiled copies which have travelled 2,000 miles? When we can send books by wireless, there may be less objection to the on sale system.

Earl Barnes tells us that there are "about 70,000 women who are undergraduate students in American institutions of higher learning"—in addition to numberless other educated women. "Agriculture and stock-raising will appeal to a limited number, and meanwhile the callings of teacher, librarian and social worker are already over-supplied. What are educated young women going to do?" He answers his own question by saying:

"Why may they not establish book stores in their own cities and towns in all parts of the country? Such stores would meet the need for a calling, and should yield a fair income. The wares are familiar to these women, who have at least a cultivated interest in them."

In addition to the books on sale or return, "Periodicals, music, photographs and other art products could be added to the stock, and the desire for social service could be met by making the store a centre where people could meet and have afternoon tea, where they could examine books and periodicals while waiting, and where public opinion could be formed. The store might also sell tickets for concerts and lectures, and the right woman could exercise a large influence in directing the public taste in these matters."

The book trade reader, British or American, who follows Earl Barnes must surely think he has been pulling the Atlantic's leg. Here is what these 70,000 modern combinations of Venus and Minerva would "have to know."

"The young woman would have to know something about books as an industrial product, their paper, print and binding. She would be acquainted with the great publishing centres, organisations of publishers and booksellers, and the present machinery for book distribution. Catalogues and trade lists should be familiar tools to her. She should also know something of the lore of the bibliopole concerning old editions, fine bindings, rare copies, and the like. It would be even more important for her to know the psychology of book-buyers and the art of selling; and she must be prepared to make" (we thought Earl Barnes was going to say "losses") "she must be prepared to make an intensive study of the mental and social conditions of her community. Added to this she must know something of bookkeeping, banking, and general business usages."

We have the greatest possible respect for the better half of humanity—in many ways much the better half—but where does man come in? In the good old days it was the office boy who rose to fame and married his rich employer's only daughter; it looks as though in the future the fair, fat and forty rich employer's only chance of marrying will be the office boy. Earl Barnes admits that the hard-worked, in a bad way, male booksellers and their assistants will not altogether welcome with open arms these 70,000 virgins, but he gaily disposes of them and their objections as follows:—

"Possibly booksellers do not want women competing in their business. If so, this would make the conquest of the field more difficult; but as in the case of teachers, librarians, and social workers, the women would win if they could offer superior preparation, numbers, and consequent willingness to work for less money."

No sir! Your Ambassador hit the dead fly in the ointment, which spoiled your whole potful. The average man and woman won't buy books because other things—not merely neckties and buttons—interest them more; and with pretty good opportunities of judging the literature of the day, we don't altogether blame them.

Take, as an instance of what the ordinary man and woman is expected to be interested in as the magnificent work of a new great American poet, the following specimen:—

Something there is that doesn't love a wall,
That sends the frozen ground swell under it,
An' spills the upper boulders in the sun;
And makes gaps even two can pass abreast.
The work of hunters is another thing;
I have come after them and made repair
Where they have not left one stone on stone,
But they would have the rabbit out of hiding
To please the yelping dogs.

We are asked to note that this commonplace communication is "stamped with the magic of style, of a style that obeys its own laws of grace, beauty and inner harmony." Then we are requested to "note the clarity of the images. How delicately the unobtrusive opening suggests the countryman's contemplative pleasure in his fields and woods. . . . Had Wordsworth written these lines I think they must have stood in every English anthology."

A visitor arrives late at a one-horse town out West, where there is only one hotel, and we are asked to accept the following as the hall mark of the "genuine poet":—

"No room" the night clerk said, "unless

Unless you wouldn't mind Sharing a room with someone else."

"A man."

"So I should hope. What kind of man?"
"I know him; he's all right. A man's a man.
Separate beds, of course, you understand."

This is also to show the new poet's subtle humour. What is the use of asking the New Woman to open new book stores in order to sell such new poetry as this?

Notes and Announcements

A NEW novel by Mr. F. Anstey, entitled "In Brief Authority," will be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. on the 23rd inst. It relates the strange adventures in fairy-land of the Wibberley-Stimpsons, a family living in a highly select locality within half-an-hour's railway journey from London. Owing to a mistake Mr. and Mrs. Wibberley-Stimpson are crowned joint sovereigns of the fairy-land; but their reign, as the title implies, is not a long one and the difficulties and embarrassments they meet with and the causes which lead to their ultimate downfall are fully described in the course of the story.

A new long novel by Mr. H. G. Wells will be published on September 21st by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. under the title of "The Research Magnificent." It is the story of an idealist who had an incurable, an almost innate persuasion that he had to live life nobly and thoroughly. He blundered, he failed himself, he had astonishing rebuffs, but they never turned him aside for long. He went by nature for this idea of nobility as a linnet hatched in a cage will try to fly. It need hardly be said that here is a theme after Mr. Wells' own heart; and in tracing the development of the hero from boyhood to his untimely death the author introduces the reader to people and scenes of vivid interest.

The Teacher's World of September 15th contains a very interesting illustrated notice of the Diamond Jubilee of the Daily Telegraph, which it refers to as "the greatest force in modern journalism." There are portraits of Colonel the Hon. Harry Lawson, M.P.; of Lord Burnham, K.C.V.O.; and of Mr. John M. Le Sage, who, for so many years, has been the chief operator of the Telegraph. There are other good illustrations, and no one should miss this account of the great paper.

Mr. Ian Malcolm, M.P., has been serving in the British Red Cross since the outbreak of the War and has seen many things and many men in a very interesting light. He gives an account of his experiences in "War Pictures Behind the Lines," which will be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co., with illustrations from photographs and original documents, on the 23rd of this month.

In "The French in the Heart of America," Mr. John Finlay, Commissioner of Education in the State of New York, tells the romantic story of those romantic scouts of civilization—La Salle-Marquette Joliet and others—who penetrated the Canadian wilderness, founded Quebec and Montreal, and explored the dark Saguenay; and of their followers and descendants. The book is an epic of exploration and at the same time a picture of the United States of to-day. It will be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. on the 23rd inst.

Mr. Hugh Walpole, the author of "Fortitude" and "The Duchess of Wrexhe," who is at present serving with the Russian Red Cross, has a new novel, entitled "The Golden Scarecrow," coming out immediately with Messrs. Cassell.

The original "Moore's Almanac," 1916 edition, which is now in its 219th year, will be published by Messrs. Cassell, on the 23rd inst., in a revised and vastly improved edition, containing much useful new advice for smallholders and farmers, legal notes, medical hints, &c. "Francis Moore" claims that in his last edition he predicted the loss of the Lusitania, the American lake boat disaster, the sinking of the Majestic, the great troop train smash, the Irish mail train accident, the formation of a Coalition Government, and many other events in various departments of life.

A new and revised edition of "An Irish Utopia," by John H. Edge, of His Majesty's Counsel and Ex-Legal Assistant Land Commissioner, is announced for immediate publication by Messrs. Cassell. The book is one which, in the guise of fiction, deals with Irish life about eighty years ago, and suggests a possibility of establishing in Ireland a kind of religious Utopia.

The Society of SS. Peter and Paul announce three almanacks, designed by Martin Travers and printed in two colours. They are entitled the "Canterbury Almanack," "York Kalendar" and "Lambeth Diary," respectively. All can be localised; while special editions will be prepared to suit societies, guilds, &c., if early application be made. The Society also announce three series of specially designed Christmas cards, and booksellers should send for specimens of both almanacks and cards.

Collectors of works on Freemasonry, early printing, old medical works and Americana will find interesting items in No. 21 Catalogue of Mr. J. M. Morton, 1, Duke Street, Brighton.

To their neat shilling net novels Messrs. Methuen have added that fascinating story of the sea by W. Clark Russell entitled, "My Danish Sweetheart." We often wished, and expressed the wish to Mr. Clark Russell, that he would write a sea novel in which a British cruiser or battleship and the deeds of her captain and crew should be, as it were, the mainstay of the story, but he always declined, saying the warship was out of his line; and yet one of the finest bits he ever wrote was his description of the memorable incident in the great storm at Apia Bay, Samoa, when only the British cruiser Calliope fought her way out to sea and safety, and the crews of the German, French and American warships cheered her as she slowly passed them, they drifting helpless to destruction.

Young officers evidently appreciate Messrs. Gale & Polden's "Guide to Official Letter Writing, Orders, &c.," by an Adjutant, as already the useful little work has appeared in a third and revised edition, in which obsolete forms of official letters, &c., have been replaced by those now in use. Everybody has a relative or friend who is an officer in our Army, who certainly would find it a great boon to have in handy form samples and examples of Official Letters (Commands, &c.), Regimental Correspondence, Précis Writing, Registration of Correspondence, Military Abbreviations in Common Use, Orders, Hints on Composition and Punctuation, Technical Terms in Use throughout the Army, Meaning of Military Terms not Generally Understood, Forms of Address and Business Abbreviations, and much other useful information.

Mr. John Lane published on the 10th inst. in his uniform English edition of the Works of Anatole France (demy octavo, 6s.), a translation by Winifred Stephens of M. France's famous book "Crainquebille," which contains many of his best-known stories. On the same date Mr. Lane published a new novel by Mrs. Horace Tremlett, author of "Curing Christopher," entitled "Looking for Grace." Mrs. Tremlett is one of the first authors since the War who has had the courage to write a really topical comedy of the present day. "Looking for Grace" is described as a most amusing story with a background of London life in war time.

Messrs. Methuen publish Mr. Anthony Hope's new novel "A Young Man's Year." It is the story of an eventful twelve months in the life of Arthur Lisle of the Middle Temple, Esquire, recounting his fortunes and ventures professional, speculative and romantic, and showing him at the end as much wiser as young men usually are for such experiences.

That the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert, legal and loyal wife of the Prince Regent, may have born him a child is indisputable. That she did so is the thesis in Mr. Ashton Hillier's new romance in "Demi-Royal," which Messrs. Methuen issued on the 9th. The fortunes of this child, legitimate, but un-royal, trepanned, lost, mourned as dead, repudiated, traced, acknowledged, are the author's theme.

A new novel, "The Furnace of Iron," by Andrew Firth, author of "The Toll of the River," was published on September 13th by Mr. Unwin. It is a story of Anglo-Egyptian life and tells of a young English girl who marries an Egyptian student and soon finds out her husband's people do not attach any binding importance to the marriage.

On September 13th Mr. Unwin published a volume entitled "The Birth-Time of the World," by Dr. J. Joly, F.R.S., Professor of Geology at Dublin. It contains twelve essays and addresses written within recent years. The subjects are dealt with in a manner to be understood by general readers possessing elementary scientific education.

A new impression, the sixth, of Mr. Sidney Low's important book on the English political system, "The Governance of England" was published on September 13th by Mr. Unwin. A second impression of Mr. Joseph McCabe's "The Soul of Europe: a Character Study of the Militant Nations," was ready on the same day.

The Athenæum is issuing, as a supplement, "at the request of the Council of the Library Association," "A Subject Index to Periodicals." No. 3 list for September 11th, 1915, deals with "Education and Child Welfare, Jan. to Sept., 1915." It is unnecessary to insist on the value of an index to articles in periodicals, although it is a mistake to suppose that much of what is really valuable in periodical literature is lost; it is a case of the survival of the fittest.

In a warmly appreciative letter to the author of "The Audacious War," recently published by Messrs. Constable, Dr. E. J. Dillon writes: "You have rendered an inestimable service to our cause and every patriotic and thinking member of the Allied Powers has reason to be everlastingly grateful to you. I not only think that your book is the best that has been written since the War; I think it is the only one that puts the issues forcibly and convincingly."

Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons, Ltd., will shortly publish another "Anne" book from the pen of Miss L. M. Montgomery, completing the trilogy which began with "Anne of Green Gables," followed by "Anne of Avonlea." The first-named, "Anne of Green Gables," made a very remarkable success.

"Reflections on Violence," by Georges Sorel, a translation of which is to be published on the 20th inst. by Messrs. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd., may be said to be more than a book; as the classic of syndicalism it has become the centre round which a struggle has focused itself.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton inform us that they are looking forward to publishing a new "Pimpernel" book by the Baroness Orczy in the not too distant future.

According to The Times Mr. Frederick Relfe, 69, of Messrs. Relfe Bros., Ltd., school booksellers, Charterhouse Buildings, Goswell Road, left property of the gross value of nearly £30,000.

The chief articles in the forthcoming number of the Political Quarterly are:—"The National Will"; "The Monroe Doctrine: Its Past and Present Status," Professor Roger B. Merriman, Harvard University, U.S.A., "South African Politics"; "War and Supplies, in Reference to Wool," Professor D. Macgregor, the University of Leeds; "The Coal Question," John T. Stobbs; "The Increase of Production in Agriculture," C. S. Orwin, Director of the Institute for Research in Agricultural Economics, Oxford.

Messrs. Jarrold & Sons are shortly publishing Mr. Douglas Newton's account of the work of the British Expeditionary Force on the Continent during the first phase of the operations on the Western Front, from August 23rd to November 15th, 1914. The book is published under the title of "The Undying Story," and contains a preface by Mr. T. P. O'Connor.

Mr. John Lane publishes this week "The Marionettes Calendar," for which Professor Stephen Leacock has written the verses to drawings by Miss A. H. Fish. Also a second series of Miss Winifred Stephens' "French Novelists of To-day." Illustrated.

Messrs. J. W. Arrowsmith, Ltd., will publish about the end of this month, at 1s. net, "Glorious Russia: Its Life, People and Destiny," by E. A. Brayley Hodgetts.

Mr. Francis E. Murray, of 30, Rivercourt Road, London, W., will issue before Christmas "The Romance of a Choir-Boy," by John Gambril Nicholson. Privately printed. Mr. Murray will send prospectus on application being made for it.

T. C. & E. C. JACK, 67, Long Acre, London, W.C.; and Edinburgh; and all Booksellers

Mr. Walter Rye, of Lammas, Norfolk, the well-known Norfolk antiquary, has in the press a new work entitled "Chaucer: A Norfolk Man," which he will publish by subscription at 7s. 6d., the edition being limited to 150 copies. More than thirty years ago Mr. Rye held the belief that Geoffrey Chaucer was born or bred at Lynn, and his continuous researches have strengthened his view. From the mass of material which he has accumulated he brings forward evidence in support of his contention, gives numerous particulars regarding the Chaucer family and the many London and East Anglian people who were associated with it, and he includes an extensive Chaucer pedigree.

Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd., will issue shortly an enlarged and revised edition of "The Child: His Nature and Nurture," by W. B. Drummond, M.B., C.M., M.R.C.P.E.

It is somewhat rare to find a book on farming written by a man who is a farmer, a poet and a philosopher, but with "In Pastures Green," by Peter McArthur, which will shortly be published by Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons, we have one. It is an account of Mr. McArthur's life on a Canadian farm, told in a style that is instructive, illuminating and humorous. The book is specially intended for those who wish to learn something of the human side of farming and of country life.

Mr. Nelson Hood, who is Treasurer to Her Majesty the Queen, is to publish a volume through Messrs. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd., entitled "Sicilian Studies." There are probably few people who know more about Sicily than Mr. Nelson Hood, inasmuch as he holds the family estates in Sicily, with the title of Duke of Brontë, which was conferred on Lord Nelson by the King of Naples after the Battle of the Nile. The book is to be issued on the 20th inst.

Mr. George Agnew Chamberlain, the author of "Home," has written a new novel, called "Through Stained Glass," which Messrs. George Allen & Unwin publish this month. It is the story of a brilliant father with a richly coloured past, and he filters through himself—"stained glass," he says—the light of his own experiences for the benefit of his unsophisticated son.

The Book Trade and the War

CAPT. ROBERT G. LONGMAN is home from the Front, wounded; but we are glad to say he is going on favourably.

Many readers of the P.C. will hear with regret and with sympathy for Mr. Alexander Strahan and his family of the death of Mr. Strahan's son. Mr. Gibbings, of Gibbings & Co., writes:—

"DEAR MR. MARSTON,—You might like to notice that Mr. Alexander Strahan has suffered a cruel blow in the loss of his son Geoffrey, killed in action at the Dardanelles. He was a beloved son of many gifts, a brilliant artist with the hope of a successful career, now, alas! cut off in his youth.—Yours truly,

"WM. W. GIBBINGS."

News has just been received that Private Harry Bunce, one of Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co.'s young men, who enlisted in the 5th Wilts Regiment, has been killed in action at the Dardanelles on August 10th. The Directors regret the loss of a most promising young assistant, whose place they had kept open for him to return to at the close of the War.

Sir Clements R. Markham

SIR CLEMENTS ROBERT MARKHAM, explorer, traveller, archæologist, who introduced the cultivation of the quinine-yielding chinchona trees from Peru into British India, an act of incalculable value to the world at large, is now eighty-five years of age. For many years he held the presidency of the Royal Geographical Society. His life has been one of travel and adventure, beginning with the navy in 1844. He served in the Arctic expedition of 1850-51, and the following year left the navy. Then followed journeys of a scientific nature to Peru and Abyssinia, and in 1867 he became secretary in the India Office. Many volumes of travels, history, and of a general character came from his pen, including the masterly "The Incas of Peru."—The Argonaut.

Death of Mr. J. W. Harper

THE last member of an old publishing firm, John Wesley Harper, died at Biddeford Pool on August 14th, at the age of eighty-four. Had he lived a year and seven months longer he could have joined in celebrating the centennial of the House of Harper, to the second generation of which he belonged, being the son of John Harper of the original J. & J. Harper, established in March, 1817. Graduated from Columbia College in 1852, at the head of his class, he chose medicine as his profession, and went abroad to study and to discover that he had no vocation for the healing art; so he returned, entered the paternal business house, and became a member of the firm in 1869, with Philip J. A. Harper, Joseph W. Harper, Jun., Fletcher Harper, Jun., and Joseph Abner Harper. The style, "Harper & Brothers," had been adopted in 1833, and the business increased so rapidly that when the subject of this sketch assumed the presidency of the firm in 1897 there was said to be no publishing house equal to it in the extent of its dealings. With the reorganisation that was made necessary by financial embarrassments fifteen years ago, Mr. Harper retired from business; and though there still continue to be Harpers in sufficient number at the famous Franklin Square establishment, the older stock has lost its last representative. For a full and entertaining history of those earlier publishers the reader is referred to "The House of Harper," by Mr. J. Henry Harper, published a few years ago.—From the Chicago Dial.

The endowment of Libraries

Popular books printed on bad paper

PROCEEDINGS on September 1st in connection with the annual meeting of the Library Association at Caxton Hall, Westminster, opened with the reading of papers upon the "Report on Library Provision and Policy," by Professor W. G. S. Adams, Secretary to the Carnegie United Kingdom Trustees, 1915."

Mr. John Ballinger (Librarian, National Library of Wales) expressed appreciation of the large-hearted generosity of Mr. Carnegie in providing for the continuance of the assistance which he had given on so large a scale to the library movement in Great Britain. The endowment afforded the opportunity to bring the library movement into line with other great educational movements. Referring to the inferior quality of the paper now used in producing modern books, he remarked that the rapid wearing out of books printed on poor paper was an increasing charge not merely for the actual renewals, but also in administration expenses. Thirty years ago the best popular books were obtainable in a form that allowed them to be read by five or six times as many readers as the books issued to-day. He suggested that the Carnegie Trustees should take steps to fix a standard quality of library paper.

Mr. G. E. Riebeck stated that Mr. Carnegie's grants to libraries amounted to £1,708,404, and the total issue of books from Carnegie libraries in 1913-14 was 55½ millions.

A resolution was passed expressing agreement with the recent circular of the Local Government Board as to economies of municipal expenditure, but expressing the hope that nothing would be done to impair the efficiency and usefulness of public libraries. The resolution added that the necessity for maintaining libraries at their highest point of efficiency was never more important than now, when the public were anxious to have the fullest and most reliable information on subjects of vital consequence to the nation.

Mr. W. E. Doubleday urged the importance of our libraries retaining their efficiency in order to be able to provide young men with the best technical knowledge to fit them to fill the many vacancies which would be brought about by the war.

In the course of further discussion the opinion was generally expressed that libraries would be affected financially by the war, but that the outlook was hopeful, as in all probability the war would be followed by an intellectual revival.

A visit was subsequently paid to the Patent Office Library.—Morning Post, September 2nd.

48,000 volumes given in year for Harvard Library

WITH the opening of the Harry Elkins Widener Library building, the Harvard College Library announced gifts of books to the number of 48,000 during the past year. This includes the 3,000 volumes collected by Harry Elkins Widener and is the largest number added to the library in any one year of its history.

12,000 BOOKS ON FISH AND FISHING

The Hon. Daniel B. Fearing of Newport, R.I., has presented his collection of books, numbering over 12,000 volumes, on angling, fishes, fish-culture, fisheries and whaling. It is said to be the most complete library on these subjects ever brought together. Important in the collection are its Waltoniana. Of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler" there are some 160 editions, including two copies of the first edition (1653), two of the second (1655), three of the third (1661), three of the fourth (1668), and four of the fifth (1676). There are also a dozen or more editions made interesting by extra-illustrations, by binding, or by association. Besides several holograph documents of Walton, there is the original probate manuscript on vellum of his will. Writers on angling later than Walton are almost equally well represented. Of earlier works on angling or on fishes, there are many examples; among these are some 12 incunabula. The most important is a copy of Dame Juliana Berners's "Book of Saint Albans," printed by Wynkyn de Worde at Westminster in 1496.

"A Surgeon in Belgium."

Milk every morning from Aylesbury

WE are glad to see that Mr. Edward Arnold has brought out a popular edition at 2s. net in paper cover, and 2s. 6d. net in cloth, of one of the best books which the war has produced, viz.: "A Surgeon in Belgium," by H. S. Souttar, F.R.C.S., Assistant Surgeon, West London Hospital and late Surgeon-in-Chief, Belgian Field Hospital. It is a record of fine work described with that modesty which is nearly always a saving grace in any record by a British officer: many a poorly written account of a great undertaking has lived because one could read its greatness between the lines. In this book the modesty of the writer is an additional grace, for he writes well and vividly with an eye to points which will interest people at home. Here is an example (it was often, in fact nearly always, difficult to get supplies at such a place as Furnes devastated by war.):

"We had to get most of our provisions over from England, and our milk came every morning on the Government transport from Aylesbury. We used a considerable quantity of coal and on one occasion we were faced by the prospect of an early famine, for Furnes and Dunkirk were empty. But nothing was ever too great a strain for the resources of our housekeeper. She discovered that there was a coal heap at Ramsappelle, five miles away, and in a few hours an order had been obtained from the Juge d'Instruction empowering us to take the coal if we could get it, and the loan of a Government lorry had been coaxed out of the war lords. The only difficulty was that for the moment the Germans were shelling the place, and it was dangerous to go near even for coal; so the expedition had to be postponed until they had desisted. It seemed to me the most original method of filling one's coal cellar of which I had ever heard. And it was typical of a large number of our arrangements. There is something of the oriental about the Belgians and the French. If we wanted any special favour, the very last thing we thought of doing was to go and ask for it. It was not that they were not willing to give us what we asked for, but they did not understand that method of approach. What we did was to go to breakfast with the Juge, or to lunch with the Minister, or to invite the Colonel to dinner. In the course of conversation the subject would be brought up in some indirect way till the interest of the great man had been gained, then everything was easy. And surely there is something very attractive about a system where everything is done as an act of friendship; and not as the soulless reflex of some official magazine. It is easier to drink red wine than to eat red tape, and not nearly so wearing to one's digestion."

It is out of books like this—first-hand evidence of trustworthy and competent observers and actors in it—that eventually adequate and reliable histories of this war will be compiled; but, alas, it will be too late for so many, and in so many ways, when British news censorship is put on the scrap heap.

Cuirass of Books

Twelve volumes under man's waistcoat

As a sequel to a series of alleged systematic thefts, David Ayres, twenty-one, of Thorngrove Road, Upton Park, and George Smith, forty, of Peabody Buildings, Walworth, were charged at the Mansion House on September 4th with stealing twelve copies of "The Great War," ten copies of "The Times History of the War," and three copies of Blackwood's Magazine, the property of their employers, Wyman & Sons, St. Andrew's Hill. Samuel Brett, forty-five, bookseller, of Gray's Inn Road, was charged with receiving the property well knowing it to have been stolen.

Detective-Sergeant Hutton said, in company with Detective Dunning and other officers, he was keeping observation and saw Ayres and Smith leave Messrs. Wyman's premises and enter a coffee shop in Carter Lane. He followed them to Ludgate Hill Station, where Ayres handed twelve copies of "The Great War," which he had concealed beneath his waistcoat, to Smith. When told that they would be arrested and charged with theft, both men replied, "Yes, it is quite true." At Snow Hill Smith and Ayres made written confession, saying that these robberies of periodicals from their employers had been going on systematically, and implicating the prisoner Brett as the receiver of the stolen property.

Detective-Sergeant Hutton went on to say that the same night he went to St. Bride's Avenue, Fleet Street, where Brett occupied a shop, and told him that he would be arrested and charged with receiving stolen property. Asked whether he kept any books showing his business, Brett said: "No, my business is all cash." He then took some periodicals from the counter and said: "This is the business I have done to-day."

The officer found in a shop nearly a hundredweight of books, "The Invasion of England," and "Lloyd's Scouts Manual." Brett, referring to the parcel, said, "That has been left here, but I don't know by whom." At Snow Hill Brett was confronted with Smith and Ayres, and simply shook his head when he heard their statements read.

Detective - Inspector Collinson said Brett's premises had been under observation, and a number of employees of Messrs. Wyman had been seen to visit there daily.

All the men were remanded, bail being refused.

French War Publications

WE have received from Messrs. Bloud & Gay, 7, Place Saint Sulpice, Paris, the following publications: "Les Barbares à la Trouée des Vosges Récits des Témoins," by Louis Colin; with a Preface by M. Maurice Barrès, of the French Academy. This little volume contains many interesting illustrations from photographs, and vivid accounts of the tremendous fighting which has been going on for more than a year in all that more or less mountainous district of the south-eastern frontier of France, in the following Cantons Provençères, Fraize, Saint-Dié, Senones, Raon-L'Étape and Rambervilliers. The author begins by referring to the first great advance of the French into Alsace, which he evidently regards as a terrible military blunder. He wants to know "Pourquoi cette marche en avant? Pourquoi ce recul non moins rapide en arrière? Qui nous l'expliquera? D'où sont venus les ordres, &c., &c."

He regrets the loss of so much of the best blood of France which was "sacrifié pour rien." It appears that early advance of the French into Alsace was made not by an organized army of invasion but merely by the "troupes de couverture," troops covering the frontier, which, as the author says, ought to have been employed in making, and reserved for defending, trenches, redoubts and all the passes by which invaders might attempt to come. Ten thousand of France's finest soldiers were wasted uselessly. This book is a record of the subsequent equally heroic defence and stubborn attack by the Germans and of the barbarities committed by the latter in the invaded country. We have heard little but echoes of the terrible struggle in the Vosges—this book is the testimony of eye-witnesses; it is already in a 5th edition. Price 3 francs 50. An important war document and yet another condemnation of German brutality and contempt for all the laws of War, signed by them and forty-two other nations, on the 18th of October, 1907, at the Hague Convention.

"La Conversion d'un Catholique Germanophile: Lettre ouverte de M. Emile Prüm, chef du Parti Catholique Luxembourgeois, à M. Matthias Erberger, député au Reichstag, leader du Centre Catholique Allemand."—This remarkable work, published at 2 frs. by the Bibliothèque des Ouvrages Documentaires, 16, Rue Alphonse Daudet, Paris, has been seized and forbidden in Germany. As will be seen from the title it is an open letter from M. E. Prüm, chief of the Catholic party in Luxembourg to the leader of the German Catholic Centre in the Reichstag. Its importance will be seen from the fact that before the War, M. Prüm was almost as strongly anti-French as he was pro-German. Situated so advantageously for observing the course of events, this great representative of Catholicism against all his life-long convictions has been converted from being a convinced pro-German to anti-Germanism by German barbarities in Belgium and the sophistries of her religious leaders. In addition to his original open letter, which made such a sensation in the Catholic world on the Continent, this little work contains: "Accusations nouvelles de M. Prüm"; "L'Évolution pangermaniste de Centre," and "Catholique Allemand." It is one of the most remarkable works which the War has produced; we hope it will be translated into English and also widely read in all neutral countries as well as in those of the Allies.

THOR HAS RISEN.

Heinrich Heine's Prophecy.

"Christianity has in a certain degree softened this brutal warlike ardour of the Germans, but it has not been able to destroy it, and when the Cross, that talisman which keeps it enchained, is broken, then the ferocity of the ancient combatants will break forth anew. Then—and alas, this day will come—the old war Gods will arise from their mythical tombs and wipe the dust of centuries from their eyes, Thor will rise and with his gigantic hammer will demolish the Gothic Cathedrals."

HENRY HEINE

"The German War and Catholicism."

This volume of 316 pages is published in English—in good English—is well printed in Paris by M. Paul Dupont, and published by Messrs. Bloud & Gay, of Paris (7, Place Saint Sulpice), price 2 frs. In a brief Preface the Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Amette, says:—

"At this time, when France with the aid of noble and powerful Allies, is engaged in a formidable war, whilst her armies, with heroic courage and endurance, are maintaining the honour of her flag, all her sons must desire to defend the justice of her cause and her titles to the esteem of the civilised world, before the eyes of the nations not engaged in the struggle. It is this legitimate preoccupation which has inspired some of the most distinguished among the French Catholics with the purpose of the book." Here we have frankly told the object of this work, which is published under the direction of Mgr. Alfred Baudrillart, Rector of the Catholic Institute of Paris, under the distinguished patronage of the Catholic Committee of French Propaganda. Here are the titles of some of the chapters:—

"The Christian Laws of Warfare."

"German 'Culture' and Catholicism."

"The Catholic Rôle of France in the World."

"The War Against the Churches and the Priests."

"Religion in the French Army."

In an Appendix are given the names of "The Ecclesiastics and Religious killed in the war or put to death by the enemy"—nearly twenty columns of names. It is a work which deserves general attention and the special support of British and Irish Catholics. It will do much to counteract the unfounded impression that the Pope favours the Pan-Germanic cause.

"Le Supplice de Louvain: Faits et Documents," edited by Raoul Narsy, with 16 illustrations. Paris, Bloud et Gay, 7, Place Saint Sulpice; price, 1 fr. 80. The titles of some of the chapters of this account of "The Torment of Louvain" will indicate the nature of this remarkable example of what the French call "Mémoires pour servir à l'histoire": "Louvain avant les Néo-Barbares," "Louvain aux Outrages," "Louvain sous le Jong," "L'Allemagne au Pilon," "Les Explications Allemandes, Officiel et Intellectuel," "Heure viendra qui tout payera."

Album No. 1 of "The German War and Catholicism." Price 1s. Paris, Bloud & Gay, 7, Place Saint Sulpice. This handsome quarto publication consists of photographic documents illustrating the respective conduct of the German and French armies with regard to the Catholic Church. These pictures of the destruction of French and Belgian cathedrals and churches remind us of the murder by the Germans of our women and children. We know that their desire is to destroy St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey, and the other public buildings of London, in spite of their national engagements not to make war on women and children, not to attack unfortified places. On the frontispiece of this fine work we find a quotation from Heine, which was repeated by Nietzsche, and has been taken to heart by the Germans. We reproduce on this page an illustration from the German review, Jugend (Youth), published in Munich, February, 1915, depicting the modern German Thor destroying a cathedral as Heine prophesied would come to pass.

We consider that the French Catholics are doing good work in the interests of humanity and civilisation in exposing the acts and aims of Germanic "Kultur" in these and other works, which we have not space to notice, e.g., "Le Danger pour l'Eglise est en Allemagne," Paris Bureaux de la "Foi Catholique," 25, Rue Vaneau. "The A B C of Heraldry"

UNLESS you are among the large number of democratic, republican, and other mortals, who think that heraldry and all its traditions and superstitions and fooleries should be, in its own language, vulned, voided, unguled, trussed, truncated, suppressed, hoofed, eradicated, caboshed and abased—unless you care metaphorically speaking, to take up arms in defence of heraldry—you will not be interested in a very interesting book, i.e., "The A B C of Heraldry," by Guy Cadogan Rothery, with thirteen illustrations in colour and 314 in half-tone and line. It is really a beautiful bit of book-making; wonderful war-time value for the money; and is the new addition to Messrs. Stanley Paul & Co.'s distinguished series of the "A B C." The printing is so well done that we had to look for the printer's ensign, and found it to be that of Messrs. Hazell, Watson & Viney, Ltd. For a man to be able to say "whose coat of arms that is," well, if he—like a Herald of the College—spent his mortal life in examining into heraldry, he could not tell you half of them, merely en passant or passant regardant—no! not if he were the famous "Allocamelus," or ass-camel, himself. The Egyptians probably invented heraldry; the Greeks and Romans were too sensible to waste much of their time over it. What has done more than anything to bring the wearing of arms into disrepute is the granting of them to—or the taking of them by—upstarts, who have not so much claim to bear them as the man in the moon—for their claims are all moonshine. When men fought cased in bronze or steel, it was necessary that they should have some distinguishing badge for friend and foe to know them by; and absurd, indeed, is the claim of the Germans to have invented heraldry and the emblazonry of coat armour. Never has any shield been emblazoned like that which illustrious Vulcan made for Achilles—nor is there a more famous helmet than that "strong, beautiful and variously ornamented" one, with its "golden crest," which Vulcan also made for Achilles. If there are any heralds older than Homer's, let them speak, or for ever hold their German tongues. Mystery is always interesting, and this excellent book by Mr. Guy Cadogan Rothery—who is an expert in dragons—is an excellent A B C of the mystery of heraldry. As Carlyle said, "In a symbol there is concealment and yet revelation." In a second edition, we hope Mr. Rothery will explain how things like railway companies get coats of arms. Do they buy greatness, or have it thrust upon them?

Letters to the Editor

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our Correspondents.

Dana's "Two Years Before
the Mast"

SIR,—In your note to the article on Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast," you say that the first English edition was published by Routledge in 1854. This is an error. I have just read this human document, and the copy I have was published in London by J. S. Pratt, in 1845. It was hardly likely that this great book of the men of the sea would have waited till 1854 before it was printed in England—the maritime nation of the world. It is an entrancing book, but also a very sad one, for the terrible story of life before the mast, seventy years ago, is a tale of toil almost slavery, and brutal degradation. But it smells of the salt of the sea, and is written by a clever young Yankee, who had been educated at college, and who happened to ship before the mast, and thus illuminated the dark places of life in the fore-castle as it had never been done before—or since.—Yours, &c.,

T. P. BROWNE.

103, Grey St., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

[Much obliged to Mr. Browne. We find from Allibone that the first edition of the book was published in New York in 1840, and probably the edition Mr. T. P. Browne has was imported. Will he kindly give us the full title-page and size and printer's name? In face of Mr. W. Clark's merchant service novels of the sea we cannot agree last two words.—ED.]

A Warning

DEAR SIR,—I should be glad if you would afford the Incorporated Society of Authors, Playwrights and Composers, the opportunity of warning the public against an impostor who for some time past has been fraudulently impersonating Captain John Kaye Kendall, a dramatist, and the author known as "Dum-Dum" in Punch. The impostor has, in the assumed character of Captain John Kendall, obtained money from at least one literary man, and had the impudence to apply (I need not say fruitlessly) to the War Emergency Fund of this Society for relief. Anyone, therefore, who receives either a begging letter or a visit from a soi-disant Captain Kendall is advised to communicate with the Society or with the police to whom the impostor is known.—I beg to remain, yours faithfully,

G. HERBERT THRING,
Secretary The Incorporated Society of Authors, Playwrights and Composers.

Trade Notes

MR. E. P. GREY will, in future, represent Messrs. Heath, Cranton & Co., in London and district, in the place of their former representative, Mr. Morris, who has resigned.

"The Challenge of Christianity to a World at War," by the Rev. E. Griffith-Jones, D.D., is the title of a new book announced by Messrs. Duckworth & Co.

THE centenarian was being eagerly interviewed by reporters and was asked, among other things, to what he attributed his long life and good health. "Wall," the old man replied slowly, "I'm not in any position to say right now; you see, I've been bargaining with two or three of them patent medicine concerns for a couple of weeks, but I ain't quite decided yet."

Notices of Books

From Messrs. H. R. Allenson, Ltd.—"Winning the Children," by the Rev. A. Stanley Parker. Thirty addresses to children are bound up in this short book. They are couched in simple, vivid phraseology, and as often as possible the lesson is conveyed in the form of a story or parable. For the purpose of reading aloud to children they are excellent.

From Messrs. Wm. Blackwood & Sons.—"The Great Tab Dope, and other Stories," by Ole Luk-Oie. We have long considered that in "The Green Curve," written by the same author, are to be found some of the most accurate and thrilling pen pictures of modern war, and this new book in many respects is equally arresting. The author is Lieut.-Colonel Swinton, R.E., D.S.O., and is now well known as the official "Eye-witness" of our Army in Flanders. Lieut.-Colonel Swinton is at his best when keeping to his last—or should it not be sword—and we trust we shall have many more stories from his clever pen.

From Mr. John Hogg.—"Guns and Projectiles," by the late Lieut.-Commander H. C. Verner. The author of this useful book was recently killed in action, whilst bombarding the Turkish positions in the Dardanelles. He also took part in other notable sea operations; and his ship, The Inflexible, was famous for the hard-hitting and accurate firing of her heavy guns. This was in great measure due to Lieut.-Commander Verner, a gunnery expert of no mean order; and in this little book the writer sets forth some of the elementary principles of gunnery. The chapter headings indicate the scope of the work: Explosives, Gun Construction, Gun Mounting, Firing Arrangements, Projectiles and Plates, External Ballistics, Elevation, Deflection, Sights and Accuracy of Fire.

From Messrs. T. C. & E. C. Jack.—"The Cruiser on Wheels" and "The Secret Service Submarine," both by Guy Thorne, are two stories of the "exciting" type, dealing with the present War. Mr. Thorne knows what his readers want, and is careful to see that they get it.

From Mr. John Lane.—"Armageddon," by Stephen Phillips. Mr. Phillips' great gifts are not revealed at their best in this "modern epic drama in a prologue, series of scenes and an epilogue, written partly in prose and partly in verse." It was, it will be remembered, produced at the New Theatre by Mr. Martin Harvey last June. Its qualities are more obvious on the stage than in the study; though one must confess there are several eloquent passages, and the entire play is suffused with a fine spirit of moral indignation.

From Messrs. Methuen & Co., Ltd.—"The Ocean Sleuth," by Maurice Drake, is a thrilling story of perils by sea and criminal hunting by land. The author opens with work on a salvage steamer off the Cornish coast; conveniently wrecks a liner, and thus introduces the criminal and love-making elements to the absorbed reader. Thereafter, the detective part of the business will satisfy the most critical; and the interest of the story is sustained to the last page, with some startling revelations as an appropriate wind-up.

New Editions.—The Rev. J. M. Lloyd Thomas has revised and enlarged his booklet, "The Immorality of Non-Resistance," a second edition of which is now published by Messrs. Cornish Bros., Ltd., Birmingham.—Emile Verhaeren's "The Dawn," translated by Arthur Symonds, is reissued by Messrs. Duckworth & Co., in their Modern Plays Series.—James Mason's popular work, "Chess Openings," is always in demand, and a third edition of this book is now published by Messrs. Horace Cox, Ltd.—Alice Perrin's "Into Temptation" is sent out in the sevenpenny edition issued by Messrs. Methuen & Co., Ltd.—From the University Tutorial Press, Ltd., come No. 70 of the London Matriculation Directory.—Mr. Effingham Wilson send us a copy of the second edition of Mr. G. L. Hardy's "The Law and Practice of Bankruptcy."—"Edwards," the jobbing gardener, and "Mrs. Murphy," the charwoman, both creations of the ever-popular Barry Pain. (1s. net, illustrated.) From Messrs. T. Werner Laurie, Ltd.

is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind, and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books, from the invention of printing to the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints and Arundel Prints are included. The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best, bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication which gives the entire catalogue of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

Publishers' Circular

The Proposed Tax on Newspapers, Cards, &c.

CONSIDERING the small revenue it will bring in and the enormous amount of worry and loss it will cause, it is not surprising that energetic steps are being taken to protest against the proposed increase of the halfpenny postage for newspapers, postcards, &c., to one penny. The picture postcard trade, the International Association of Antiquarian Booksellers, and other bodies are taking action. The subscriptions to newspapers sent by post run into millions, and obviously doubling the postage on them is a most serious blow. We all want to do our best for our country—this tax will make doing our best far more difficult for many thousands.

Publishers' Association's Christmas Catalogue, 1915

ORDERS for the Catalogue should be sent in without any delay if copies are to be secured. The printing will begin almost immediately, and the number to be printed will approximately coincide with the number ordered on the day of going to press. The Catalogue will not be reprinted. May we remind our readers that the price is 20s. per 100 copies, and that purchasers of 50 copies or more have their names and addresses inserted without charge on the cover. Every bookseller should secure a supply of this useful list.

"Belgium and Germany"

A Terrible Witness

FOR the price of sixpence anyone—if there is anyone—who is in the least doubtful as to the righteousness of our action in entering into this War can be convinced that there was no other course open to us.

Messrs. Thomas Nelson & Sons have just brought out at sixpence a fine quarto brochure of over 130 pages with about seventy reproductions of photographs and documents of the greatest interest, entitled "Belgium and Germany: Texts and Documents. Preceded by a Foreword by Henri Davignon." Not being quite certain on the point, we asked Messrs. Nelson if the M. Henri Davignon was the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs. Messrs. Nelson handed our communication to M. Henri Davignon, who kindly replied as follows :—

Belgium Relief Committee,
10, Finsbury Square, London, E.C.
September 14th, 1915.

R. B. Marston, Esq.,

Dear Sir,—Messrs. Thomas Nelson & Sons have handed to me your postcard of the 9th inst. I am not the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, but his son, and if you would find it useful for the propaganda of my book you could certainly mention that Mons. Henri Davignon is the son of the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) HENRI DAVIGNON.

It certainly adds greatly to the importance and value of the work to know that it has been compiled by M. Henri Davignon with the assistance of his father the Minister, who has played, next to King Albert, the leading part in the heroic resistance of Belgium to the ruthless attacks of Germany on a country she was pledged to protect. M. Henri Davignon was living with his father when the German Minister came with infamous proposals and threats. On page 12 there is a portrait of M. H. Davignon, the Belgian Foreign Minister. We hope that Messrs. Nelson, who have a house in New York, will take all possible steps to make this work known throughout America, through the Press and the booksellers. It is the most impressive view and review of the whole case of Belgium and of the facts and events which claim for her the sympathy of all the human world, and we refuse to believe that there are not thousands in Germany and Austria who do not regret and deplore the German violation of Belgium. After recalling the well-known facts connected with the establishment by the Great Powers, including Prussia, of Belgium as an independent kingdom, of the repeated guarantees of the neutrality of the little country, one condition being that Belgium should defend her rights if attacked—a condition also subscribed to by Germany—we next see "how Belgium met the threats and actual violation of her rights by the strongest of the Powers which had guaranteed their inviolability," and finally, "by the contemplation of a long succession of appalling occurrences, we shall know by what systematic cruelty, injustice and violation of the laws of war and of humanity itself, the aggressor has placed a prosperous country, which he coveted, under his yoke."

We know, because we have seen plenty of evidence of it, what great exertions the Germans have made in America and other countries to give a false view of the origins of the War and of their inhuman methods of prosecuting it, and that makes us wish all the more that this mass of irrefutable evidence could be seen by every neutral to convince them, and by all the subjects of the Allied Powers to confirm them in their determination to fight against the pan-German menace and destroy it.

What it seems to us makes this work so important both historically and generally is the great array of reproductions of German documents of all kinds, official and general, and of other illustrations of her acts and deeds, which of themselves are sufficient to condemn her for ever. The chapters, each fully illustrated, deal with—

Belgium at the Bar of History ;

Belgium before the Invasion ;

Germany's disregard of the Rules of War ;

Confessions of German Theorists, of Leaders, of Soldiers ;

Under the German Yoke.

We hope that our booksellers and newagents at home and in all parts of the Empire will do all they can to help the sale of this work, published at almost a nominal price (6d.). Nothing could bring home to our people more vividly that which is in store for any nation which comes under the iron heel of the Germans.

Notes and Announcements

MESSRS. SMITH, ELDER & CO., have published this week "In Brief Authority," by F. Anstey, author of "Vice Versa"; also a second impression of "Oliver," by B. Paul Neuman.

Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. have just published with illustrations, "War Pictures Behind the Lines," by Ian Malcolm, M.P. The author has been serving in the British Red Cross since the outbreak of the War.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin has published this week, "Denmark and the Danes," by Mr. William J. Harvey and Mr. Christian Reppien, which contains a sympathetic account of recent social, economic, and political movements in Denmark, and a description of the origin and development particularly of institutions peculiar to that country; also the first six volumes of a new series entitled, "Every Irishman's Library," edited by Dr. Douglas Hyde, Mr. A. P. Graves and Mr. William Magennis. The purpose of the Library is to bring the treasures of Irish prose and verse to the doors of all book-lovers; and a little book on "Alsace Under German Rule," by Maître Paul Albert Helmer, a distinguished Alsatian lawyer. In this book the German treatment of the country since 1871 is discussed, together with its reaction on the inhabitants. He points out that though a certain proportion of the lower class speaks a sort of German dialect, Alsace is at heart entirely French.

Under the title of "Married Women's Work," Messrs. Bell publish the report of an investigation organized by the Women's Industrial Council into the work for money of wives and widows. The facts have been collected mainly by means of personal visits, and the various sections have been written by different persons, quite independently. The aggregate result is a picture, unquestionably faithful, of life as led in thousands of working-class homes in this country.

"Quicksands" is the title of Mrs. B. M. Croker's latest volume, just announced by the House of Cassell.

Miss I. A. R. Wylie's volume, "The Paupers of Portman Square," a title which, in view of the threatened super-tax, has a topical twang, will be issued immediately by Messrs. Cassell in their new Two Shilling net Novel Series.

The publication of the English edition of "Germany's Violations of the Laws of War," which is being issued under the auspices of the French Foreign Office by Mr. Heinemann, is now definitely fixed for next week.

Mr. Heinemann will publish on the 30th, a new novel by Edward Noble, entitled "The Bottle Fillers." It is a vivid and powerful story of the sea, describing the life and conditions in certain branches of our merchant service.

Mr. Heinemann also announces for the same date an English translation of Gabriele D'Annunzio's play, "The Honey-suckle."

Messrs. Macmillan will publish on October 1st a work entitled, "The Ibx of Shā-Ping, and other Himalayan Studies," by Mr. L. B. Rundall, a lieutenant of the 1st Gurkha Rifles, who was recently killed in action. The volume is profusely illustrated with pen and ink sketches and coloured plates by the author.

On the same date Messrs. Macmillan will also issue "An Untamed Territory: The Northern Territory of Australia," by Miss Elsie R. Masson. The district, Miss Masson says, is one that has a strange fascination for those who visit it, so her volume should be welcome to the large body of readers to whom works of travel make a strong appeal. She has included a number of interesting illustrations and maps.

Mr. Algernon Blackwood's new book, "The Extra Day," which will be published by Messrs. Macmillan on October 5th, takes the form of a child's story. While, however, it certainly strikes a note which the young may be expected to hear and understand, it should no less surely strengthen the hold which Mr. Blackwood possesses over adult readers.

Dr. H. B. Swete's new volume is entitled, "The Holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints: A Study in the Apostles' Creed." The volume is based upon courses of lectures given to candidates for Holy Orders at Cambridge during the academical year, 1913-14, and it has been brought into its present form in the hope that it may be of interest to other members of the Church of England who wish to study an article of their faith which is at once important and difficult. It will be published by Messrs. Macmillan on October 5th.

A new edition will be issued shortly of "North America; Vol. 1, Canada and Newfoundland," in Stanford's Compendium of Geography and Travel series. The previous edition, by Dr. Samuel E. Dawson, has been out of print for some time, and the new volume, by Dr. Henry M. Ami, M.A., has been largely re-written and greatly extended. The size has been increased by some 350 pages, several new maps have been added, and many fresh illustrations, rendering the work an up-to-date and comprehensive handbook of the Dominion. Messrs. Edward Stanford, Ltd., announce that from October 1st the price of the volumes in this series will be 15s. net.

There will shortly be published by the Royal Colonial Institute a bibliography of works relating to foreign colonisation, contained in the Library of the Institute.

Sir Dyce Duckworth, Bart., is to publish a volume entitled "Views on some Social Subjects," through Messrs. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd., on Monday.

A new and sumptuous edition of Lang's "Oxford" is about to be published by Messrs. Seeley, Service & Co.; also an edition de luxe, limited to 355 copies. It is illustrated in colours by George F. Carline, R.B.A.

Mr. John Lane publishes a new book by Mr. Shelland Bradley, who will be remembered as the author of "An American Girl at the Durbar," and "Adventures of an A.D.C." This volume is called "More Adventures of an A.D.C."

Messrs. Methuen publish this week "Victory," the finest of all Mr. Conrad's romances. In this story, Mr. Conrad returns to the manner of his famous early book, "The Outcast of the Island." A lawless adventurer called "Enchanted Heyst," is one of the great figures in Mr. Conrad's gallery; the scene is laid in and about the tropical island of Sam-buran, and the theme is love and jealousy.

At a time when foodstuffs are so dear, Mrs. Eustace Miles' book, "Economy in War Time; or, Health Without Meat," should find many readers. The book contains a very large number of recipes for easily prepared economical dishes, based partly on Mr. Miles' well-known dietetic principles. Messrs. Methuen are publishing the book at the popular price of 1s.

Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons will publish shortly "Cartoons on the War," by Boardman Robinson, a noted American artist.

Messrs. Hurst & Blackett will publish immediately a new and entirely revised edition (the eighth), of Captain M. Horace Hayes' standard work, "Veterinary Notes for Horse Owners," an illustrated manual of horse medicine and surgery, written in simple language.

Messrs. Blackie will shortly publish a book, entitled "How Wars Were Won: a Short Study of Napoleon's Times," by G. Townsend Warner, Master of the Modern Side in Harrow School. Maps and diagrams in colour and pen-and-ink elucidate the text.

The famous artist and illustrator, Edmund Dulac, is producing for the French Red Cross, a magnificent gift book, the profits of which will be paid to the funds of the Croix Rouge Française, Comité de Londres. "Edmund Dulac's Picture Book," with its many illustrations in full colour, promises to be one of the outstanding art gift books of the year.

A new illustrated book, describing the long established and sympathetic connection between the peoples of Greece and England, will be issued by the Faith House, 8, Buckingham Street, Strand, during the present month. The work is entitled "Hellenism in England," and the authors are Dr. Theodore Dowling and Mr. E. W. Fletcher, F.S.A. His Excellency the Greek Ambassador, contributes an introduction of some fifty pages, which will be read with special interest at the present time.

"The Artistic Anatomy of Trees" is the latest addition to Messrs. Seeley, Service & Co.'s "New Art" Library. The author, Mr. Rex Vicat Cole, the well-known landscapist and teacher, gives much valuable advice in the treatment of trees and their foliage, shrubs, flowers and fruits. The book is profusely illustrated with hundreds of diagrams, sketches, studies and examples of the work of the great masters.

The same firm are adding to their "Romance" Library "The Romance of the Spanish Main," a historical account of the deeds of some of the most noted adventurers, buccaneers and pirates on the Western seas. The book is by N. J. Davidson, B.A., and is illustrated.

Commander E. Hamilton Currey, R.N., has added another—the third—to his capital series of volumes, describing the adventures of Ian Hardy. It is to be entitled "Ian Hardy, Senior Midshipman," and is full of adventure and humour, told in Commander Currey's most entertaining style. The book is well illustrated in colours.

Great interest has recently been taken in the materialising of the Hudson Bay Railway, which is under construction, and is to run from the Pas, Manitoba, to Port Nelson. Mr. A. H. de Tremaudan, the founder at the Pas, has written a most valuable book on the subject, which will shortly be published by Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons.

"Forty Years in Constantinople," by Sir Edwin Pears, will be published by Mr. Herbert Jenkins, on October 6th. Sir Edwin's experience is unique. He has seen three revolutions and three Sultans deposed, and has known eleven British Ambassadors at Constantinople. He has met the principal men of all nations, whose names are intimately associated with the Near East, and perhaps one of the most interesting chapters in a volume which is practically the secret history of the Near East is that where he tells how war between Great Britain and Turkey might have been prevented.

"Windyridge" (now in its fifty-first thousand) was one of the greatest first-novel successes of recent years. Mr. W. Riley has waited three years before publishing a second novel, "Netherleigh," which will appear on October 6th.

The Booksellers' Provident Institution

At the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors held at Stationers' Hall on Wednesday, September 15th, the sum of £106 18s. 2d. was granted for the relief of members and widows of members, and the receipt of a donation of £200 from the Booksellers' Provident Retreat was reported. Mr. J. Cooper presided at the meeting, and was supported by Messrs. L. Carrdus, J. Foster, C. H. Hollingsworth, F. J. James, W. H. Jelpke, G. H. Johnson, A. S. Lewis, J. Meade, A. W. Nott, A. J. Sabin, E. Shallis, F. W. Smith, G. C. Sole, J. E. Stroulger.

The Book Trade and the War

PRIVATE PAUL, of the National Reserve Force, Wood Green Unit, who is seventy-two years of age, was fifty years with the House of Cassell. His connection with the Volunteer movement dates back over half-a-century; he formed one of the Guard of Honour in Hyde Park fifty-one years ago, when Queen Alexandra arrived in this country from Denmark for her wedding. His record in rifle scoring is 96 out of a possible 100.

"News from 'Somewhere'"

THERE is always something in a name, whether it be that of a person or a book—some little history of how it came about. This is seen in a volume entitled "News from 'Somewhere,'" which the house of Chapman & Hall will shortly publish. William Morris gave us "News from Nowhere," and we receive war news from "Somewhere in France," so that "News from 'Somewhere'" makes a trilogy. It is by Mr. James Milne, who is well known to the literary side of London journalism, and as the author of various books. His new one is an impression of personal travel and social life, at home and abroad, in the "War-time we call Armageddon."

Sir James Murray and the Oxford Dictionary

THE following note appears in the section of the Oxford Dictionary, which is about to be published—"Standard-Stead":—

Sir James Murray died on July 26th, 1915. His great wish that he should live to finish the Dictionary on his eightieth birthday, in 1917, has not been fulfilled; the unceasing labour of three-and-thirty years has ended when less than a tenth part of the work remains to be done. Almost within a week of his death, he was still hard at work, showing, as Dr. Bradley wrote of a visit made to him, "not a little of the zest and mental lucidity that I remembered of old." In the preceding months, while barely convalescent from an illness that seemed to bring him to the gates of death, he had prepared, and at the appointed date of July 1st published, his usual "double section." "The words contained in it," Dr. Bradley says, "present an extraordinary number of difficult problems, which are handled with the editor's characteristic sagacity and resource; the section is a piece of his work of which he might be proud."

It has always been the rule that each of the editors should be exclusively responsible for the portions of the Dictionary issued under his name. The sections in the hands of Dr. Bradley, Dr. Craigie, Mr. Onions, and their staffs, will not be affected. But Sir James Murray, at the beginning, laid the lines and drew the plan; in the prosecution of the work, when it became clear that it must be shared, his amazing capacity for unremitting labour, enabled him to take more than an equal part; and the volumes produced by himself show characteristic excellences which cannot be rivalled by merits of another kind. He will not write the last pages, but more than that of any other man his name will be associated with the long and efficient working of the great engine of research by which the Dictionary has been produced.

Day by day with the Russian Army

MESSRS. CONSTABLE & COMPANY have in the press, for early publication, "Day by Day with the Russian Army," by Bernard Pares, Official British Observer with the Russian Armies in the Field. Professor Pares, who has for a long time been amongst the most prominent workers in the direction of an Anglo-Russian Entente, has been attached to the Russian General Staff, and has seen the fighting in Galicia during the most critical months of the War, both during the advance and retirement of the Russian forces—not from the capital, not only from headquarters—but also from the actual fighting line. Mr. Pares gives a most vivid description of the campaign, not only engrossing in itself, but of the highest historical value.

Mr. Heinemann announces for publication in the Fall, A Christmas Carol, by Charles Dickens, illustrated by Arthur Rackham, one vol., bound in parchment, with 12 col. plates, printed on hand-made paper with special watermark, an edition limited to 500 copies for sale in the British Empire, each copy numbered, and signed by the artist. Orders will be booked in strict order of receipt, and should, to avoid disappointment, be forwarded at once. Large 4to, £2 2s. net.

A Remarkable Collection of Literary Treasures

Shakespeare, the Brontë Sisters, &c.

THE Rochdale Observer of September 15th, in an interesting account of a visit to a fine local private library, says:—

"It is probably news to many Rochdale people to know that the district contains an exceedingly fine library with a unique collection of manuscripts. This is the library of the late Mr. William Law, now in the possession of his nephew, Mr. A. J. Law, J.P., of Honresfeld, Littleborough. On Saturday members of the Rochdale Literary and Scientific Society had, through Mr. Law's kindness, the privilege of viewing some of the most important items of the collection. Under the leadership of Mr. Walter Scott, J.P., some sixty-five members of the society visited Honresfeld and were welcomed by Mr. Law. They were then conducted to the library, where were exhibited on tables such rarities as a First Folio Shakespeare, several Shakespeare quartos, the author's manuscripts of the 'Antiquary,' 'Rob Roy,' and some cantos of the 'Lay of the Last Minstrel'; Brontë relics, Burns's 'Commonplace Book,' letters of Jane Austen, Burns, Byron, Longfellow, Cowper, Mrs. Gaskell, Ruskin, Tim Bobbin, William and Mary Howitt, &c.

"During Shakespeare's lifetime single plays were printed in small editions known as quartos. Mr. Law's collection includes two of these—'Love's Labour Lost' (1598), with Shakespeare's name for the first time on a play, and 'Midsummer Night's Dream' (1600). Mr. Scott mentioned that Mr. William Law erected a stained glass window in Stratford-on-Avon church to Shakespeare's memory. Dealing with the Scott MSS., the speaker noted that that of the 'Lay of the Last Minstrel' was the original copy sent to the printer, for it contained instructions as to the type; it was also interesting because of the erasures and interlineations of the poet. The well-known early line 'The harp his sole remaining joy' was originally written

'The wanderer's harp his only joy,' and most people would acknowledge that the new line was an improvement

"The collection of letters from famous authors includes one from Lord Byron, which has a distinct local interest. It was written from Athens on February 28th, 1811, by Byron, during a time of financial embarrassment, to his friend and travelling companion, John Cam Hobhouse. Byron complained of being 'damnable hard up,' and said, 'If we must sell, sell Rochdale.' This letter is not printed amongst the published collection, but curiously enough on the same day Byron wrote to his mother, whom, by the way, he often addressed as 'dear madam': 'I beg you will state to Mr. Hanson (his solicitor) that it is necessary to send further remittances. If it is necessary to sell, sell Rochdale.' Byron did not, however, immediately dispose of the estate, for it was not until 1823 that it was sold to the Deardens. There is a characteristic letter from Ruskin: 'Dear Harris,—Let me most gravely advise you to put your £365 into the funds and let Keats' love letters go to the pastry cooks. Infinitely too much fuss has been made about him.—Ever affectionately yours, J. Ruskin.' A trifle malicious, commented Mr. Scott, but then we know we need not take him literally!

"The Burns 'Commonplace Book,' if it were known in Scotland, would bring troops of devotees to Honresfeld to see so interesting a relic of the poet so many regard as a hero.

"The most beautiful book in the collection is the Assheton Missal (the book containing the Roman Catholic Liturgy and Book of the Mass), a beautifully written and illuminated manuscript, made about 1440, sixteen years before the first book was printed in Europe. The missal belonged to the Church of Middleton before 1547, and then passed into the hands of the Assheton family of Middleton.

"Mr. Law's collection also contains some fine Brontë relics—juvenile manuscripts of Charlotte Brontë, poems of the three sisters, &c. The small volume of Emily Brontë's poems is quite an historic one, for it is that referred to by Charlotte in her introduction to 'Wuthering Heights.' 'One day in the autumn of 1845,' she says, 'I accidentally lighted on a MS. volume of verse in my sister Emily's handwriting,' and found to her surprise that the poems were uncommonly good.

"The party were also allowed to inspect some of Mr. Law's pictures, including a magnificent Turner."

A New Work by Mr. Edward Bell

MR. EDWARD BELL, the well-known publisher, has written a volume on the "Architecture of Ancient Egypt," which will be published by his firm next week. The main object of this volume is to give, in a manner adapted to general readers, a connected historical outline of the architecture of the ancient Egyptians, from their earliest dynastic period, and to show, in the light of recent research, to what extent it forms a phase in the general history of the art. Some account is also given of the latter periods, to which so large a proportion of the existing remains are due. About 180 illustrations, maps, and plans will, it is hoped, give the book some interest to travellers, as a supplement, so far as the chief architectural monuments are concerned, to the indispensable handbooks.

Lawyer: "Judge, I want you to fine this man who was knocked down by my client's car." Judge: "Fine him? Why?" Lawyer: "He had a nail in his clothes and it punctured a new tyre." —Topeka Journal.

The Field on "The Book"

"THE book has in the last fifty years gained many new lovers by the remarkable developments that have come about in the methods of publication. Quite a small sum will make a man the possessor of a library which is representative of all the best that literature offers. Even modern novelists who are under the unfortunate necessity of living by bread come down to a shilling, or even sevenpence, with a celerity which would have shocked their predecessors, to whom the three-volume mode of appearance represented not only bread, but, as some now enviously think, jam and cake, too. This may or may not be good for the authors themselves, but it is certainly a boon to the general public, and the habit of reading has spread enormously in consequence. In fact, it has come about that probably a good half of our population regards books of some sort as a necessity of life; whereas a century ago, perhaps not more than a tenth of it was of this mind. To us, being so constituted, comes a great national upheaval which removes a large and important part of our able-bodied men from normal life, uprooting them from their surroundings, and depriving them of many of the things which had been almost as much a part of their existence as the sun in the sky or the air they breathed. For the great bulk of them are not professional soldiers, accustomed to suit their wants to their necessarily mobile life, but citizens who have taken up arms without any previous training in the art of 'doing without.' To such men, many of them highly educated and lovers of all the arts, one of the hardest sacrifices has obviously been the foregoing of intellectual and artistic pleasures, of which, perhaps, reading is the chief. In the soldier's life, when he is on active service, there is scant room for books, though his need of them is often acute. We have read that Napoleon, who was an omnivorous reader, used always to have with him on his campaigns a box filled with books, published in a very small size. Bibliophiles know how many tiny editions of French classics appeared in the early years of the nineteenth century—a result, probably, of the emperor's habit. But to be able to take your library with you on your campaigns you must have reached his eminence. When the baton is still hidden in your knapsack, you must be content with smaller things. For these and similar reasons, a cordial welcome should be extended to the broadsheet scheme of our contemporary the Times, to which Sir Walter Raleigh has lent his distinguished aid. It seeks to fulfil a really excellent purpose in a simple way, and it bids fair to do an important service to our fighting men."

What the French are reading

"It is pleasant to know that there should be in great demand in France a little book entitled 'The Soul of the English.'"—Publishers' Circular. (Quoted in "The British Weekly.")

The Daily Chronicle and Steffansson's Canadian Arctic Expedition

IN contrast to the daily round of accounts of man's destruction of man, also of women and children, readers of the Daily Chronicle, of last Monday (Sept. 20th, 1915), must have been delighted to find the long, bracing, breezy account of the Canadian Arctic Expedition. It is the very modest personal narrative of Vilhjalmur Steffansson, the famous Arctic explorer and leader of the Canadian Expedition. He had not been heard of since April, 1914, and was generally accounted dead by the whalers and officers of the ships that had sought for him. He had not heard of the War. Think of the feelings with which such a brave and scientific man read for the first time, and nearly all at once, of the great events of this War. One would like to hear his unprejudiced views of it—just as one would like to have the Man in the Moon's opinion or that of the Commander of the Martian Armies—he is supposed to know all about trench warfare). The Daily Chronicle is to be congratulated on its enterprise in having what appears to be the only account published in this country of this latest of Arctic adventures.

Not the least interesting things mentioned by Steffansson are his visiting places hallowed by visits of the great Arctic explorers of the early years of Queen Victoria's glorious reign. For instance, he says:—

"Banks Island has not been visited by a white man, though whalers sight it often, since McClure abandoned his ship here in 1854. At that time musk oxen were abundant, but we saw none, and they may be extinct. The Eskimo inhabitants of the west coast seem to have been a few transients only."

Then later in his narrative he says:

"Proceeding northward, we finished the charting of the coast line between the farthest points reached by McClintock and Meham, in 1853, from their winter base on the south coast of Melville Island. Fogs and thick weather hampered us greatly in this work. On the afternoon of June 15th, we reached the north tip of the island, and found there a record left by McClintock, dated June 15th, 1853."

It seems only a year or two since we had some correspondence with Sir Leopold McClintock, and it would have been very interesting if he had lived to see again his record of sixty-two years ago.

Death of Mr. R. C. Walch, of Hobart, Tasmania

WITH much regret we hear of the death of Mr. Richard Crosby Walch on August 29th at Hobart, Tasmania, in his fiftieth year. He was the fourth son of the late Mr. J. H. B. Walch and a nephew of the late Mr. Charles Edward Walch, who was the head of the firm of Messrs. J. Walch & Sons, Ltd., of Hobart, and whose death we announced only in March last. Mr. Richard Walch was a director of this old-established firm.

Lord Roberts' distress at the cruelties of the Germans

MESSRS. NELSON have published at 1s. net a most interesting account of war experiences as a nurse, by a British lady, S. Macnaughten, entitled "A Woman's Diary of the War," relating experiences in Antwerp during the siege, Furnes, the first battle of Ypres—or "Vipers," as our "Tommies" call it. The writer has many delightful and proud references to our "Tommies."

"This first Battle of Ypres has not, I believe, been fully, or at least, generally understood yet. One does not like to deal in superlatives, but it is hardly too much to say that it was one of the great events of our history, and probably there are not many battles that can compare with it. A sergeant, returning wounded, said to me, 'It was proper 'ell, Miss' ". . . And then Miss Macnaughten makes use of an expression which one hears on all sides, "Only in years to come shall we hear all about it." Of course, it is only the expression of a hope, but for how many will it not prove a hopeless hope; the red tape of our War Department will see to that; it will do an official history, to be completed some ten years after the War, and will refuse its sanction to the use of the official documents to any Kinglake of the future. That is the outlook.

This little book makes one feel again the stifling feeling of bitter resentment at the oblivion to which the splendid valour of our men has been doomed—and, practically speaking, is for ever doomed—for when the official tale is unfolded it will be too late.

"Britain had neither sufficient rifles nor sufficient men when the War broke out; and 'Bobs' never once said, 'I told you so'."

Miss Macnaughten has a very interesting account of a visit paid to Lord Roberts, only a few months before he died. She says:—

"I like to think that almost the last thing I did before I left England was to motor down to have lunch with Lord Roberts at Ascot, and to bid him goodbye. He was full of news of the War, and, so far as was possible, talked simply and openly about it; and I was struck anew by the fact that a man who had been in the thick of so many fights was full of tenderness towards the suffering which war brings."

"His mind seemed filled with distress and indignation at the cruelty of the German method of warfare. He said:—

"'I have fought in the Indian mutiny, and against Afghans and Zulus and Kafirs and hill tribes, but none of these have ever committed such deeds of savagery as the Germans have done.'"

"Lord Roberts believed that German barbarism was a byword amongst civilized people. . . . He told me that he meant to go to the Front, even if he could get no further than Ostend."

It was under the banner of the Red Cross that Miss S. Macnaughten did her fighting at the Front, and, although she says next to nothing about herself, we know she did her duty.

Shakespeare on Sea Power

DEAR SIR,—Have you seen that article on "Shakespeare and Sea Power," occupying five pages of the current number of the Contemporary Review?
The writer—Mr. J. E. G. Montmorency, deals especially with important plays—such as "King Henry the Fifth,"
"Antony and Cleopatra," and "Cymbeline"
—in which "Sea Power" is extollled by our National poet. Mr. Montmorency fitly concludes his suggestive article in the following manner: "In the significant ending to King Henry the Eighth, the prophetic dramatist claims that Britain, England, shall 'make new nations.' His mind is in the West, whither his great contemporaries had carried on swift keel the name, the fame, and the sea power of the little island which had once been the Western outpost of the Roman Empire."

I thought that you would like to know of this—Yours faithfully,

C. W. TINCKAM.

[Much obliged; must see the article, and are glad to make it known to our readers.—ED.]

English editions of Dana's
"Two Years before the Mast"

SIR,—The edition I have is a thick 24mo.; the title-page reads as follows,
"Two Years before the Mast; or,
A Voice from the Forecastle: Being a Sailor's Life at Sea. An authentic narrative. By R. H. Dana, jun. Mess-mates hear a brother sailor Sing the dangers of the sea. London: Published by J. S. Pratt, 1845."

The frontispiece is an excellent woodcut of a full-rigged ship, which may be a portrait of the brig Pilgrim, of Boston, U.S.A., but is more likely to be a lively representation of the Susan, of Whitby, or some other ship of that Yorkshire port, as the book bears the imprint at the end of "J. S. Pratt, Printer, Stokesley, Yorkshire." I do not think this is the first English edition of the book, as I have an impression that I have seen somewhere mentioned an edition dated 1843. In an American book I have read a brief biography of the author, where it states that the book was ordered to be printed by the Lords of the Admiralty, and a copy presented to every sailor in the British fleet; but in my forty years' pleasurable pursuit of my trade of bookselling, I have never met with a copy; and, as the trade of my firm is mostly second-hand books, I think a copy would have come under my notice had it existed.
If, however, the Stokesley edition should be the first in England to be published, it is pleasant to think that a little country town a few miles from the birthplace of that great English sailor, Captain James Cook, should have first brought out this fine and true book of the sea, the sailorman, and the ships in which he dwells.—
Yours, &c.,

T. P. BROWNE.

Notices of Books

From The Cambridge University Press.—
"The War and its Issues," by John Oman, M.A. While the original germ of this paper was a speech at Queen's College, it grew to its present form and dimensions purely through the impulse on the part of the author to think out his own relations to the present crisis. It is, in effect, a personal statement, though it is at times argumentative; just because it is personal, all readers will not agree with each of its conclusions. The first part consists of "an attempt at a Christian judgment," whilst the second studies six moral issues of the War—the social, military, political, international, ecclesiastical and religious.

From the Same.—"Typical Flies," by E. K.
Pearce. Mr. Pearce supplies a picture gallery of various kinds of fly, describing his volume as a "photographic atlas of Diptera, including Aphaniptera." His book is designed to meet the needs of collectors and in a practical preface he gives much sound advice as to the qualities of net, the periods most suitable for collecting and the subsequent treatment of specimens.

From the Same.—"La Maison aux Panonceaux," par Lady Frazer. Mr. Wilson-Green adds Lady Frazer's charming tale to his Junior Group of the Modern French Series. The story is preceded by a quaint frontispiece and is printed straightfor-wardly, without any of the old-time formality of grammatical notes. At its conclusion, however, are grouped a number of exercises based on the text and a full vocabulary concludes the volume. To the Middle Group of the same series is added Saint-Beuve's "Franklin et Chesterfield," a volume which also falls under the editorship of Mr. Wilson-Green and is admirably suited to more advanced students.

From Messrs. Cnapman & Hall, Ltd.—
"Drink and the War," by Marr Murray.
Taking as his text a long-since uttered dictum of the Kaiser, "The nation that will win the next war will be the one which is most sober," Mr. Murray sets forth the evil done by drink in the present war and the good done by abstinence. On the one hand he places the excesses of the German troops in Belgium, on the other the excellent results obtained by drastic treatment of the liquor question on the part of the Allies. Mr. Murray is no bigot;
he views his subject fairly and squarely and his booklet is worth every serious man's consideration.

From the Church Missionary Society.—
"Called," by E. May Crawford. Mrs.
Crawford writes of missionary endeavour with a burning and inspired pen. She herself has spent many years in the work and her experience has filled her with immense zeal. In her account, Abraham is instanced as the first foreign missionary, and from Abraham down to the present day her history of the world is punctuated with heroic missionary lives. Anecdotes and testimonies of these brave people bulk largely in a book which should easily become popular among missionary circles.
There is a short preface from the pen of the Bishop of Durham.

From Messrs. Cornish Brothers, Birmingham.—"Poems," by Oliver W. F. Lodge.
If Sir Oliver Lodge has written no poems of length or importance, he has produced an amazing amount of cheerful and fluent verse. He is happiest, perhaps, in lusty ballads such as "The Childe of Hale," a poem in which he handles a quaint manner of speech and tells a straight and strong tale. The most unusual note in the remainder of the poems is the constant assertion that Love is no male deity but is entirely feminine.

From Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd.—
"The Political Economy of War," by F. W. Hirst. Readers with an investigating turn of mind will find great satisfaction in following Mr. Hirst's analysis of the business side of warfare. He is always lucid, and if his earlier chapters on the effect of war on trades and exchanges, sinking funds and indemnities are carefully followed the reader should arrive at a fair comprehension of the cost of the present war and its likely consequences on finance.
If some of Mr. Hirst's deductions are rather terrifying, others are equally heartening.

From the Same.—"A Short History of Modern Europe, 1450-1915," by James schoolroom use, Mr. Oliphant's history is writer in a sufficiently flowing and narrative style to appeal also to the general reader. It is pleasantly free from bias, and outlines the fortunes of the various European countries in a manner that clearly indicates the simultaneous development of events throughout the Continent. From out of a welter of material, the writer has shaped a lucid and coherent work which should be welcomed in all quarters.

From Messrs. Everett & Co., Ltd.—"Black-mailed," by Arthur Applin. Myra Berrington, through a foolish visit to an unscrupulous Soho blackmailer, is forced into the position of tool in his next venture—that of fleecing an eminently respectable M.P. A great number of thrilling incidents follow, which conclude in the discomfiture of the villain and the marriage of Myra to the M.P.'s soldier son. The novel is of the newspaper serial order, and quite good of its kind.

From Messrs. Wells Gardner, Darton & Co., Ltd.—"Conscience: Its Origin and Authority," by Rev. G. L. Richardson, M.A., B.D. It is pointed out by Mr. Richardson that the conscience has received only cursory treatment at the hands of English writers. For the most part, ethical writers have left it to the theologians, and theologians have referred inquirers back to ethics. Mr. Richardson's pretty considerable essay is not addressed to professed students of ethics, theology or metaphysics, but to the general reader. The subject is dealt with from many points of view and in a style that is clear and attractive.

From Messrs. George G. Harrap & Co.—"Serbia: Her People, History and Aspirations," by Woislav M. Petrovitch. M. Petrovitch is Attaché to the Serbian Legation at St. James's. He is an authority on his subject and he writes in a clean English style. His history, therefore, ought to be widely read by all who take more than a superficial interest in Serbia and her destiny. Such readers will find a wealth of interest in M. Petrovitch's pages, whether he outlines the dry facts of history or describes the customs and ideals of a hardy, brave and little-understood people. Portraits of four eminent Serbians, of whom one is King Peter, are given as illustrations.

From Messrs. P. S. King & Son, Ltd.—"The Economics of War and Conquest," by J. H. Jones, M.A. Mr. Jones has no difficulty in refuting the conclusions arrived at by Mr. Norman Angell in his well-known book, yet when he first began to study the subject upon which he has written so ably, he was fully prepared to find Mr. Angell's case irrefutable. The educated lay reader will experience little or no difficulty in following Mr. Jones's arguments. Few men, indeed, have written on this rather involved subject with more clearness and point.

From Mr. John Lane—"Belgian Poems," by Emile Cammaerts. English translation by Tita Brand-Cammaerts. Emile Cammaerts, the sweet singer of Belgium, gives us the first real literature to be produced by the War. Cammaerts' genius apparently received not the slightest paralysing shock from the frightful events of August, 1914, but continued to pour itself forth in tune with the new happenings in a stream of fine and human poetry which, through the agency of our own Press, has become known throughout the length and breadth of our country. These war poems, together with a few pastoral verses of earlier date, are now drawn together in a good-sized volume. They are excellently arranged, each original poem being faced with its English translation. Madame Cammaerts' work is exceedingly competent, although she stands aside from such poems as have already been handled. The reader, therefore, obtains Lord Curzon's poetical version of "Le Drapeau Rouge," together with several pieces of good work from other sources. The first edition is to be sold on behalf of the Belgian Soldiers' Fund, and should be speedily disposed of. A striking pencil portrait of the poet by Mr. Vernon Hill is reproduced as frontispiece, and it is hardly necessary to mention that the prime favourite, "Chantons, Belges, Chantons," finds an early place.

From the Same—"The Great Unrest," by F. E. Mills Young. Miss Young has produced a tale of the times, which should prove equally successful with any of its popular predecessors. The great labour strike of eighteen months ago at Johannesburg is described from a point of view which will find plenty of agreement, and is preceded by a charming account of the hero's youth in England, and is followed by his enlistment and death in the present War. The last section of the book is carefully and worthily handled, and steers clear of sentimentality, in spite of great temptation. Patricia, the English heroine, is drawn on lines a little too sweet and good to be convincing; Dam, a hero full of impetuous faults and an overlove for the pleasure of the moment, is, on the other hand, brimming with life and vigour.

From Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co. Ltd.—"Low's Handbook to the Charities of London, 1915." This is the 80th year of publication of this standard Handbook to the Charities of London. In accordance with its rule the publication has been delayed in order to get in the latest returns for the year 1914. The Editor in "An Appeal" for the support of the benevolent public for what on the whole may be called our splendid charities, says, "The enormous taxation and the heavy demands on public generosity on account of the Great War in which our country is engaged, have seriously affected the receipts of all charities . . . We recognize that 1915 will be a very critical year for all institutions dependent for maintenance on income from subscriptions." This, of course, is obvious; many fine institutions have already suffered severely. If there is any truth in the idea that great increases are to be made to the income tax, the position of our charities will indeed become serious. As it seems to be certain that there will be an enormous expansion of the Empire's trade and resources very soon after this War it seems an unwise policy to grind institutions and individuals out of existence by extortionate taxes now.

From Mr. Erskine Macdonald—"Thorns," by Edward Scott. Arnold Quinton is an unattractive compound of pedant, prig and cad. Having compromised a girl of lower social standing than himself, he straightway adopts the advice of a worldly mother and leaves the girl to her shame. We suspect from the subsequent behaviour of the hero of "Thorns" that this piece of treachery was forced upon him by an author who otherwise would have been at a loss for a plot, for the intention of the book lies in its painstaking description of the vicissitudes undergone by the wronged girl. There is a wealth of coherent incident which renders more than readable a novel unfortunately full of faults.

From Messrs. Murray & Evenden, Ltd.—"The Human Octopus," by Jeanette de la Val. A crudely written and yet compelling story by a Canadian authoress.

Her objectionable theme is the White Slave Traffic, but it is handled with sufficient suppression of detail to prevent the reader from laying the book down with a sensation of nausea. Charm is given to the story by the character of the wife of the arch-villain. Mrs. Petersen lives throughout the pages of an otherwise amateurish novel as a sweet, dignified and pure-minded woman of sorrow.

From Messrs. Novello & Co., Ltd.—"Physical Exercises, Dances and Games in the Infant School," by Margaret Alexander Hughes. The Music arranged by W. McNaught. Children should appreciate the jolly physical drill arranged by Miss Hughes. Simple exercises are followed by a musical dance or game into which are introduced the varied body movements. Photographs of the different postures are supplied and the accompanying songs are quite charming.

From Messrs. Stanley Paul & Co.—"Hern-dale's Heir," by E. Everett-Green. The usual plot of ruthless squire, disowned sister, adopted and wily heir—in this case an heiress—and the ultimate triumph of the rightful, manly and virtuous heir, son of the disowned sister, is served up by Mrs. Everett-Green in her accustomed style. No psychological analysis of any of the characters is attempted and the story moves in the superficial and suave manner generally ear-marked as suitable for school-room reading.

From Messrs. C. Arthur Pearson, Ltd.—"Utility Rabbit Keeping," by the experts of The Smallholder. We have here a cheap volume compiled from articles contributed to The Smallholder by our foremost authorities on rabbit keeping; it is published with the object of interesting still wider circles in one of the most profitable of our small live stock industries. The book is practical and fully illustrated, dealing with every phase of the industry, from the selection of the parent stock, through all the stages of stocking, feeding and breeding, to the disposal of the finished article, live or dead, with the valuable by-product, the fur.

From the Religious Tract Society—"Private 7664," by Edward Smith, J.P. Joseph Cox of the 4th Worcesters, killed last October in France, was a member of the Y.M.C.A. and a correspondent of Mr. Edward Smith, who has now arranged for publication a number of Cox's letters. They are both devout and manly, although those readers who hope for details of the present war will be disappointed.

From Messrs. Grant Richards, Ltd.—"Bernard Shaw: An Epitaph," by John Palmer. We rather imagine that too much attention is being paid to Mr. Shaw in these days. He has written an extremely foolish and utterly misleading pamphlet about the War; and even those who formerly admired him are now quite content to forget him for a space, if not for ever. Mr. Palmer deals with Shaw justly; he is not scathing, and he is not unfair; but we do not imagine Shaw will derive much pleasure in reading the truth about himself. It is a clever and penetrating booklet, but we do hope this is the last of the works to be written about the man who once was popular.

From Mr. Robert Scott—"God's Strong People," by the Rev. A. W. Gough, M.A., F.R.S.L. The well-known Vicar of Brompton has grouped the bulk of the sermons delivered by him during the spring of the present year under the comprehensive title "God's Strong People." The sermons are war sermons in the best sense; they are virile and helpful and should in their present form command a wide public.

From the Walter Scott Publishing Co., Ltd.—"King of Kulturia," by W. Hugh Higginbottom. Many fantasies are arising from the present war but none so far has shot ahead in the manner of Mr. Higginbottom's. He presupposes the failure of Germany to impose her creed of materialism upon the world and goes on to imagine the effect of the same Power's determination to "corner" Inspiration—to acquire a world-monopoly of the Arts. The fantasy takes the form of a narrative in which Oridd, Crown Prince of Kulturia, conceives and attempts to carry out the aforesaid determination. Apollo is revived by the exertions of science and a medley of gods and mortals ensues which, fortunately, ends in the annihilation of all the principal characters.

From the Same.—"Taras Bulba," by Nikolai Gogol. Gogol's Cossack story has been adequately translated, and should prove opportune reading at the present time. It pictures the wild life of several hundred years ago, when Cossack and Pole were sometimes friendly, but more often at enmity.

From Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., Ltd.—"Meditation," by Arthur Lovell. The difficulty of threading a way through the chaos of modern thought appeals to Mr. Lovell, who recommends as a very present help the practice of the old-world habit of meditation. He devotes many chapters to an analysis of various modes of meditation, on its objective and subjective aspects, and on the symbolism and ritual of varying religious creeds. His own advocated form is spiritualistic or psychic, rather than religious in the ordinary sense.

From Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., Ltd.; and Messrs. J. Arrow-smith, Ltd., Bristol.—"The Melody of Death," by the author of "The Four Just Men." Mr. Edgar Wallace is fast winning for himself a foremost place among writers of sensational fiction. A rare union is his of the qualities which go towards the making of a "serious" novelist, and those which distinguish the successful architect of sensational plots. "The Melody of Death" can not be bettered in its live and human men and women and in its closely held and mysterious plot. Gilbert Standerton, the hero, is in desperate want of money. He has married a girl, who, believing him to be rich, has wedded him for the sake of his supposed wealth. For her sake, and, we believe, also for the sake of the adventure, Gilbert embarks upon an amazing and quite new career of burglar-dogging. Incident and dénouement are alike exciting and make most cheering reading.

From the Same.—"Was it a Marriage?" by Edith Stanforth. A priggish and unlikely hero mars a story which otherwise has several good points. The differing atmospheres of Venice and Florence, cities which form the chief background of "Was it a Marriage," have been sincerely felt by the writer, and are successfully passed on to the reader. The mid-Victorian plot, too, seems quite fresh at this time of day. The heir to an English estate, while travelling on the Continent, marries religiously but not legally, a young and trusting girl. Subsequently abandoning her and her child, he returns to England, inherits his estate and marries a cousin. The child, brought up to womanhood by an aunt, discovers her dubious parentage at an inopportune moment. There ensues a broken engagement, a period of mental suffering and a final restoration to wealth, happiness and propriety.

From Mr. Elliot Stock.—"A Daughter of Sin," by Mary E. Martens. It seems odd to read of a modern heroine confessing to a love for Mrs. Henry Wood's novels, and still more odd that the lady should couple the long-dead authoress in her affections with bioscope music and rag-time. Maisie Gray, however, lives in South Africa, where it may well be that tastes get mixed in their generations. She, though the heroine of "A Daughter of Sin," is quite sweet and innocent, marrying happily in orthodox manner. The "Daughter" is a cousin, wife of a dissipated man who conducts intrigues with native women. In revolt from her husband's mode of life, Lulu falls in love with a handsome and literary Zulu, gaining thereby a term of penal servitude. The injustice of South African law between white and black, man and woman, is Miss Martens' theme, to which Maisie and her love story are attached as relief.

From the University of London Press.—"Geography and World-Power," by James Fairgrieve, M.A. Mr. Fairgrieve's unassailable position is that man acts to a great extent under geographical control. The Geography that he presents in the present volume, therefore, takes the form of a consecutive narrative of human progress. A good atlas and a foundation of historical lore is necessary to his reader. Given these conditions, one of the most enthralling books produced under the guise of instruction can be enjoyed by the lay reader equally with the student who looks upon the work as an aid to matriculation.

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

Is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind, and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books, from the invention of printing to the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints and Arundel Prints are included. The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best, bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most-easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication which gives the entire catalogue of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

MR. EDWARD ARNOLD'S NEW BOOKS

WITH OUR ARMY IN FLANDERS

By G. VALENTINE WILLIAMS. With Illustrations. Demy 8vo. 12s. 6d. net

The Author of this book is the brilliant War Correspondent who wrote the description of the battle of Neuve Chapelle, which was universally acclaimed as the most graphic account of fighting which has appeared during the war.

THE CAPTURE OF DE WET.

By P. J. SAMPSON

With Illustrations. Demy 8vo. 10s. 6d. net

This account of the rebellion in South Africa—one of the few chapters of the war which are already completed—is interesting not only from the dramatic sequence of events and brisk fighting that took place, but also from the psychological standpoint. This consecutive narrative by one who was on the spot and familiar with the strangely diverse currents of feeling there will be welcomed by many who wish for something more than the disconnected and perplexing fragments in the newspapers.

A SURGEON IN KHAKI.

By A. A. MARTIN

With Illustrations. Demy 8vo. 10s. 6d. net

Mr. Martin is a New Zealand surgeon who was given a commission in the R.A.M.C., and served during the battles of the Marne and the Aisne and in Flanders last winter. The book is intended for the general reader, although it contains a few chapters on the professional side of the author's experiences, including some criticism.

THE DOUBLE ROAD. A Story. By MICHAEL WOOD, author of "The House of Peace," etc. Crown 8vo. 3s. 6d. net.

This story aims at illustrating the contrast between the path of one seeking the mystical union with God, and that of the seeker of the marvellous and occult. It also aims at directing attention to some dangers of the latter course, to which due weight are seldom given; which are commonly wholly ignored, and possibly not perceived. The tale is purely fiction, the possibilities of either path are facts.

ELKIN MATHEWS' ANNOUNCEMENTS

NEW AND FORTHCOMING BOOKS:

Uniform with "Post Liminium: Essays and Critical Papers."

POETICAL WORKS of LIONEL JOHNSON

Now first collected, with an Introductory Study, an Alphabetical Index of Titles, and three Collytypes. Crown 8vo. 346 pages. 7/6 net.

The collytype illustrations are as follows—

- [i] Lionel Johnson from a photograph taken at Winchester School, 1885.
- [ii] Lionel Johnson from a photograph taken at New College, Oxford, when President of the New College Essay Society, 1889.
- [iii] Brass tablet erected in 1904 in the cloisters of Winchester College by Wykehamists and literary friends.

It is just thirteen years since Lionel Johnson died, five years before the death of another great Catholic poet—Francis Thompson. Filled with the Celtic spirit which makes for higher things, he was also steeped in the most golden poetry of the Greeks, as one would expect from the favourite pupil and friend of Walter Pater. His fame in America, no less than here, has been growing with the years, and it is hoped this definitive edition of a fine poet's work will bring him yet wider recognition.

C. FOX SMITH.

THE NAVAL CROWN: Ballads and Songs of the War.

(Uniform with "Songs in Sail" and "Sailor Town.")

Royal 16mo. 1/- net.

"It is idle to commend to readers of the Spectator the delightful songs of Miss Fox Smith. Her 'Songs in Sail' are true chanties, with their outland rhythms and clear directness as of the singing voice. She has many notes; the eternal Wanderlust of 'The Traveller' and 'The Old Whale'; the far-away magic of 'The Coast of Barbary'; the homesickness of 'The Long Road Home' and 'News from the North'; the delicate imaginative charm of 'Romance' and 'Ghosts in a Garden.' In Miss Fox Smith's verses the fancy and the tune are alike wholly satisfying, and he must be a dull soul who does not for long carry these gypsy rhythms in his head."—Spectator.

The Caliphs' Last Heritage. A Short History of the Turkish Empire. By Sir MARK SYKES, Bart., M.P. With Illustrations and Maps. 8vo.

I Pose. By STELLA BENSON. Crown 8vo. 5s. net.

.. This book is in the form of a story though the story is the least important part of it. It is a medley of wisdom, whimsicality, vivid description, and quick perception, with many shrewd sayings and unexpected thoughts scattered throughout its pages. As the first book of a new writer, of a very amusing kind, it may be expected to attract considerable attention

The Kingdom of the Winding Road.

By CORNELIA MEIGS. With Illustrations in colour and in black and white, by FRANCES WHITE. Crown 8vo.

.. A fanciful story relating the experience of a beggar as he travels the country over in his tattered red cloak, playing his penny flute—in reality a wonderful magical pipe. He always knows the best thing to be done, and he comes to the aid of the hero when he is in the worst distress. In his own fashion he helps the bad and the good alike. The book is part fairy tale, part romance, part allegory but always literature.

A THOUSAND YEARS OF RUSSIAN HISTORY. By SONIA E. HOWE. With Coloured Frontispiece, 12 Photogravures, numerous other Illustrations and 8 Maps. Demy 8vo, 7s. 6d. net.

A review of Russian history dealing with civic and national life as well as with the political annals of the Empire and its rulers—a connected series of pictures of the Russian nation at various stages of its growth.

ITALIAN LEADERS OF TO-DAY. By HELEN ZIMMERN. Author of "The Hansa Towns," "Italy of the Italians," etc. With 7 Portraits. Crown 8vo, 5s. net.

Miss Zimmern has taken the leaders of all parties—H.M. King Victor, his Generals, his Admirals, and his Ministers—and in a series of over a dozen brilliant character sketches has typified the best forces at work in Italy to-day. Her text is refreshed with portraits and many a vivid and significant anecdote.

THE BRITISH COAL-TAR INDUSTRY. Its Origin, Development, and Decline. Edited by Prof. WALTER M. GARDNER, M.Sc., F.I.C. With Illustrations. Medium 8vo, 10s. 6d. net.

The first part of this book (pp. 1-297) deals with the history and development of the industry, and the latter part (pp. 298-427) with the problem as it has presented itself since the outbreak of war.

CITIES IN EVOLUTION. An Introduction to the Town Planning Movement and to the Study of Civics. By PATRICK GEDDES, Member and Hon. Librarian of the Town Planning Institute; Director of the Cities and Town Planning Exhibition. With 59 Illustrations and Plans. Large Demy 8vo, 7s. 6d. net.

This book is an attempt at the popularisation of the reviving art of town planning. It is from facts surveyed and interpreted that we gain our general ideas of the direction of Evolution, and even see how to further this; since from the best growths selected we may rear yet better ones.

THE LORD HIGH ADMIRAL AND OTHERS. By L. COPE CORNFORD, Author of "Echoes from the Fleet," In Coloured Pictorial Wrapper. Crown 8vo, Paper Boards, 2s. net; Cloth, 2s. 6d. net.

By ANNA SEWELL. With 24 Pictures in Colour and many Line Drawings by LUCY KEMP-WELCH. Square Demy 8vo. 6s. net. Also a LIMITED LARGE PAPER EDITION, with 30 Pictures in Colour on tinted mounts, and many Line Drawings

The raison d'être of this book is the series of beautiful pictures and drawings by Lucy Kemp-Welch, who has now accomplished her long-wished-for desire to illustrate "Black Beauty." Her pictures are inspired by the almost human affection which she has for Black Beauty—indeed many of the studies for the character of Black Beauty are taken from her own black charger, presented to her by Baden-Powell.

BLACKWOODS' BOOKS

The Life of Field-Marshal Sir George White, V.C., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., G.C.I.E., O.M.

By the Rt. Hon. Sir MORTIMER DURAND, P.C., G.C.M.G. In two vols. Demy 8vo. Illustrated with Maps, Plans, and Portraits. 30s. net.

The Biography of "The Defender of Ladysmith" would be a work of the first importance among military chronicles, whatever might be the prevailing conditions at the time of its appearance.

The interest that it will arouse must certainly be heightened by the fact that we are now employing in a fight for national existence some of the lessons first taught us by the South African War.

My Police Court Friends with the Colours

By ROBERT HOLMES, a Police Court Missionary and Probation Officer. Cr. 8vo. 2s. net.

CONTENTS:—On Mine-Sweeping Trawlers—With the British Expeditionary Force—On Fleet Supply Boats—With the Canadian Contingent—On the Great Ships at Sea—With the Australian Forces—In the Mercantile Marine—With the Territorials—With the Royal Naval Division—With the New Armies—What All May Do—On Higher Service.

During the last seventeen years Mr. Holmes has visited 16,738 men and lads in their own homes, having followed them from the Police Court after prosecution for breaches of the law. Thanks to a variety of means of help put into operation for their benefit by numerous persons, most of these were stayed in their evil course at its beginning. A very large proportion of these men have regained their position in society, and, when war broke out, 1,267 of them answered the Nation's call.

In this book, which is a "human document" if ever there was one, Mr. Holmes places before their fellow-countrymen the brief biographies of seventy-two of these heroes.

The volume runs to 100,000 words, and would in the usual course be published at 10s. 6d. net, but the publishers think so well of it that they have decided to put it on the market at a price which brings it within the reach of all—2s. net.

Across Asia Minor on Foot

By W. J. CHILDS. Illustrated. Demy 8vo. 10s. 6d. net.

A book not only of great topical interest at the present time, but also of a literary and descriptive quality that suggests comparison with Kinglake. It describes the inhabitants and country of the ancient battlefields of classic times, where Turkey now fights for its last foothold in Europe. It contains over fifty illustrations.

Adventures of a Despatch Rider

By Capt. W. H. L. WATSON. Cr. 8vo. 6s.

The undoubted supremacy of "Blackwood's Magazine" in obtaining the best material in records of the War is now universally recognised. This book, which has appeared in the pages of the magazine, conveys the truest impression of the psychology of war in the guise of a most interesting account of the motor cycle despatch carrier's life.

The Rearguard

By SYDNEY C. GRIER. With Frontispiece in Colours by A. PEARSE. Cr. 8vo. 6s.

In the first pages of his story Sydney Grier puts in the mouth of one of his characters the motif of his new book. "The man goes on in front, and the lady is like the rearguard . . . she helps to keep him safe."

"The Rearguard" tells of how Gilbert Berringer acquired a kingdom over the seas and in the heart of a woman. It is a tale of the Great Adventure and the victory won by the devotion and self-sacrifice of the woman no less than by the strength and courage of the man. Sydney Grier's many readers will cordially welcome this book.

The Great Tab Dope

By "OLE LUK-OIE." Cr. 8vo. 6s.

It is sufficient to say of this book that it is by the author of "The Green Curve," who is now famous also as "Eye-Witness" at the British Expeditionary Force Headquarters. "The Great Tab Dope" is very like "The Green Curve," only more so. At his best the author "is above everything exciting. There are story-tellers who make us feel that something is going to happen. It is a rare gift; Mr. Kipling has it in 'The End of the Passage,' and 'Ole Luk-Oie' certainly has it in some impalpable way of his own."—Times.

Nicky-Nan, Reservist

By "Q" (Sir A. T. QUILLER-COUCH), Author of "Hooken and Hunken." Cr. 8vo. 6s.

In this story "Q" returns to the scene of his former triumphs, Cornwall and its quaint people and ways. To those who love their "Q"—and who does not?—"Nicky-Nan" will make an irresistible appeal.

The Thirty-Nine Steps

By JOHN BUCHAN. 1s. net.

As a real thrill—a tale of such breathless excitement as even to supersede the newspaper—"The Thirty-Nine Steps" can have few rivals.

NOTE.—The Famous Series of Articles entitled:—

"THE FIRST HUNDRED THOUSAND."

By "The Junior Sub," now appearing in BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE, will shortly be issued in book form at 6s. It has not as yet been found possible to fix a date for publication.

A Tale of Southern California

By SIDNEY HERBERT BURCHELL

Author of "My Lady of the Bass," "The Duke's Servants," "Prisoner of Carisbrooke," "Mistress of the Robes," &c.

EARLY PRESS NOTICES.

Daily Telegraph.—"This delightful old man . . . is a character worthy of Mark Twain, and the most efficacious relief from depression we have encountered for some time. . . . It is the genuine humour of this book which makes it stand out."

Pall Mall Gazette.—"One of the most amusing and engaging characters which any author has produced for some time."

Truth.—"An eminently satisfactory novel . . . so enthralling."

Morning Post.—"Mr. Burchell must know California and its people well to give them such an air of reality; their humour is delightful, and the whole atmosphere is refreshing and original."

Sunday Times.—"A triumph of character drawing."

Observer.—"Profoundly interesting."

Field.—"A well-told tale of Southern California, characterised by clever character drawing. . . . Incidentally, the reader learns a good deal about orange growing, and, sad to relate, the tricks of the trade; but the book is really entertaining."

Publishers' Circular

Special Notice to Book- sellers respecting the Publishers' Associa- tion's Christmas Illus- trated Catalogue, 1915

ORDERS for the Catalogue should be sent in without any delay, if copies are to be secured, to Mr. Poulten, Secretary of The Publishers' Association, Stationers' Hall Court, London, E.C. The printing will begin almost immediately, and the number to be printed will approximately coincide with the number ordered on the day of going to press. The Catalogue will not be reprinted. May we remind our readers that the price is 20s. per 100 copies, and that purchasers of 50 copies or more have their names and addresses inserted without charge on the cover.
 Every bookseller should secure a supply of this useful list. Already very large orders have been booked, and we are convinced that there will be considerable disappointment among those booksellers who do not send their orders at once;
 with all orders the name of the booksellers' agent should be clearly indicated. As already announced, to prevent needless book-keeping, the trade are requested kindly to send cash with their orders.
 From what we have seen we have no hesitation in saying that this will be the biggest thing of the kind ever done in our book trade. It is to be published early in November and the idea is that it is supplied at a nominal price to the booksellers to enable them to present it to people who are really likely to be interested—i.e., book-buyers—not given indiscriminately to people who want the pictures for their scrap albums.

It is naturally with much regret that in view of this Official Illustrated Christmas List—practically given away—we have had to suspend the publication of our Annual Illustrated Christmas Number.
 However, we are doing what we can to help to make this co-operative book-trade effort a success. Its object is to stimulate the public to buy more books and so assist the book trade at this time when our business is disturbed by the greatest world war since the Creator of this world said, "Let there be Light."

Our Announcement Number

We must admit that the book trade has been disturbed by the War; but the wonder is that it has not been destroyed by the War, and by the undreamed of burdens which have suddenly been thrust upon our Empire. Thanks to the greatest asset of the British people—its War Fleet—that superb steel-edged security which never deteriorates because it is always renewed, and is never so valuable as in war-time, and thanks to the martial spirit of our people which has so finely answered the call to arms from all the ends of the world; thanks to these things, our export of books to all but our enemies, still goes on, and after a year of war it is possible for our publishers to make the announcements of the hundreds of new books of which particulars are given in this issue of THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR—which has chronicled practically all the books published in peace time or war time almost since Waterloo.

Notes and Announcements

"IN THE HANDS OF THE ENEMY" is one of the books which Messrs. Longmans & Co. have in the press. The author is the Rev. B. G. O'Rorke, who went to the front as a chaplain on the outbreak of the War. He was attached to the 4th Field Ambulance, which was intended to accompany the 4th (Guards) Brigade, but was taken prisoner the very day it joined that unit at the battle of Landrecies.
 Mr. O'Rorke was captured while attending upon the wounded and burying the dead after that battle and remained for ten months in German hands, viz., three months at Torgau, six months at Burg, and one month at Magdeburg, and was given his liberty at the end of June when an exchange of medical officers was made.

Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart's story, entitled "K," which is running its serial course in the Cornhill Magazine, will be published in book form by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. on October 7th.

An unstereotyped appeal to organisers of education, to practical teachers, even to officials, is made by Mr. J. H. E.
 Crees, Head Master of the Crypt Grammar School, Gloucester, in a volume entitled "Didascalus Patiens: a Satire, a Medley, a Romance," which will be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. on October 14th. The primary object of the book is to contrast with the aims of our greatest teachers the lamentable effect of recent interference with Secondary Education, when accepted in exchange for "freeplacers" and an often illusory grant-in-aid.

"The Life of Gainsborough," by Mr.
 W. T. Whitley, which Messrs. Smith,
 Elder & Co. will publish on October 14th, is composed largely of new material. It contains fresh information concerning the painter's Ipswich, Bath and London periods, and gives for the first time the dates and occasional particulars of many of his pictures and portraits, including the "Mrs. Siddons," and "The Market Cart" at the National Gallery, and the "Mrs. Robinson" in the Wallace Collection. The story of Gainsborough's professional life in London, until now obscure, is told with considerable fulness, and new light is thrown upon the career of his nephew and pupil, Gainsborough Dupont.

With the publication of "Latin Literature," by Marcus Dimsdale, which Mr. Heinemann announces for October 7th, the publisher's well-known series, "Literature of the World," is brought to a completion. The series, which is edited by Mr. Edmund Gosse, now consists of fifteen volumes and includes short histories of all the principal nations of the world, written in every case by men qualified to speak with authority upon them.

"A Woman in the Sahara," by Miss Helen C. Gordon, which Mr. Heinemann will also publish on the 7th, is a delicately written study of Moslem life, especially of the life of the women of the harem, a subject of which we are bound to hear more in the near future when the Allies have planted their flags on Stamboul. The book is illustrated with a number of striking photographs.

Mrs. Humphry Ward has just completed a new novel, entitled "Eltham House," which will be published on October 15th by the House of Cassell. In her new volume Mrs. Humphry Ward brings us into an atmosphere of politics and in the elucidation of the story presents us with some vivid examples of political characterisation that are bound to intrigue the interest, not only of the fiction, but of the non-fiction reader. It is the story of a divorcee, who had married the heir of Lord Wing, and her efforts to assist socially in her husband's political ambitions.

Can a draper be a hero? Miss Elinor Mordaunt, whose latest novel, "The Rose of Youth," is just announced by the House of Cassell, answers that question in the affirmative, for Teddy Earp, its hero, gains for himself the nickname of Dionysius the Draper, and in "The Rose of Youth" his high spirits win through to the ultimate joy that lies in wait for him.

"Joan's Handful," a new novel by Miss Amy le Feuvre, is being published by the House of Cassell on October 7th.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree has a popular edition of his book, "Thoughts and After-thoughts," coming out with Messrs. Cassell immediately.

Messrs. Macmillan will publish immediately, under the title of "Church and Nation," a volume containing the Bishop Paddock Lectures for 1914-15, delivered by the Rev. William Temple, at the General Theological Seminary, New York. In the lectures Mr. Temple has attempted to think out afresh the underlying problems which for a Christian are fundamental in regard not only to this war but to war in general, namely, the place of Nationality in the scheme of Divine Providence and the duty of the Church in regard to the growth of nations.

Messrs. Macmillan will also publish immediately "Dogma, Fact, and Experience," by the Rev. A. E. J. Rawlinson. The volume consists of five essays, dealing with "Religion and Temperament," "Dogma and History," "The Resurrection and the Life," "Our Lord's View of the Future," and "Clerical Veracity."

A review of our farming problem from the point of view of the total food production possible under organized State effort will be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co., immediately under the title "The State as Farmer." The author of the work, Mr. George Radford, the Editor of Our Land, takes the commercial aspect of the question and shows that agricultural science is powerless under the deadly influences of ignorance and our present landlord system. It is not an epoch-making book, but the policy it urges would be epoch-making if it were carried out.

Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co., will publish on the 7th October a volume by Mr. Arthur Christopher Benson, entitled "Escape, and Other Essays." The author had some searchings of heart as to the seaminess of unfolding an old picture of peace before the eyes of those who have had to look into chaos and destruction, but he believes it is right and wholesome to do this because the most treacherous and cowardly thing we can do is to disbelieve in life. These old dreams and visions were true enough, and they represent the real life to which we must try to return.

In the September number of the Munsey Magazine is given the first half of Arnold Bennett's new novel, "These Twain," which is the third of the series portraying the life of Edwin Clayhanger and Hilda Lessways. It was the editor's intention to present the whole of this novel in the September number, but owing to its great length it has been necessary to divide it, the first half appearing in the September number, just issued, and the remainder in the October number. The Munsey contains other interesting features, including coloured War maps, and the new issue constitutes a remarkable literary sixpennyworth.

Our readers, booksellers at home and abroad, should make a note for the benefit of their readers who like humorous papers, of the American weekly Life, published in England at the office, Roll's House, Breems Buildings, London, E.C. It is well edited, well illustrated, well printed, and no neutral journal has expressed its feelings about the various manifestations of German "Kultur" more outspokenly than Life, both in picture and print. There is often very amusing fun in Life, though of course only Americans can appreciate some of the local colour.

In Notes and Queries for September 25th, 1915, there is a most interesting account of the history of Nelson Memorial Rings, which were made, shortly after the Admiral's funeral, for relatives and friends, by John Salter, a Strand silversmith who had long served Nelson. "F. H. S.," who writes about them, asks if others can give interesting histories of these memorials of the hero of Trafalgar. In his will Isaac Walton bequeathed several memorial rings, and it would also be interesting to know if any are in existence.

Messrs. Barnicott & Pearce, of the Wessex Press, Taunton, announce that they have in preparation a handbook which is intended for all grades of the banking profession. It is entitled "The A B C of Banking," by "L. S. D." A portion of the book is intended to assist young bank officials; and points helpful to sub-managers, and newly appointed managers are also dealt with. Among the subjects treated are "Banks and the War Loan."

During October Mr. Herbert Jenkins will publish an anonymous volume of reminiscences entitled "Up and Down the World." Under the pseudonym of "A Passionate Pilgrim" is disguised the personality of a Scotswoman who is known as the writer of charming books. Her recollections possess a quiet, old-world charm, particularly those dealing with the narrow Scotch atmosphere in which she was brought up.

Just before the War, Lord Dunsany discovered in an Irish peasant a new poet, Francis Ledwidge, who had been a farm-labourer and later a scavenger of the roads of his native County Meath. In his introduction to "Songs of the Fields," Francis Ledwidge's first volume, which Mr. Herbert Jenkins will publish next month, Lord Dunsany writes:—"If a star has arisen where I have so long looked for one, amongst the Irish peasants, it can be little more than a secret that I shall share with those who read this book because they care for poetry."

We have all heard with regret of the death of Lieut. H. Ommundsen, H.A.C., killed in action "somewhere in Flanders," on Monday last. Ommundsen was one of the best rifle shots in the British Empire, and one of the best "rapid" shots in the world. When War broke out Ommundsen was on the way to South Africa with his wife, but came back directly he heard the call and up to the time when he went to Flanders a month or so ago put in most useful work in training men in rifle shooting and bomb throwing. His work, "Rifles and Ammunition," which was published last July by Messrs. Cassell, has been hailed by the Press as the standard work on the subject.

The Pilgrim Press announce the forthcoming publication of a new illustrated work by Mr. W. P. Westell, F.L.S., entitled, "Nature's Wonderland."

On October 5th, Mr. John Lane will publish "Is There a Shakespeare Problem?" by G. G. Greenwood, M.P., author of "The Shakespeare Problem Re-stated." The author contends that there is scope for further research, further investigation, and further consideration before the question be dismissed from the minds of thinking men as the mere craze of fanatics. Meanwhile he tenders the present work in the hope that it will be found a useful contribution to the discussion of a most fascinating literary problem.

Messrs. Jack announce the issue of a new edition of "The Book of Public Arms" which was originally published twenty years ago. It has been very greatly enlarged and the text has been entirely re-written. The new edition contains no fewer than 1,300 new illustrations, including arms of counties, towns, universities, schools, episcopal sees, corporate bodies, colonies, foreign cities, &c.

Mr. Frank Harris has been the friend of many of the striking personalities of recent times. The result of many of these friendships is to be found in "Contemporary Portraits" which Messrs. Methuen announce for issue.

Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons will publish shortly a beautiful book for anglers entitled, "Trout Fly-Fishing in America," by Charles Zibeon Southard. The author has written this book for those who are experienced anglers and for those who would gain some knowledge of the art. He gives a classification of all the species of trout found in American waters, and his valuable and reliable hints as to the best equipment, and the handling of the rod, the reel, the line, the leader, and the fly, are based upon more than 25 years' study of the habits of trout and the best ways of catching them. The book will contain 20 coloured plates of the many different species, and other illustrations by H. H. Leonard.

An interesting book on the interior of Madagascar, its peoples, fauna and flora, will shortly be published by Messrs. Seeley, Service & Co. The author, James Sibree, LL.D., F.R.G.S., has spent a lifetime in the island in close association with the natives, and has devoted much attention and research to their history and custom, and to the natural history of the land. There are many unique illustrations.

The same firm will also publish a most interesting book on the Haidas of Queen Charlotte Islands, and the Indian tribe on the Pacific Coast of North America. The book is entitled "In the Wake of the War Canoe" and is by Archdeacon Collison. It is an account of a strenuous and adventurous life. There are many illustrations.

Messrs. Macmillan published on October 1st a work entitled "The Ibex of Shā-Ping, and other Himalayan Studies," by Mr. L. B. Rundall, a lieutenant of the 1st Gurkha Rifles who was recently killed in action. Lieutenant Rundall was a most enthusiastic sportsman and the stories which he relates are mainly drawn from his own experience; while the remainder he received direct from the lips of other shikaris. He has acted as illustrator to his own work, providing a number of pen and ink sketches and coloured plates which form a very delightful accompaniment to the letter-press.

On the same date Messrs. Macmillan will also issue "An Untamed Territory: The Northern Territory of Australia," by Miss Elsie R. Masson. The narrative can scarcely fail to please the reader to whom works of travel make any appeal, for this portion of the continent is not well known, and is full of a strange fascination, on account of the romance of the life and the varied elements that compose it—the crude beginnings of white man's civilisation, the savage state of the Stone Age aboriginal, and, foreign to both, the peculiar flavour of the East. A number of very interesting illustrations give additional attractiveness to the volume.

The Society of SS. Peter and Paul is publishing a new edition of the English Prayer Book, containing only just what is actually wanted by church-goers: Matins, Evensong, the Communion, and the Psalter. The book is beautifully printed on "Japon" vellum; and is illustrated by woodcuts, specially engraved by Mr. W. R. Quick. The first edition, which appears in four bindings, is limited to 600 copies, so that there is a possibility of copies becoming scarce.

The French Book Trade and the War

Mort au champ d'honneur
Pierre Lethielleux

Nous avons le regret d'apprendre le décès de M. Pierre Lethielleux, caporal au 82e régiment d'infanterie, mort glorieusement, le 1er septembre, à l'âge de vingt et un ans.

Fils aîné de notre confrère M. Paul Lethielleux, il avait été l'objet d'une citation à l'ordre du jour.

Nous adressons à sa famille l'expression de nos sentiments de bien sympathique condoléance.—Bibliographie de la France, September 24, 1915.

The Book Trade and the War

THE British Book Trade will compare very favourably with other trades in regard to the number of men it has supplied to the Colours. Messrs. C. Arthur Pearson, Ltd., for instance, have a list which contains from thirty to forty names. This includes Mr. C. Vivian, the editor of the Novel Magazine, who acts as a motor driver in the A.S.C. and Mr. E. R. Dean, the art editor of the Pearson publications, who is in the motor transport section also.

From the ranks of Pearson's staff of artists have gone Reginald Smith, who is in the Empire Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers; J. Hargrave, who acts as corporal in the R.A.M.C., and G. Thompson, who is attached to the King's Royal Rifles. Other members of the editorial staff who are serving with the Colours, include J. Hoole of the 16th Royal Fusiliers and S. W. Mattingly, who is in the Sportsmen's Battalion. Two of the directors also have sons who are doing their bit—V. Everett, the only son of Mr. P. W. Everett, the editorial manager, who has joined the Royal Navy and now serves as a midshipman on H.M.S. Lion, and J. M. Bathgate, the son of Mr. J. M. Bathgate, the business manager, who is in the H.A.C.

The proposed Tax on Postage

WE are glad to be able to state that the Associated Booksellers of Great Britain and Ireland and the International Association of Antiquarian Booksellers have sent a protest to the Chancellor of the Exchequer against the proposed abolition of the half-penny postal rate. In fact, all those who will be seriously affected by the proposed tax are appealing against it; and it is to be hoped Mr. McKenna will be convinced that it will do more harm than good to put such a burden on business as a 100 per cent. tax on postage.

Of course, a strong protest is also being made by the Institute of Journalists, on behalf of many hundreds of trade and other journals.

"The Help of the Nations"

The 116th Annual Report of the Religious Tract Society

"BORN in war-time, nourished and brought up during the long years of the struggle against Napoleon, it can hardly be said that the Religious Tract Society has never faced a year so anxious as that through which it has now passed. There have been times when the Society's Committee was confronted with problems as serious and with circumstances quite as full of peril to the Society as any that 1914-15 produced. But never since 1815 has it seen the nation confronted with the necessity of fighting for its very existence."

This report of the Society shows that the R.T.S. has been as active as ever in carrying out its original objects, which were "to publish and distribute Religious Tracts and Books at Home and Abroad." This is not a mere dry "Report," it is enlivened by over thirty reproductions of photographs, many of them showing the work of the Society in connection with our Army and Navy at home and abroad. The income of the Society for 1914-15 was £11,694 12s. 5d., and the expenditure was £14,141 15s. 8d. But the R.T.S. has over £50,000 in sound investments, as well as valuable leasehold property, so it can look into the future in the same spirit of quiet and confident faith which animated its Committee in the days of the great Napoleon. In their report issued in the year of Waterloo, but before it was won, the Committee took comfort in recalling the power of God: "Who doeth according to His will in the Army of Heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth."

The Cornhill Magazine for October

It is fine to see the old favourites like Cornhill, Blackwood, The Nineteenth Century, and the other monthlies coming out as usual, keeping schedule time, as our American friends say, in spite of the greatest international war since the world was. Here is the Cornhill menu for October:—

Strasbourg: an Episode of the Franco-German War. By Paul and Victor Margueritte.

A Frenchwoman's Letter Bag. By Lady Ritchie and Hester Ritchie.

Between the Lines. V. A Hymn of Hate. By Boyd Cable.

The Unprotected Common Seal. By H. Hesketh Prichard.

By Pilgrim Roads to Babylon. By William Warfield.

Rebellion in the Free State. By Mary Byron.

Cheating Loveday. By Douglas G. Browne.

New Rural Rides.—Northumberland. By Algernon Gissing.

The Campaign of Agincourt. By the Rt. Hon. Sir Herbert Maxwell, Bart.

"K." By Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Mr. Wm. Warfield's description of his ride from Bagdad to the ruins of Babylon and what he saw there is most interesting. Babylon with its hanging gardens has a fascinating history due greatly to its mystery. Its sun-baked bricks are the only literary remains likely to be found by excavators.

"The splendour of wealth, the pride of empire, have vanished; the palaces and temples have fallen to shapeless mounds, but still the names remain, stamped in strange characters in many languages, upon innumerable bricks: 'I am Hammurabi, I reared this temple'; 'I am Nebuchadnezzar, I built this palace'; 'I am Darius, this glory is mine'; 'I am Alexander, mine is the conquest.'"

At this moment, when the greatest empires ever known are at death-grips, it is with far from the ordinary feeling of normal interest that one reads of this visit to the remains of the great city that was—Babylon, by whose irrigating streams, stolen from the Euphrates, the captive Israelites hung their harps on the willows and wept. Is it not curious that this visitor from the West should find at Babylon a little group of foreigners settled there—a few Germans and a few English. The German Professor Koldeyew told Mr. Warfield he had been there seven years working at one of Babylon's mounds of ruin. He said he would need as many more years to finish the single mound! The other foreigner was an English engineer who is putting a huge barrage across the channel of the great river Euphrates. We wish we had space to quote more. Mr. Warfield says: "... and even as I write the waters are beginning to flow again towards Babylon the Great." Sir Herbert Maxwell's article on Agincourt is fine inspiring reading; and so, also, is Mary Byron's chapter on "Rebellion in the Free State." We wish all in this country could read it.

"The Angel"

AMONG the many fine stories of the heroism of nurses and doctors at the Front, told in the October Sunday at Home, is the following: The narrator says that "it was a giant Ulster trooper who told me more about her. Said he:—

"Who is she? Heaven knows her name! But she's one of a grand lot working here as nurses. She's only a lassie, eh; but when many of us were gassed, and nearly done for, being as heavy as sacks of potatoes, when helpers were short, as so many of us had to be fetch'd, she stood to her guns amid the awful sights and did her very best! She carried McIlroy there to the ambulance; she worked like a Trojan; one poor chap actually died in her arms as she was carrying him! For weeks she's been going backwards and forwards night after night, through awful areas of 'gas,' and one time she never closed an eye for thirty-six hours! Her hands were bruised and bleeding, I saw them myself. And when she brought the last load to the hospital in the car, they tell me she tumbled down where she stood, that tired she was!

"Her name and where she comes from? I don't know! We chaps here just call her 'The Angel,' and leave it at that."

Books and the War

Latest News from The Bodleian

IN Mr. John Lane's bright little journal of books at the Bodley Head, The Bodleian for September, we find the following interesting notes:—

M. Pierre Mille, author of "Barnavaux," &c., who, with several other distinguished Frenchmen has just concluded a visit to the British Fleet, relating his impressions in the Temps, says:—

"It is not enough to say that the British naval strength is formidable. It is invincible, owing to its position and the number and power of its units. The British Fleet is mistress of the seas, and will remain so. Of this, it is impossible to entertain any shadow of doubt."

Speaking of German submarine warfare, M. Mille says:—

"The British have sunk so many submarines that it would seem that they only desire a continuance of submarine activity. They attribute Germany's conciliatory attitude towards America to a desire for finding an elegant pretext for abandoning this mode of warfare. Two years are necessary for training an efficient submarine crew. The German losses are so great and irreparable that sailors taken for submarine work become so terrified that, in spite of their habits of passive obedience, they refuse to embark on submarines. The German Government have, therefore, adopted the subterfuge of asking for volunteers for Zeppelins, which are considered less dangerous service. The trick cannot fail soon to be discovered by interested parties, and then recruiting for Zeppelins will also be difficult."

Since the appearance of our "Impressions" in The Bodleian for August, on the subject of books as necessities at the present time, the subject has been very widely taken up by the Press.

The following is a quotation from an article by Mr. H. F. Prevost Battersley, the Morning Post's correspondent at British Headquarters in France:—

MORE BOOKS WANTED AT THE FRONT.

"The public, at home, I am told, have not been sending out as many books and newspapers to the Front as they did some time ago, and an increased supply would be welcome. And, after all, this plea should appeal to us not only on the grounds of gratitude and admiration, but also of common sense. The soldier must be considered not merely as the soldier he now is, but also as the civilian worker he will become again at the end of the War. It is in the highest interests of the nation that every soldier should be kept as happy and bright-minded as gifts from home can make him. For the day must come when this parish pump War will end, and we shall again have that open warfare of movement and large operations which is the soldier's ideal."

Some days ago the Daily Mirror published the following interview with "a representative of Mr. John Lane, the Vigo Street publisher":—

TIRED OF WAR NOVELS. READING PUBLIC DEMANDING DETECTIVE STORIES. DISLIKE FOR TRAGEDY.

These are puzzling times for the novelist. "What shall I write, what do the public want to read in these stirring, anxious days?" is the question every author asks himself or herself.

Yesterday the Daily Mirror interviewed several publishers and booksellers on this question. They all agreed that the public want books and novels, but they must be of a certain kind. Light fiction, poetry and detective stories are in great demand.

A representative of Mr. John Lane, the Vigo Street publisher, said that books were selling remarkably well considering the War.

"I think personally the public are growing a little tired of War novels," he said.

"A good, enthralling detective story is an excellent 'seller' just now.

"It is hardly my province to advise the novelist what to write about—I couldn't if I tried. But I should certainly advise him to avoid tragic stories."

Mr. Ford Madox Hueffer, author of "The Good Soldier," who, in collaboration with "Miss Violet Hunt," has written a new book, happily christened "Zeppelin Nights," which will very shortly be published by the Bodley Head, has been gazetted as Second Lieutenant in the 3rd Battalion of the Welsh Regiment, now stationed at Cardiff.

By the way, when Mr. E. A. Cox was painting his picture for the wrapper of "Zeppelin Nights," a real live Zeppelin came and posed for him, so he painted it from life, while it was distributing death. The portrait is excellent, and there should be no difficulty in identifying the culprit when the War is over.

The deficit of the International Exhibition of Graphic Arts and Book Industries at Leipzig, 1914

THE International Exhibition of Book Industries and Graphic Arts was organised for the purpose of celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Royal Academy for Graphic Arts and Book Industries at Leipzig.

It was a great and well-planned scheme, which met with great encouragement from the German Government, the State of Saxony and the city of Leipzig, and nearly every Government of all civilised countries participated in this Exhibition. Among those who did great work for the English section were Mr. E. Wybore Smith, Mr. William Heinemann, Mr. Joseph Pennell, Sir Sidney Lee, Mr. Arthur Rackham, and Mr. Emery Walker.

The financial result of this Exhibition has only just been published in Germany. It was inevitable that there would be a large deficit, as the War so suddenly terminated the Exhibition. The complete deficit amounts to 1,953,000 Marks (£97,650). The State of Saxony, however, contributed 200,000 Marks (£10,000), and the city of Leipzig another 200,000 Marks (£10,000). These two amounts deducted show us that the loss is 1,553,000 Marks (£77,650). The leading German publishers, printers, binders and others in the book industry circle, subscribed towards the "Guarantee Fund" the sum of 1,270,000 Marks (£63,500), but even if this guarantee fund were paid in there would still be 283,000 Marks (£14,150) missing.

Military Curios

FOR centuries past the collecting of military curios has been the pastime of men of title and soldiers of rank. Lately, however, owing to the War and the great spread of interest in all things pertaining to it, the circle of collectors has considerably widened until to-day few things are more treasured than the thousand and one souvenirs and emblems which emanate from our Army.

"Chats on Military Curios," a volume by Dr. Stanley C. Johnson, published by Mr. Unwin, has been written specially for this growing circle of collectors. The subject has been treated in a generous manner, for there are chapters dealing not only with badges, medals, decorations, uniforms, and weapons, but also with armour, military medallions, military prints, military brasses, autographs of great soldiers, war postage stamps, war money, curios made by prisoners of war, &c. The illustrations form a pleasing feature of the work. They depict a wide range of subjects, including such varied treasures as the Lucknow medal, a set of dominoes made by prisoners taken during the Napoleonic Wars, a Prussian helmet picked up on a recent battlefield, Princess Mary's Christmas box, the gun money of James II, and Cruikshank caricatures of Napoleon.

The Commercial Traveller on the road*

Railway tickets and Hotels

THERE are all sorts of ways and means by which a commercial traveller may arrange for his transportation, transfer of baggage, &c., that differ in almost every State of the Union, and for which no lasting rule can be laid down. In the days gone by, a traveller was able to save considerable money if he knew a friendly scalper; but his chances through this channel are now so slim that, as a rule, those who are obliged to travel "on time" must be content to use the thousand-mile tickets issued by the railway companies, or the so-called "Higbee ticket," good for five thousand miles over different lines of roads, enabling the traveller on one ticket to go from any point to any point. The passenger pays full rate for his ticket, supplied with coupons which, in most cases, he must sign in the presence of the conductor every time he boards a train. These coupons, when cancelled, are awarded a rebate by the company issuing the ticket at the rate of ten dollars each thousand miles. While this system involves a certain amount of red tape, it nevertheless saves time in making trains in a rush and during crowded hours.

As to hotels, it is safe to say the best is none too good—not so much from the viewpoint of personal comfort as for the tone it lends to the house the traveller represents. In this respect, however, it may be necessary to compromise with one's dignity and resort to the next best; yet, unless it be "Hobson's choice," that is, if there be only one hotel in the town, it is never wise to put up at what is drastically referred to as a "cheap-and-nasty." In most hotels, arrangements may be made for show rooms, so that the traveller is enabled during a stay of several weeks to display his line undisturbed and "room" in another part of the hotel. It is perhaps superfluous to note in this connection that quarters at a hotel should be bespoken on the European plan, and that the "greenhorn" may ask of the clerk at what rates he is being entertained. False modesty in this particular might become expensive, inasmuch as travellers are usually entitled to a favoured rate.

When stopping at "Commercials," that is, hotels frequented by commercial travellers, the young traveller, as well as the veteran, often finds opportunities that are offered nowhere else of coming into the closest touch with his colleagues. Indeed, in this way friendships are formed that endure a lifetime. And for this reason we would caution the novice against a too hasty judging of his new-found brethren and against stilted stiffness and cold formality. Among the commercial travellers there are wide divergences of characteristics; there necessarily must be such. Some members of the brotherhood shiver and shudder at the freedom of conversation sometimes carried on by its members after the labours of the day have ceased—men who have no appreciation of humour or wit—to whom the humour of a Sheridan, a Curran, Theodore Hook, Thomas Hood, or the well-known anecdotes of Dr. Abernethy and others, are as a foreign tongue, and associated with distasteful ideas and misunderstood lives. As in the outer world, so in the inner and smaller world of the fraternity of commercial travellers will be found representatives of narrow views, and well-meant but misplaced judgment of the acts and doings of those around them. If an individual does not smoke, there is no necessity for his giving statistics to prove that the money spent for tobacco might do much more good if spent in other directions, which may or may not be true. It all depends upon the point of view. The total abstainer—a good man, and one who often does a great deal of good work—need not be a bore to his fellow travellers. In many cases much good has been done by personal example in right living. But it is dangerous to set up an "Ebenezer" for one's fellow men, in season and out of season. There is danger, as we have said, of such a man becoming a bore; and a bore, no matter how good his intention may be, is a nuisance not tolerated in any company.

Packing and leaving Home

After making up his route, the traveller turns his attention to packing the samples which he has selected with great care and judgment. In the end he will find that his eyes have been larger than the capacity of his trunks, and that discrimination is needed to get all within the available compass. Books must be packed solidly, and, after labouring for some time, it will often be found that room must be made for still other books that are needed. It may be necessary to pack and repack the trunk several times before all that is needed can be included, and often it may be necessary to carry one or two books in a grip or in the hand. After the traveller has actually started, it may take a week or longer to discover just how his samples may be most advantageously stowed away. After that the work of unpacking and packing becomes a mere matter of routine.

At last the time comes for leaving home—for every conscientious man the most trying period of all his work. He passes out to face possible dangers, accidents, sickness and privations, leaving his lonely family day by day anxiously watching his route. In some respects the family left behind by the traveller bears the harder portion of the separation. The traveller is kept busy all the time; he meets many old friends and forms new acquaintances who often smooth the way for him; whereas those he has left at home miss the companionship of the absent one, and are in daily dread of bad news. Of course, the traveller often must endure lonely hours at large hotels and elsewhere en route when, overwhelmed for the time with defeats or bodily ailments, he cannot come into touch with a kindred spirit with whom to exchange confidences. Yet new places and faces help him over the rough places, while those he leaves behind must meet their difficulties under the old surroundings, deprived of the counsel and aid of their breadwinner abroad.—N.Y. Publishers' Weekly.

The biography of "Diamond Pitt"

MR. C. F. CLAY, manager of the Cambridge University Press, is to be congratulated on the excellent Index provided with that handsome volume, just published by him, entitled "The Life of Thomas Pitt," by Sir Cornelius Neale Dalton, K.C.M.G. This particular Thomas Pitt was the grandfather of the great William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, and was born in the same year as Walton's "Compleat Angler," 1653; he lived until 1726, and undoubtedly did much more towards the building up of our Indian Empire than he has had credit for until Sir C. N. Dalton took him in hand. We are particularly pleased to find Sir Cornelius has no difficulty in proving the charges made against Pitt by the German historian, Von Ruville, to be at least greatly exaggerated. That writer, in his "Life of Chatham," accused Pitt of being "corrupt," and "a miser in the worst sense of the word," and said that his famous diamond "dominated his every thought and action" for fifteen years. There is no doubt that Pitt had a bit of a mania for collecting diamonds, and the history of his campaign to obtain the great Pitt Diamond, the worry it was to him for fifteen years, when he was always afraid it would be stolen and nobody was rich enough to buy it, is not by any means the least interesting part of this interesting biography. Eventually he sold it to the French Regent for £40,000 in cash and a priceless lot of French State jewels. Among the subsequent tenants of the Pitt Diamond were Louis XV, the Emperor Napoleon, Marie Louise, Louis XVIII, and it is now held by the French Government and doubtless accompanied them in their excursion to Bordeaux last year. This biography will interest all who like to see how our Empire in Asia was built up.

On page 529 is the following:—"It may be a shock to some of the lovers of 'Esmond' to find from this very circumstantial account that the Duke of Hamilton, so far from being a widower and engaged to marry Beatrix Esmond, at the time of his death had a wife of his own, of whom Swift writes on the following day in his Journal."

"They waited for news of the War"

"THEY waited for news of the War, just as men and women had waited there in by-gone centuries for news of by-gone wars, of Cressy, of Agincourt, of the Great Armada, of Malplaquet and Ramillies, of Sedgemoor, of Trafalgar and Vittoria, and Waterloo, of the Alma, of the Mutiny, of Pretoria. If the stones of that market-place could speak!" This extract is from the "Field of Honour," by H. Fielding-Hall, recently published by Messrs. Constable—a vivid picture of life in the war-time of to-day in "one of the oldest villages in the oldest part of England—the West Country where Arthur lived." It is not without a strange feeling that in passing through one of these numberless charming old-world English villages, one sees on the end of a thatched barn, which thrusts out into the straggling main street, a weather beaten tattered poster, which, in the name of the King, gave the call to arms twelve months ago last August. This little volume may be described as the sequel to that bill. Its chapter titles indicate this: I. "The Call and the Answer"; II. "How Bradford Rejoined his Regiment"; III. "The Bell-Ringer"; IV. "From Father to Son"; V. "Handiah"; VI. "The Field of Honour."

In Sir Herbert Maxwell's account of the campaign of Agincourt in the October Cornhill we are reminded that there still exists in Westminster Abbey the very helmet worn by King Henry V, most inspiring of monarchs, in that famous battle immortalized by Shakespeare—the helmet still shows the dent made in it by the axe of the Duc d'Alencon; it was too honourable a dent to repair. It is just five centuries since that dent was made; this little book helps to show how last week-end our men made that victorious dent in the Kaiser's armour.

From the German Borsenblatt

In a recent number of the German booksellers' official paper, Borsenblatt, the characteristic letter, quoted below, appears. Mr. H. Welter, is a second-hand bookseller and publisher in Paris, and was born in Germany and naturalised in France. When the war broke out he fled to Holland (!) from where he is trying to make friends with the booksellers in Germany:—

"The Borsenblatt, No. 159, announce the sequestration of the stock at Leipzig of two English houses and of one French house. That is a good beginning; but it is not necessary to stop there. For us, German booksellers in France, it is long since our commercial houses, our private houses—in fact the whole of our possessions have been confiscated.

"My book-store, for instance, has been perquisitioned and left in disorder, my two cash-boxes have been broken, my private residence has been ransacked from top to bottom for eight days and occupied by twenty-five gendarmes. My iron safe in the basement of the 'Comptoir d'Escompte,' containing stock and shares to the value of a million and a half of francs, has been forced open and emptied. My German colleagues in France and in England, I understand, have had the same experience. At least twenty-five French firms and as many English, which could be verified from the Booksellers' Directory ('Adressbuch des Deutschen Buchhandels'), have in Leipzig, at their agents, stock of books or money in cash to their credit. Some of them have published some malicious publications against Germany, other even have at the same time, as retailers, engagements to settle vis-a-vis the German publishers.

"I trust, therefore, that the Office of 'Börsenverein' will take steps to see that all goods and money belonging to these enemies' firms are confiscated!

H. WELTER (Paris),

Henry Purcell in France of to-day

IN looking through the list of new French publications in Bibliographie de la France, for September 25, 1915, we were much surprised to find the name of the famous English composer of Izaak Walton's day (Henry Purcell)—Walton quite possibly knew him as a lad—mentioned no less than twelve times. Here are the first two items:—

PURCELL (Henry).—A Cloé. Que m'importe toute gloire. Paroles françaises, d'après le texte primitif, revu et nuancé, par A. L. Hettich. Musique de Henry Purcell. (1658-1695.) Chant et piano (voix moyennes). 1 fr. 25. Paris, Rouart, Lerolle et Cie. [962

PURCELL (Henry).—A la Grande-Bretagne. Verte et Fraîche. Paroles françaises, d'après le texte primitif, revu et nuancé, par A. L. Hettich. Musique de Henry Purcell. (1658-1695.) Chant et piano (voix moyennes). 1 fr. 50. Paris, Rouart, Lerolle et Cie. [963

It would appear that Messrs. Rouart, Lerolle et Cie. are doing a complete French edition of Purcell's works at less than 2s. per vol; 1 fr. 75 seems to be the highest price. From the long list of new books given in each number of the Bibliographie, one would hardly suppose that perhaps two million German soldiers are on French and Belgian soil.

This French edition of Purcell is obviously another expression of l'entente cordiale; it is much more than an entente now—l'amitié cordiale, in fact—since so much of our best blood has been given to drive back the inhuman invaders of France.

"The Artistic Anatomy of Trees"

TWICE welcome in such times as these is a handsome volume on "The Artistic Anatomy of Trees" such as that by Rex Vicat Cole which has just been published by Messrs. Seeley, Service & Co., especially as it contains over four hundred illustrations. It is an examination in every direction of everything connected with trees from the artist's point of view. Not the least interesting—in fact the most interesting—of the illustrations are those showing how trees were treated by the great masters of painting. This section might well be issued separately; so far as we are aware, it has not been done previously.

Trees are usually studied from two distinct points of view—that of the artist and that of the botanist. The author of "The Artistic Anatomy of Trees," equipped with an intimate practical and theoretical knowledge of his subject, has given distinction to his work by the unusual treatment of taking these two studies together. He tells us how and why an artist finds in trees such various powers to charm, and illustrates this with examples from the masters of landscape painting. He is not content merely to describe the chief features of each species, but shows how these result from the different manner in which they grow.

His plan of grouping together those trees which conform to one habit (instead of describing each separately) is not only original but is most useful. Mr. Rex Vicat Cole is himself a landscape painter as well as a teacher of art, and art students and lovers of pictures and nature will find in this volume a very complete study of the subject of trees crowded with a wealth of charming and accurate drawings, each illustrating some point dealt with in the text.

In addition to artists, the book will be most useful to all who require to bring illustrations of tree life from the bud to the full tree into their designs—including decorators of all kinds.

The original Optimist

ROBINSON CRUSOE was the original optimist. Times looked bad for Robinson—couldn't have looked much worse. But he didn't say, "What's the use?" Didn't lie down, whimper, kick, and growl at destiny.

No, Crusoe used his head; he thought, then he thought some more—real serious line of thinking. Just what to do was the puzzle Crusoe was solving. Finally it came to him in a flash. "I have it," said Robinson, "I'll advertise."

A thousand miles from nowhere—a possible buyer coming within reading distance of his ad. every few years; that was Robinson's outlook. It was hard times—a business depression, a stringent money market; also, there was the War.

But Crusoe, as before mentioned, was an optimist, also a believer in persistent advertising.

He wanted a ship. How would he get it? Answer: "Advertise." And he did; flung out a shirt from the top of a pole;

The first advertisement brought no returns.

But Crusoe wasn't discouraged. He changed the "copy"—put up another shirt. Yes, times were hard—awful hard. But Crusoe won out—he got his ship; and he did it by persistent advertising. Crusoe was the original optimist.

The moral that Crusoe passes along is that, if you don't liven up your window-dressing, passers-by are apt to—pass.—Cassell's Book Talk.

The great Prophecy

LECTURING on the war at Harrogate on Monday, September 27th, 1915, Colonel F. N. Maude, C.B., said the victories reported during the week-end were events for which we had been waiting for months, and those who knew had been able to watch the preparation made for them. The Carmelite Press was already beginning to warn the people not to raise their hopes too high, and to minimise as far as possible the results obtained.

Though it was inevitable that there would be checks in the progress of the Allies, there was no reason for pessimism. The amount of ground gained on a front of 500 miles did not appear much, but to those who had watched the movement growing it was certain that the French had made up their minds to break the first line of resistance once and for all, and to follow the Germans back for a considerable distance. He hoped and expected that they would at least reach the Rhine in the course of the next three weeks or a month.

It was a victory for the Allies' principles of strategy as against the different principles of the Germans, and it was evident that the French Headquarters Staff had decided that Germany was approaching the end of her real reserves.

The above report from the Daily News of September 28th, 1915.

The Standard of September 28th, 1915, says: "Colonel Maude, the well-known military expert, lecturing at Brighton on Sunday night, referring to the Allies' victories, said there was now every probability that the Allies would be able to drive the Germans steadily back on the Western front and with reasonable luck they should have them against the Rhine within two months."

Apparently, when the Colonel was lecturing at Brighton on Sunday he had not heard of the full extent of the victories by the Allies, and so when he spoke on Monday he was more optimistic than ever.

It will be interesting to watch the result of Colonel Maude's great prophecy; some of us will be well satisfied if the Germans are singing "Back on the Rhine" instead of "Die Wacht am Rhein" by Christmas.

A new War Map of Europe

MESSRS. W. & A. K. JOHNSTON have brought out at 6d. the best general War Map of Europe that we have seen; it is fully coloured, and shows the whole of the War areas. It is not too large, but just large enough—3 feet wide by 2½ feet deep.

"Is the Poet a pessimist?"

MR. STEPHEN PHILLIPS, editor of The Poetry Review, in its interesting issue for September-October, has an article in which he endeavours to show that "the bulk of really great poetry has been in all ages pessimistic." He even goes so far as to claim that "the man called Shakespeare, so far from being the breezy, glad-hearted optimist he is generally supposed to be, was in reality a profound pessimist." He adds: "I may have overstated the case, but that case needed stating; for I am still convinced that the real mind of the man called William Shakespeare was disposed to the dark rather than the bright explanation of the facts of mortal life. 'Pessimist' is a detestable word; it is neither euphonious nor is it adequate, but, roughly speaking, one may take it that the pessimist sees behind the screen of events a force which is on the whole disastrous to the human race rather than beneficial."

It seems to us that Mr. Phillips, in writing as he does, is helping to undermine the value and position of real poetry, which is one of humanity's greatest assets. Millions have been nerved and encouraged to fight on successfully, when all seemed hopeless; by the remembrance of some answer to the signal of distress which, flung into the æther by some poet, responds instantly to the call with its hope-inspiring, its heartening message. Mr. Phillips might claim Dante as a profound pessimist with good reason—his face seems fixed on the eternal sunset—but Shakespeare, through storm and tempest, looks ever with serene gaze on the eternal sunrise. Shakespeare—why does Mr. Phillips call him "the man called William Shakespeare"?—Shakespeare had such a boundless and many-sided intellect that the books on "Shakespeare as" this, that, or the other would make a good library. No other human ever left such encouraging messages for his countrymen for all time—and they are for all, the greatest as well as the least. Nelson, in the great hour when he and his country were called upon for their utmost endeavour, when victory was never so necessary, Nelson braced himself by recalling Shakespeare's inspiring words. Shakespeare felt profoundly the shadows and darkness as well as the light of life, but if no poets are more "profoundly pessimistic" than he was, the human race need not despair. It has far more right to despair at the shouts of applause given to so much of the new poetry so called—stuff which is at once formless and void.

The Art Annual, 1915

The Art Annual, 1915, published by Messrs. Virtue & Co., is devoted to the life and work of the great painter of Venetian scenes; Mr. Henry Woods, R.A. The whole production will be of remarkable interest, with beautiful illustrations and Mr. Greig's descriptive essay. There will be about fifty reproductions of pictures, including six plates in colour. The size of the work is 13 by 10 inches. Price 2s. 6d. net.

MR. MURRAY'S NEW BOOKS

Works by Gene Stratton-Porter

A NEW LONG NOVEL.

MICHAEL O'HALLORAN

With 6 Photogravures. 6s.

Mickey, like Freckles, is a character of unusual charm, possessed of Irish wit and sprightliness, combined with independence, common sense and a joyous, happy nature. The story of his struggles to take care of Peaches—his devotion to his friends and his own self-sacrifices—is one of the most appealing things Mrs. Stratton-Porter has ever done.

The book possesses, like all of the author's works, a deep feeling for Nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers, and all growing things.

Proper care of Books

THESE rules should be framed and hung up in a library, says the Cleveland World-News :—

Never hold a book near a fire.

Never drop a book on the floor.

Never turn leaves with the thumb.

Never lean or rest upon an open book.

Never touch a book with damp or soiled hands.

Always keep your place with a thin book-mark.

Always place a large book on a table before opening it.

Always turn leaves from the top with the middle or fore-finger.

Never pull a book from the shelf by the binding at the top, but by the back.

Never touch a book with a damp cloth, nor with a sponge in any form.

Never place another book, or anything else, upon the leaves of an open book.

Never rub dust from books, but brush it off with a soft dry cloth or duster.

Never close a book with a pencil, a pad of paper, or anything else between the leaves.

Never open a book further than to bring both sides of the cover in the same plane.

Always keep books of value out of the reach of children, and in a clean, dry place.

Always keep a borrowed book covered with a paper cover while in your possession.

Never cut the leaves of a book or magazine with a sharp knife, as the edge is sure to run into the print.

Trade Notes

MR. J. A. NEUHUYS writes: "I beg to inform the trade that, by mutual agreement, the partnership between Mr. R. Jaschke, of 78, Charing Cross Road, and myself, is dissolved. I shall continue business as a second-hand bookseller on my own account and in my own name, at 37, Dean Road, Willesden Green, N.W." Mr. Neuhuys states he is a Dutch subject, born at the Hague, of Dutch parents, and that his wife is a Frenchwoman.

THE WORDSWORTH PRESS (G. & T. COWARD, LTD.).—The goodwill, copyrights, titles, &c., of this old-established firm having been purchased by the Don Canister Co., Ltd., they have transferred their interest in the title of "The Wordsworth Press, Carlisle," together with the publication copyrights and letterpress printing orders of the late firm of G. & T. Coward, Ltd., to Messrs. Charles Thurnam & Sons, Carlisle, to whom all printing orders should be addressed. The books issued by The Wordsworth Press or G. & T. Coward may now be obtained from Messrs. Thurnam, who will send catalogues and all other information free on request.

Specimen Copies.—We shall be pleased to send free of charge a few specimen copies of THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR to any who will apply for same and distribute them to the best advantage. Send a postcard to Manager, PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR Office, 19, Adam Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

Letters to the Editor

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our Correspondents.

The proposed Tax on Postage

DEAR MR. MARSTON,—We hope the Government will reconsider their proposal, and not interfere with either the halfpenny post or the parcel post, as both are of vital importance to the book trade. Our ability to pay taxes depends on our trade being maintained and increased. Everything ought to be done to favour trade, and no obstacle put in its way.—Yours respectfully,

JOHN MACKENZIE & SON, Booksellers.

[As we said last week, "We all want to do our best for our country. This tax on postage will make doing our best far more difficult for many thousands. We have done our best to urge our newspaper society to protest. Unfortunately, some of the big papers, who are unaffected, because their sales are through newsagents, are calling the small papers such as ours "unpatriotic" not to accept a 100 per cent. tax on postage without a murmur. It is an unwise tax as well as an unfair one.—Ed., P.C.]

Norfolk Artists

DEAR SIR,—Herewith I send a copy of my annotated bibliography of "Norfolk Artists" in the hope that it will be noticed in THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR, as it is the only bibliography relating to the Norwich School of Painting and to other Norfolk artists. It contains no less than 500 references to books, pamphlets, and articles dealing with all the artists included in the Norwich School of Painting, and other deceased Norfolk artists.—Yours faithfully,

GEO. A. STEPHEN
(City Librarian).

Public Library, Norwich,
September 28th.

[We have pleasure in making Mr. Stephen's very useful list known to our readers.—Ed.]

The latest news from Paris!

DEAR SIR,—This is the land of liberty—every town hall, every court of justice, every kind of official building and institution reminds me of the fact. But during a seven or eight years' residence I have not observed any excess of liberty in the exchange of commodities, and the signs of the times point to even greater restrictions.

I do not recommend you to master the 300 odd pages of the "Bottin de Paris and Departements," where the "tarifs des Douanes Françaises" are set out in all their nakedness. You are fortunate if you live long enough to solve the mysteries that surround the taxable goods in which you are particularly interested. But as the modus operandi of an archaic institution to stop the free exchange of commodities it is quite an attractive dossier.

It falls to my lot as one of the clan of English booksellers abroad to distribute books (occasionally literature) and, like that of Gilbert's policeman, it is not always a happy one. To-day, 28 fr. or thereabouts must be found for every sovereign's worth of English goods purchased, and the exchange is on the upgrade all the time. And although this means 12½ per cent. on the cost, the bookseller cannot recoup himself by increasing his prices. I have recently made an effort to establish a new scale of prices during the war for English books, but without success—any isolated action of this kind is naturally foredoomed to failure. The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker everywhere advise you that in consequence of this, that and the other, his goods will cost you more.

But the bookseller is faced for ever with a printed price, and if he exceeds it by a few centimes he is a brigand, and a few of the bolder spirits do not hesitate to tell him so. The English tourist especially with a genius for mathematical calculation which is almost uncanny, will tell you exactly what "cash price 2s. 7½d." represents in French money. The other day, one of these financiers spent the greater part of two hours browsing amongst the 700 odd volumes of "Everyman Library," plying me with questions intermittently which only the "Encyclo. Britannica," the "English Catalogue," together with a life's experience of books enabled me to answer. Eventually, he selected a volume, and gingerly counted out 1.25 in payment. When 1.50 was requested he seemed on the verge of an apoplectic fit. "D'you know I can buy these volumes for 1s. in London?" he exclaimed. I replied there was a stretch of salt water between Paris and London, to say nothing of a few miles of chemin de fer, and that neither the railway directors nor steamship companies were so devoted to the interests of literature as to carry it free of charge. He was a direct descendant of Thomas Didymus, and still doubted. So I expatiated at length on the adventures of those books which you can buy "in town for what the people call a bob."

They begin with the perils of the deep, and even in the piping times of peace there are a few. A case containing a 12 vol. work published at 10 guineas was recently dropped in the ocean, and after passing through what Mr. Mantalini would call a "demmed damp, moist, unpleasant" experience arrived here in a state of pulp.

If you raise any claim or protest, the one and only sop wherewith to comfort you is "c'est la guerre."

Then, when they have run the gauntlet of that fearful and wonderful thing the State Railway, the arrival and details of the contents must be furnished to the Commissaire de Police, and his permission obtained to remove them; this may be a mere form involving perhaps only one to two hours in a queue. You finally reach your goal, and the representative of law and order signs your sheet, et voilà! But heaven befriend you if there is anything suspicious in your cases—a few days' to a week's delay in clearing them is the least of your troubles. And with Twelve Pictures, customer's selection, 5/- on roller.

Rev. CAREY BONNER writes:—

"After careful examination I have no hesitation in saying that for reverent treatment of the Scriptural incidents, for design and colour, the "All British" pictures are undoubtedly the best I have seen for Sunday School purposes. Those responsible for the issue have rendered an immense service to the movement for bringing only the best into the modern Sunday School. The issue of the pictures both in the roll and in the smaller form will serve to make the Bible a living book to the young people of to-day."

STANLEY PAUL & CO., 31, Essex St., London. Descriptive List on Application

a sublime disregard of the necessities of the case no French official ever knows more English than is represented by Goddam—oh, yes, plum pudding!—so that to him the very devil appears to be lurking amongst the most innocent-looking merchandise. However, when this ogre is finally disposed of, the terror of the "douanier" arise with duties on toy books, catalogues (illustrated), books where the illustrations exceed the text, books in the nature of albums, books with picture wrappers, books in leather bindings, &c. On one occasion we paid 19.75 duty on a copy of "Webster's International Dictionary" bound in sheepskin. True, only the latter pays duty, but unless you are prepared to tear the book to pieces, and weigh the cover separately, you must pay on the full weight (16 lb.). And as the rates vary the dutiable items must be collected from the various consignments, differentiated, and weighed separately to apportion the amount for which you are to be fleeced. It is, of course, advisable to have your own representative present, or the odds are £100 to a tin tack that half your goods will be pitchforked into Brown, Jones, or Robinson's case, and turn up a week or ten days later, looking as if they had suffered a severe bombardment. After this, we are confronted with charges for portage, factage, droit d'embarquement, camionage, and pourboires. At this point my customer for "Everyman" stopped me and paid the balance of 0.25, remarking that if he remained another five minutes he felt he would have to pay 2 fr. or lose his self-respect. But in five minutes I shall be in the thick of an attempt to prove to No. 2 that 6s. is neither 4s. 6d. or 5.60, and if sept cinquante will not entice 'em—well, we "proceed ad infinitum."—Yours faithfully,

F. MOULDEN.

Notices of Books

From Messrs. H. R. Allenson, Ltd.—"The King's Uniform," by the Rev. Robert Harvie, M.A. Eighteen addresses to children on the subject of the War are gathered under the title, "The King's Uniform." They are written in the anecdotal, vivid way specially attractive to the young, and state the case for England in an easily understood form.

From the Same.—"Look Straight Ahead: Twenty Talks with Boys and Boy Scouts," by the Rev. E. W. Shepherd-Welwyn. Mr. Shepherd-Welwyn has a "way" with boys. He talks to them in their own language, cheerily and slangily, and stows into each "talk" a wealth of breezy anecdote. No boy who picks up "Look Straight Ahead" will be able to lay it down unread, for the desire to find out what comes next will inevitably seize him.

From the Same.—"White Wings: Seventeen addresses to Young People Upon Belgium, the Great War, and Our Lads in Blue," by the Rev. Thomas McConnell, B.A. Mr. McConnell understands the child mind and his addresses are eminently suitable for reading aloud in the "quiet hour." They are full of stories teaching the cardinal truths in a simple way, and his remarks about the War are suited to youthful listeners.

From Messrs. Blackie & Sons, Ltd.—"The Main Stream of European History," by the Rev. Frederick Harrison, M.A. Beginning with the fall of Rome, Mr. Harrison moves by easily followed stages through the history of Europe up to the year 1914. Keeping as his main object an elucidation of the causes of the present struggle, he lays stress on the development of the German Empire, the origin of the Eastern Question and the events leading up to the formation of Belgium as a kingdom. His history can be accepted as the work of an expert.

From Messrs. Cassell & Co., Ltd.—"The Cinematograph Book," edited by Bernard E. Jones. The moving picture has become such an important feature of modern life that no doubt there will be a warm welcome and large sale for this cheap and handy book about it. It is "a practical and useful illustrated guide to the making and showing of cinematograph pictures, written in simple language by experts for operators and novices." As great believers in the educational value of the "Moving Picture" we welcome this key to the making of it. We believe that in time every school and college will be equipped with its apparatus, and that this work will help to that end.

From Messrs. Constable & Co., Ltd.—"V.V.'s Eyes," by Henry Sydnor Harrison. A cheap (2s. net) edition of this clever novel by the author of "Queed."

From Messrs. Wells Gardner, Darton & Co., Ltd.—"Life for Ever and Ever." Preached by the Right Hon. and Right Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, D.D., Lord Bishop of London, at the Canadian Memorial Service, St. Paul's Cathedral, May 10th, 1915. Apart from its fine and inspiring sermon matter, Dr. Ingram's address on the occasion of the Canadian Memorial Service contains the best and fullest account of the famous Canadian fight during the second battle of Ypres that we have yet met with. In pamphlet form the sermon should obtain a wide sale among soldiers and their friends.

From Messrs. Gay & Hancock, Ltd.—"Poems of Optimism," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox. The prolific poetess needs no recommendation at this time of day, and her latest volume will be eagerly welcomed by her thousand admirers. Thirteen of the "Poems of Optimism" deal with the European War, while the remainder fall into the category of miscellaneous.

From Mr. W. Heinemann.—"Germany's Violation of the Laws of War, 1914-15," compiled under the auspices of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Translated by J. O. P. Bland. This official record issued by the French Government is yet another damning indictment of German militarism, if such is required after the revelation of the Bryce Commission. It is a cold, methodical statement of facts, supported in most cases by the evidence of German documents and entirely devoid of all sensationalism and circumstantial evidence. We commend it to those who are not yet convinced of the imperative necessity of exterminating the Prussian military party, at all costs.

From Messrs. T. Werner Laurie, Ltd.—"The Imperial Malefactor," by Winifred Graham. Our second-rate popular writers seem bent on creating a Hohenzollern bogey as frightful and menacing as the old-time Bonaparte monster; and just as, for the last fifty years, we have contemptuously regarded the fabricators of the latter myth, so no doubt we shall in due time become slightly ashamed of the present day sensation caterers. Miss Graham interweaves with her details of Prussian turpitude the story of an English girl stranded in Germany, but her characters are unlikable, and are merely used to point the main moral of the book.

From Messrs. Macmillan & Co.—"Hints to V.A.D. Members in Hospitals," by E. C. Barton, Matron of Chelsea Infirmary and Principal Matron of the Third London General Hospital, Wandsworth. This little book is published for the Nursing Times by Messrs. Macmillan & Co., Ltd. There is a preface by James Cantlie, M.B., F.R.C.S. It would be wise for all workers in these Voluntary Aid Detachments to buy this little work (price 6d. net) before taking up practical work in any hospital and just to read through these twelve short articles by Miss Barton, so that they may have some idea of what is expected from them in their new work as V.A.D. probationers. The chapters dealing with (a) Hospital Etiquette; (b) Professional Behaviour, Health and Appearance; (c) Loyalty in Hospital are especially helpful, and will give new workers some understanding of Hospital life, and the "why" and "wherefore" of what may often seem unnecessary rules and regulations. Queen Amélie of Portugal has kindly taken a great interest in these articles, and wishes the book every success—especially as the profits will be used to augment the Benevolent Fund of the Commanding Officer of the 3rd London General Hospital.

From the Same.—"Alcohol and the Human Body," by Sir Victor Horsley and Mary D. Sturge. A fifth enlarged edition of this important and authoritative work.

From the Same.—"Conspectus, or Latin at Sight," by the Rev. Hedley V. Taylor, M.A. Mr. Taylor has elaborated a new method of approaching Latin sight translation which, if it does not entirely bear out the promise of its title, is certainly very helpful. There is an Introduction which is meant to be used as a basis for lessons; following it come a series of illustrative sentences which culminate in longer passages of graded difficulty.

From the Same.—"Lessons and Experiments on Scientific Hygiene and Temperance for Elementary School Children," by Helen Coomber. This text-book is the outcome of a long-continued effort on the part of many medical men and women to introduce into our public schools the teaching of hygiene and temperance. Should the school managers adopt the new course, they will be able to find no better book on the subject than that prepared by Miss Coomber. As for the children, they will taste in the new study all the joys of chemical experiment.

From Messrs. Thomas Nelson & Sons.—"The Magnetic North," by Elizabeth Robins (E. C. Raimond), in Nelson's Sevenpenny Library, and "The River War," by W. S. Churchill in the wonderful Shilling series are two books that need little recommendation. The latter especially is of great interest at the moment, as the campaign referred to was conducted by Lord Kitchener.

From the Same.—"Nelson's History of the War," by John Buchan. Volume VII has just been published of this remarkable History of the War, covering the period

NELSON'S LIST

A Capital Book for Boys.
3/6 A BOOK OF THE SEA.
 By Archibald Williams.

With two coloured plates and numerous illustrations.

This book deals with ocean depths, tides, currents, temperatures, waves and winds; marine surveying; shore protection; icebergs; marine chronometers, compasses, and sounding machines; lighthouses and lightships; buoys; life-boats and life-saving apparatus; divers and diving; salvage operations; the removal of wrecks; the world's fisheries, including whaling; products of the sea; curious fish and ocean monsters; shells and shellfish; and sea-birds. Chapters are devoted also to anchors; submarine cables; motor-boats; the carriage of perishable cargoes; sailing and yacht-racing; and many other interesting subjects. The book is copiously illustrated with photographs and diagrams.

3/6 THE CHARTERED COMPANY.
 A Tale of Cailthorpe College.
 By Harold Avery.

With six coloured illustrations.

Mr. Avery is facile princeps at the school story so beloved of all healthy-minded boys—and girls. He knows the genus schoolboy down to the ground, and reveals him in all his aspects with genuine humour. "The Chartered Company," his latest book, is one of the best school stories he has ever written.

3/6 WHITTENBURY COLLEGE.
 A Girls' School Story.
 By Alice M. Chesterton.

With six coloured illustrations

Miss Chesterton's new story is brimful of incident and healthy excitement. Girls will revel in it, and will rank it amongst their prime favourites.

3/6 THE LAST OF THE GIANTS.
 By Tom Bevan.

With six coloured illustrations.

A novel story of adventure, in which the fossilized mastodons of an earlier age figure largely. Mr. Bevan has the happy knack of investing his yarns with an interest that never flags. From first to last the story is full of bustle and go.

2/6 THE LITTLE RAJAH.
 By Mrs. Hobart-Hampden.

With four coloured illustrations.

This delightful Indian story breaks new ground. Besides being full of adventure, it gives young readers a peep into the life of a native State in our great dependency. No young reader can possibly lay it down until the mysteries are unravelled and the plot is cleared up.

From HEATH, CRANTON & CO.'S AUTUMN LIST

Travels East of Suez. RACHEL HUMPHREYS, F.R.G.S., Author of "Algiers, the Sahara, and the Nile." Demy 8vo, Art Cloth, Illustrated Wrapper, with 32 Page Photographs. 7/6 net. This fascinating volume vividly describes the wanderings of two Englishwomen, both on and off the beaten track, in India, Ceylon, and Burmah. Readers who have longed to visit these countries, as well as those who have already visited them, will find a special delight amid pages penned and pictured by one of the first women to attain the honour of admission to the membership of the Royal Geographical Society.

By Forest Ways in New Zealand. F. A. ROBERTS. Demy 8vo, Art Cloth, Illustrated Wrapper, 16 Page Photographs and Frontispiece in Colours. 5/- net. This book contains a thrilling account of wanderings in New Zealand, chiefly in places little known, and often too far away from the cities to be visited by travellers who spend only a few weeks in the country. So vividly are mountains and forests depicted that the reader seems to see the sombreness of the trees and the whiteness of the snow-clad peaks. The Publishers feel confident that this book will do a great deal towards arousing a still deeper interest in this far-flung colony. The book is illustrated throughout by original photographs taken by the author.

A Journey with a Knapsack. REGINALD ROGERS. Square Crown 8vo, with Frontispiece and Designed Cloth Cover. 3/6 net. The Author is becoming widely known, and this (his latest) volume will add to his already high reputation. It tells of a walking tour in Dorset, and the Sunshine of Life is brought very near to the reader.

The Literary Year Book and Author's Who's Who. Edited by BASIL STEWART. Large Crown 8vo, Cloth. 6/- net. The volume for 1916 completes the 20th annual issue.

Leaves from a Wayfarer's Note Book. "AURAEL." Crown 8vo, Art Cloth Gilt. 1/- net. A book of notes jotted down by the wayside which will serve to speed the weary footsteps and cheer the fainting heart.

Dreams. ANNIE M. PARR. Crown 8vo, Cloth, with Wrapper and 4 Illustrations. 1/6 net. A book for Children, originally written for the little son of a Roumanian Prince, and now published by special request. It consists of six Short Stories from Dreamland, each one slightly allegorical in character and containing a deeper meaning.

The Rubáiyát of a Photographer. ANNIE M. PARR. Demy 16mo. Illustrated. 1/6 net. A very humorous little book and one for which there will be a great demand. It is dedicated to the Author's "fellow-members of the Royal Photographic Society."

FICTION.

The Building of Whispers. By the Author of "Leaves from a Life," etc. 6/- (Dedicated to Barry Pain.) The history of an old house in Wessex, of its being made into a home, of how people lived and loved and also of how some of them died there. The "ghost" of the first mistress of the house tells the story.

Tales of Old California. C. C. PARK (Carl Grey). With Frontispiece in Colours. 3/6 net. An arresting volume which brings to the reader a vision of the large and spacious days when California was more a land of mystery than it is now. Love and passion were perhaps more rampant then.

Heart of the Scarlet Fire. LOUISE M. STACPOOLE KENNY. Author of "Daffodil's Love Affairs," etc. Two of Mrs. Stacpoole Kenny's characteristics as a writer are her versatility and originality in choice of subjects. This, her latest novel, is full of human interest. The heroine is a girl with a strong and attractive personality—who wants to get full measure and overflowing from life.

A Passionate Pilgrimage. CHARLES BEADLE. Author of "The City of Shadows," "A White Man's Burden," etc. 6/- A vital and arresting story of the man who found the Philosopher's Stone. "A Passionate Pilgrimage" is not, in the ordinary sense, a "Love Story"; it portrays the development of a man from emotionalism to the consciousness of self, in which state he sees love in true proportion to life.

A Happy Exchange. HERBERT B. THORNFLEY. 6/- This story belongs to a vanished age, as it was written before August, 1914. It gives a picture of a particularly placid section of English Society at a time when people believed that the peace of the world would be permanently unbroken.

The Diary of a Flirt. CLARICE LAURENCE. 2/- net. The story of a girl whose social aspirations entirely dominated her life.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF IRISH WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

A Little Book of Irish Verse. Edited by ALBERT C. WHITE. Foolscap 8vo. 1/- net. Mr. Albert C. White, whose enthusiasm for Irish causes is well-known, has found time in the midst of recruiting work all over the country to bring together "A Little Book of Irish Verse." It will be sold for the benefit of the funds for providing additional comforts for Irish troops. The contributors include Katharine Tynan, W. B. Yates, Sir A. Conan Doyle, Patrick MacGill, J. H. Cousins, Louis McQuilland, Stephen Gwynn, Dr. Arthur Lynch, Shane Leslie and others.

THE BOOK OF THE YEAR

The Year 1915 Illustrated

SEVENTH YEAR OF ISSUE

Ready End of November

THE YEAR 1915 ILLUSTRATED will be devoted almost entirely to the great event of the year—The Great War. It will continue the thread of the narrative from October, 1914, and will give a description of the chief episodes in the conflict between that date and the end of October in the present year. It will form the best concise History of the War yet published.

The Life and Death of Jason

By WILLIAM MORRIS.

Illustrated by MAXWELL ARMFIELD.

William Morris's famous epic of the doughty deeds of Jason is here presented in a new dress. The Artist in illustrating the text has made use of the latest knowledge acquired by the Minoan excavations. These examples of Greek art have never been utilised before for modern book illustrations. Mr. Armfield has succeeded in giving a fresh and truthful picture of the Greek ideal. His linework is based on the open linework of the period—the finest at present known.

A Backwater of the War

LETTERS FROM SWITZERLAND.

By M. R. EARLE.

With an Introductory Note by the REV. E. S. WOODS, M.A.

The Author has the gift of focussing thoughts on some aspects of the War which have received too little attention. She writes from the complete detachment of a sick bed in a neutral land, yet the letters breathe the spirit of deep devotion to our Cause and Country and reveal the working of a peculiarly fine-tempered and imaginative mind.

from the second battle of Ypres to the beginning of the Italian campaign. The tributes of eminent military authorities the praise of the Press, and the welcome accorded Mr. Buchan's colossal venture by the public are sufficient testimony to the real worth of the history. We say colossal advisedly, as to maintain an uninterrupted thread in the maze of happenings in a record of this stupendous war is indeed a colossal undertaking.

From Messrs. Stanley Paul & Co.—
"The Admirable Painter: a Study of Leonardo da Vinci," by A. J. Anderson, author of "The Romance of Fra Filippo

Lippi," &c. This handsome volume, with its photogravure frontispiece, sixteen illustrations in half tone and thirty-two line illustrations in the text, gives us a most interesting account of the life and work of one of the most famous painters of all time. Mr. Anderson tells us that his aim was to give a series of moving pictures, joined together by some short record of the artist's doings or some short extract from a contemporary document. What makes this book so interesting is the fact that it is so largely a reflection of the master's own masterpieces and a reproduction of his own notes. Doubtless many art critics will refuse to accept Mr. Anderson's criticisms, just as he begins his work by resounding whacks on the headpieces of such critics as Thiss, Berenson and Müntz, whose ideas are all unsound on important points. As far as we can judge, art criticism is like putty—it can be made to assume any shape or form. Some critic said the other day that for all his genius Shakespeare was no poet. It is explained by the old saying, "So many men so many minds," which after all is the real spice of life. Nothing is so monotonous as monotony. The half-tone illustrations are printed so admirably as to be a great credit to all concerned—e.g., that of St. John Baptist, which Mr. Anderson calls "one of the most hateful pictures that ever sprung from a decadent art," and which he attributes not to Leonardo but to his school. One must admit that this picture of the youthful St. John reminds one of a faun; and yet everybody must have met people with just this physiognomy who were not "wholly sensual," or any more sensual than other people.

From Messrs. Routledge & Sons, Ltd.—"The School of Arms: Stories of Boy Soldiers and Sailors," by Ascott R. Hope. A series of twelve tales of adventure in war in different part of the world. A most suitable book to give to a boy. The author's name alone is sufficient recommendation.

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind,
and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books,
from the invention of printing to
the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints
and Arundel Prints are included.
The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best,
bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication
which gives the entire catalogue
of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest
help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

make a unique appeal to Booksellers, as they are designed and published by a Book Publisher who knows what the book-buying public want. They are "literary" in every sense of the term, not least of all in the simplicity of their printed greetings. They are designed for the best class of trade and, issued under a name which is a household word, sell themselves with little trouble or risk to the Bookseller. The terms are better than book terms; the space needed small; the business easy to handle.

THE Publishers' Circular

National Book Fortnight

As will be seen from the following notice which appears in the October number of The Author, it is probable that the Authors' Society will co-operate—at any rate, to some extent—in the special efforts which the Publishers' Association is making to induce the public to buy more books. Our contemporary says:—

"We print below particulars of a proposal from the Trade Committee of the Publishers' Association put forward with the object of increasing the circle of book buyers. We understand that whether the proposal takes practical shape or not is to be decided by the Association at a meeting to be held this month, when its chances of success in the light of the present war situation will be further considered. If the Association decide to proceed with the idea, it will be considered on behalf of authors by the Committee of Management of the Society. Meanwhile, however, we have much pleasure in placing before our readers the following information:

"The promoters suggest three methods of procedure: (1) By a booksellers' window display, (2) by the issue of a publishers' catalogue, and (3) by a Press campaign.

"In regard to No. 1 it is proposed to ask the co-operation of all booksellers in making a special window display and a special canvass among likely book buyers during a chosen fortnight in November, which will be termed the National Book Fortnight.

"Advertising material for the booksellers' display, having for its chief object the emphasising of a campaign to encourage the buying of books for recreation, instruction and solace, &c., will be prepared on a comprehensive scale.

"The second method will involve the issue, this autumn, of a catalogue representing a co-operative effort on the part of the publishers to place before the public in a concise and really attractive form full details of all books available. We understand that the booksellers have already indicated their desire to co-operate in placing this catalogue directly into the hands of the public by ordering large quantities for distribution.

"It is hoped that the catalogue will afford a valuable help to book buyers, acquainting them with the books they may expect to find stocked at all book-sellers.

"For the Press campaign several of the leading dailies, both London and provincial, have already promised support, and it is proposed to arrange during the National Book Fortnight with these papers to publish on given days a special book page supplement.

"The pages in question are to be devoted to special articles written by leading authors on 'Reading as an Art' and kindred subjects, while the rest of the editorial matter will be devoted to such subjects as books on art, history, phases of fiction, &c.

"Publishers' announcements will appear alongside these editorial columns.

"Finally, the organisers inform us that they will warmly welcome the support of authors who can do anything to further the success of the scheme, and indicate one or two directions in which they may be able to assist. Thus, if an author possess any influence with local booksellers, he can help to emphasise the importance of the scheme, and, if he possess any editorial influence, he can enlist the support of his local journal in supporting the scheme editorially. There are doubtless many other methods which will occur to authors which the Publishers' Association will welcome.

"Communications on the subject should be addressed, The Secretary, The Publishers' Association, Stationers' Hall Court, E.C."

Notes and Announcements

A WORK on the town planning movement has just been published by Messrs. Williams & Norgate. Written by Patrick Geddes, whose lectures on the subject are well known, the volume is entitled "Cities in Evolution: An Introduction to the Town Planning Movement and to the Study of Civics." The book is not a technical treatise, but an attempt at the popularisation of the reviving art of town planning.

Messrs. Macmillan & Co., will publish immediately, at the price of 6d. net, a booklet by Mr. Rudyard Kipling, entitled "France at War."

A new volume by Mr. James Stephens, author of "The Crock of Gold," will be issued by Messrs. Macmillan & Co., on October 19th, under the title of "The Adventures of Seumas Beg: The Rocky Road to Dublin—Verses for Children."

Messrs. Macmillan & Co., will publish on October 12th, under the title of "Orient Pearls," a volume of Indian folk-tales by Shovona Devi, a niece of Sir Rabindranath Tagore.

Mr. Eden Phillpott's new novel "Old Delabole," which Mr. Heinemann will publish on October 14th, is the second of the new series of novels dealing with minor industries, which Mr. Phillpotts has projected since finishing his great epic of Dartmoor. It will be remembered that in the spring of this year Mr. Heinemann published "Brunel's Tower," which was a tale of the Devonshire potteries. The new story concerns itself with the Cornish slate quarries.

Mr. Heinemann also announces for October 14th, "Grandmother's Fairy Tales," which has been translated from the French of Charles Robert Dumas by Miss Pia Hewlett, the daughter of the popular novelist. The book is beautifully illustrated in colour and black and white by Maurice Lalau, and forms a charming gift book for children.

Miss Tennyson Jesse, whose novel, "The Milky Way," was such a pronounced success about two years ago, has in preparation a new volume of stories which Mr. Heinemann will publish about the end of October. It is entitled, "Beggars on Horseback," and contains among other stories "The Mask," which in its dramatized form recently thrilled large audiences when staged by the Grand Guignol Co., at the Garrick Theatre.

Messrs. T. Werner Laurie, Ltd., are publishing shortly "My Childhood," by Maxim Gorki, translated from the Russian by G. M. Foakes. The Russian novelist herein tells the story of his life from his earliest memory to his seventeenth year, when his grandfather threw him out of the house, telling him to shift for himself.

The fifth volume of the uniform edition of Pierre Loti's works will be issued shortly by Messrs. T. Werner Laurie, Ltd. It is the ever-popular "Madame Chrysanthème," which will be issued in finely-printed form under the title of "Japan."

The New York Times of August 21st, 1915, has a long and excellent letter from Mr. T. Fisher Unwin in answer to questions about the war, about strikes, and about recruiting, put to him by an American correspondent, Mr. Howard Mansfield. With the Germans spending thousands of pounds in trying to prejudice the American view it is well to have British views set out in great papers like the New York Times. Writing on August 8th, 1915, Mr. Unwin tells his correspondent that as soon as we have the shells there will be "an artillery avalanche along the whole western front." This is just what has happened and was the cause of the recent victories.

If our soldiers and sailors could be kept "fit" by booklets, surely they have enough to choose from! Among the best of these helps is a little 4d. net waistcoat-pocket book entitled, "How to Keep 'Fit,' or the Soldier's Guide to Health in War and Peace, with Tips on Gas Poisoning, Frost Bite, Inoculation, &c." compiled by Major H. Waite, R.A.M.C.(T.), published by Messrs. Gale & Polden, Ltd., who must be making a rich harvest out of the sale of war books. By the way, when they reprint this little Guide, which was recommended by Lord Roberts as "most useful," they could easily print the title along the back, also they might ask Major Waite if it is quite straight to invite the soldier to buy by promising him a "tip" about "gas poisoning," and then telling him in the body of the work that "for military reasons" no tip is given, but that he will be told what to do when he gets to the front!

Another excellent little book (1s. net) published by Messrs. Gale & Polden, Ltd., is "The Musketry Teacher: a Complete Guide for Instructors of Musketry," by Captain A. Morris, Inspector of Musketry and Instructor of Musketry to the Falmouth Garrison; it is fully illustrated. Any bookseller who shows it in his window will be doing his country good service. As an indication of British unpreparedness to meet German armaments only about five pages out of 150 are devoted in this "Complete Guide" to Musketry to the Machine Gun! just as we are told (September 3rd, 1915, is the date of the Preface) that "Each infantry battalion is at present issued with four machine guns." The German battalion has about 40 machine guns, and yet the author admits machine guns "represent the greatest striking power possessed by infantry." They have killed more of our men than any other arm or weapon, and it is not to the credit of our military authorities we have let the Germans have such an overwhelming superiority in this "greatest striking power." Since this note was written we are very glad to see that His Majesty has sanctioned the establishment of a special machine gun force.

Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. will publish immediately a new novel entitled "A Game of Hearts," by G. B. Burgin, author of "The Shutters of Silence." The scene of this story is mainly laid in the heart of the Canadian bush. The scent of the pines and cedars, the murmur of running waters, the green hills of the giant Laurentians, pervade every page of a romance written in Mr. Burgin's happiest vein.

Miss Evelyn Everett-Green's new novel is entitled "Confirmed Bachelor," and will be published very shortly by Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. It is a story of how Captain Cloudesly Bruce, a soldier retired after the Boer War, succeeds as "next of kin" to an old-fashioned property, where he establishes himself with his servant and dog. How his fair young neighbour causes this confirmed bachelor to change his habits and plans of life is told by the author in developing her story.

The torture of doubt, which lies hidden away in the hearts of many people whose faith has been sorely tried by the strain of the come-and-go of War tragedies, was paralleled in the case of the American Civil War. Frederick Douglass, the champion of the negroes, was addressing a great meeting, and in a despairing speech he said their case was hopeless. At that moment, a tall negress stood up and in a voice charged with emotion, pointing with minatory finger to the speaker, demanded, "Is God Dead?" That phrase has been chosen as the title for a new volume by Mr. Newman Flower, the editor of the Story Teller. "Is God Dead?" which will be published by Messrs. Cassell next week, deals with the conviction of a man who believed the Deity was dead. The book shows how the man was permitted to look into the lives of six others, who, smitten as he was by the War, had cried out against the God he had trusted, and shows how the man was brought back to his faith. It is a book which may be expected to provoke comment.

So successful was the handbook, "Personal Hygiene for Girls," among scholastic authorities, parents and guardians, that Cassell's are now issuing a companion volume, "Personal Hygiene for Boys." The author, Dr. Lechmere Anderson, begins by discussing the historic poster question, "The Boy: What Will He Become?" and shows how obedience to the elementary laws of hygiene will enable a boy to grow up into hale and vigorous manhood. Cleanliness, digestion, eating slowly, inhaling fresh air, forming habits, and the cheerful disposition, are among the subjects dealt with.

Mr. Austin Dobson's new volume of eighteenth-century vignettes, "Rosalba's Journal and other Papers," will be published at once by Messrs. Chatto & Windus.

On the 11th inst., Messrs. Chatto & Windus will have ready a new book of the greatest interest to all Stevensonians. It is Mrs. R. L. Stevenson's account of the South Sea voyage, which formed a basis for part of Stevenson's volume, "In the South Seas"; and, besides fresh revelations of the personality of R.L.S., the book, which is called "The Cruise of the Janet Nichol" contains many illustrations from unpublished photographs.

Goldoni, the greatest Italian dramatist, who introduced into Italian drama a new racy realism, in such notable plays as "The Chioggian Brawls" and its successors, is the subject of a new illustrated biography by Mr. H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, to be published by Messrs. Chatto & Windus.

Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons will issue shortly "Schools of To-Morrow," an important new book by Prof. John Dewey, the well-known and distinguished American educationalist.

A book dealing with the Surrey hills, written by Mr. F. E. Green, the author of "The Awakening of England," and illustrated by Mr. Elliott Seabrooke, several of whose numerous drawings have been reproduced in collotype, will be published immediately by Messrs. Chatto & Windus.

The volume of reminiscences by Mr. Leslie Ward, who is known to the public as the famous caricaturist "Spy," will also be published by Messrs. Chatto & Windus. The book will be very fully illustrated in colour and half-tone with over 150 drawings and caricatures by the author.

The October number of The Hibbert Journal (Williams & Norgate) is full of war—fascinatingly full.

The Englishwoman for October is full of war. One or two general articles are thrown in, but war is the staple of most of the magazines.

Messrs. Hachette & Co., of 18, King William Street, London, send us No. 1 of a fine new Dutch review, with French text, entitled, "La Revue de Hollande: Littéraire, Artistique, Documentaire." It is published by Mr. A. W. Sijthoff, of The Hague, and will certainly appeal to all lovers of art and literature. We must refer to it more fully presently.

The British Review (Williams & Norgate) for October has a coloured frontispiece with a curious history. It is a picture of an old man's head, by an unknown artist, from the collection of Sub-Lieut. R. J. Walker, at Little Holland House, Kensington. The original was found outside the Tuileries after the sack of the palace by the Communards; it formed part of some larger painting, the rest of which was so damaged as to be unrecognisable. It is a striking head and the curious thing is that no French art critic can "place" it. The most interesting article in the October number is on "The Uses of Adversity," by the Editor, but it is a most interesting number all through.

The Book Trade and the War

WE much regret to see the following note in The Times of October 1st:—"Second Lieutenant John Harris Miles, Royal Fusiliers, attached 4th Battalion, killed on September 26th, was the elder son of Mr. Frederick Harris Miles, of 11, Windsor Court, Moscow Road, W., and formerly of Gloucester Square, W. He was educated at Harrow, and on leaving, in 1905, joined the publishing and book distributing house of Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., Ltd. At the outbreak of war he joined the Royal Fusiliers." Mr. Miles and his family have the sympathy of the whole trade in this great loss.

Second Lieutenant Miles was of the fourth generation of his family to be identified with the old-established business in Stationers' Hall Court. Although of a somewhat quiet and retiring disposition, he was very popular in the House, especially with the members of the Cricket Club, for which he did excellent service. In 1907 he took up the Freedom of the City by patrimony, taking at the same time the livery of the Stationers' Company. He was also a life member of the Booksellers' Provident Institution. It is rather extraordinary that out of upwards of 100 of the staff of Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall & Co. who have joined the Forces, so prominent a member should be one of the first (so far as is known he was actually the second) to lose his life in his country's service. It was expected that some day he would hold the position of chairman of the Company, which is at present held by his father, and formerly by his grandfather, but the fates have decreed otherwise!

Mr. Rudyard Kipling's Son

ALL, and especially those of us who have or have had sons in the Army, have read with great regret and sympathy that Mr. John Kipling, only son of Mr. Rudyard Kipling, is reported by the Morning Post to be "missing, believed killed."

John Kipling was only eighteen years old. He was the child for whom his father wrote "Just So Stories for Little Children," published in 1902, when John was five years old. It is the only book illustrated by the author, and is a volume of fairy tales written in a delightfully intimate and juvenile style.

John Kipling was a boy of delicate health, but indomitable zeal and resolution. He had been nominated for the Irish Guards by Lord Roberts, and was determined to take his share in the War.

In assenting to his urgent pleas the father—and the mother also—offered the dearest of all possible sacrifices on the altar of their country—an only son, whose youth and health might have given them a good reason for evading the ordeal.

The sympathy of the whole Empire will go out to Mr and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling in their sorrow.

P.S.—A later report leaves some hope still, as the Times of October 7th, 1915, says: "With reference to unofficial announcements of the death of Mr. John Kipling, Irish Guards, son of Mr. Rudyard Kipling, we understand that the facts are as follows: Mr. Kipling is 'wounded and missing'; but when last seen he was not badly wounded, and though hope is necessarily slight in such a case of disappearance, it has not yet been entirely abandoned."

Mr. Jeffery Farnol's New Romance

ON October 15th, Messrs. Sampson Low Marston & Co., Ltd., will publish an entirely new romance by Jeffery Farnol, entitled "Beltane the Smith." From what we have seen of it we are able to say it is the finest thing of the kind which the author of "The Broad Highway" has done—or anyone else for a very long time. Suggestion is often a most powerful lever, and we shall be much mistaken if "Beltane the Smith" does not prove directly and indirectly a great aid to Lord Kitchener. We feel sure that any bookseller who gives himself the pleasure of reading it will agree with what we say. We hope to notice it in the P.C. of October 16th.

Death of Mr. Frank T. Sabin

MR. FRANK T. SABIN, the well-known art dealer, of 172, New Bond Street, W., died at Torquay on Friday, October 1st, 1915, at the age of 67 years.

For some time he was associated in business with his father, who was the author of a dictionary of books relating to America; but during many years Mr. Frank Sabin conducted on his own account in London the business of which the establishment dates back to 1848. In later years it was converted into a limited liability company bearing his name. In the artistic branch of the undertaking Mr. Sabin made a special feature of English, French, and Dutch works and old colour prints. He dealt also in old engravings, miniatures, books, and autographs. He had a large business connection with America.—The Times.

Messrs. W. H. Smith & Sons

Presentation to Mr. H. L. Reynolds

MR. H. L. REYNOLDS, Superintendent for Messrs. W. H. Smith, of 186, Strand, who has been transferred from the London and South Midlands to another district, was "At home" a few evenings ago to the members of his staff, and the opportunity was taken by them of presenting to him an illuminated address, worded as follows:—

Presented to H. L. Reynolds, Esq., Superintendent for W. H. Smith & Son, 186, Strand, W.C., by his Staff in the London and South Midland district, together with a dinner and breakfast service, and a gold watch bracelet for Mrs. Reynolds, as a mark of esteem and respect, and in appreciation of the kind consideration and help freely rendered to them over a period of ten happy years.

Mr. F. J. Evans, Manager of the Newbury shop, made the presentation on behalf of the men, in a graceful speech, and was supported by Mr. Rogers (Brondesbury) and Mr. Button (Watford). Mr. Reynolds, in accepting these tokens of goodwill, thanked his staff for their loyalty to the firm and to himself, and wished them all every success. He also introduced to them Superintendent Mr. W. Cast, who, in a happy little speech, greeted his future colleagues. A pleasant musical evening followed, which was contributed to by various members of the staff, assisted by Miss Cast and Miss Reynolds.

Centenary of the Author of "Two Years before the Mast"

THE final arrangements for the celebration of the centenary of the birth of Richard Henry Dana, jr., popularly known as the author of "Two Years before the Mast," have now been made, and promise an occasion of unusual interest. It will take place in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, under the auspices of the Cambridge Historical Society, and the date is Wednesday evening, October 20th, instead of October 27th, as originally planned. Bishop Lawrence will preside. Professor Bliss Perry, of Harvard College, will speak of Mr. Dana's literary career, with special reference to "Two Years before the Mast." Mr. Moorfield Storey, of the Suffolk Bar, will speak of Mr. Dana's anti-slavery work, and Hon. Joseph H. Choate, of New York, formerly Ambassador to England, will deal with Mr. Dana's career in international law.

WHY NOT A BOOKSELLERS' FORTNIGHT

DEAR SIRs,

Charity has been knocking hard at most doors during the past year, and probably few trades have responded so loyally to the call by their service and assistance as that of the Bookseller.

The question is forced upon us—why not a Booksellers' Fortnight on behalf of their own charity organisation—the NATIONAL BOOK TRADE PROVIDENT SOCIETY, founded to help those of its members who are in distress through sickness or other cause.

"THE ODD VOLUME" for 1915 will be published on October 14th; all profit derived from the sale of this publication goes to the funds of the above Society. We invite the co-operation of every Bookseller and Bookseller's assistant to make a special effort and a big display of "THE ODD VOLUME" from October 14th-28th.

It is an excellent number and its many humorous illustrations lend themselves as an easy way of introducing "THE ODD VOLUME" to a customer—"Have you seen this picture by ———?" &c., &c. The customer is put in a good humour and wants more.

Make it a Booksellers' Fortnight directed on behalf of the funds of your own Trade Society—take a personal pride and interest in it; feel that it is your Annual.

With enthusiasm and determination, you can work wonders. Will you help us to help the FUNDS of the NATIONAL BOOK TRADE PROVIDENT SOCIETY?

Yours faithfully,

The ODD VOLUME COMMITTEE.

P.S.—Please send your order to your Wholesale Agent to-day, and try and sell double the number you sold last year—

A new edition of Messrs. Spalding & Hodge's "Printing Papers"

Sample Vol.

THE chief improvements in the new edition of "Printing Papers" is that Messrs. Spalding have divided each group of papers by means of a section card; each section card serves not only as an index but also a price list. If a man is looking for an antique wove he can dive on to it at once without fumbling through a lot of unnecessary sections. This new arrangement has rather spoilt the book from an aesthetic point of view, but commercially it is a great advantage. Another improvement is the "Substance Guide" which enables anyone to estimate almost at once the thickness of paper they are likely to require. Only one substance in each quality has been shown hitherto, but the four groups now shown in the Thickness Guide are practically equivalent to showing six substances of each grade. The book as it now stands is not only a guide to quality, it is a guide to thickness and a guide to the bulk of any given thickness. All who have much use for papers for books, for magazines, circulars, covers, colour-printing, &c., cannot fail to find this handsome volume of specimens of papers, cards, &c., with prices, most useful. We believe that Messrs. Spalding & Hodge (Drury House, Russell Street, Drury Lane) will supply it gratis to actual users of paper in the trade; also their samples of "Rag Covers" and "Buckskin Papers," suitable for mounts, &c., and their Porpoise Hide covers—exceptionally tough paper, made in England, and suitable for printing in half-tone, colour-work, embossing, &c. Messrs. Spalding are famous for the artistic finish of their productions.

Cassell's Handicraft Library

A New Series

WITH a view to meeting the demand for simply-written and practically illustrated treatises, Messrs. Cassell inaugurate next week an entirely new series of volumes to be entitled Cassell's Handicraft Library. One special feature of the volumes will be that the authors have been selected from among experienced craftsmen who are qualified to give popular treatment to their subjects by writing simply and providing a lavish supply of illustrations that the beginner need not despair of understanding the most difficult of problems. The first two volumes will be published on the 14th inst., and include "Model Engineering," by Henry Greenly, which has nearly 400 illustrations and deals with the model-maker's workshop, and the accessories and processes with which the model engineer must become familiar. The second volume, published on the same day, is entitled, "Furniture Making," written by R. S. Bowers and other designer-craftsmen, and with its 1,070 illustrations it provides a much-wanted handbook that will be welcome to all woodworkers, either amateur or professional.

Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co.'s Announcements

THE most important announcement in the list of Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co. is that of a new long romance by Jeffery Farnol, entitled "Beltane the Smith." Mr. Farnol has set his characters in quite a different period from that hitherto attempted by him. Other important works in their list include a delightful account of the experiences of the Rev. George Hall, a gentleman who has spent practically the whole of his leisure fraternising with the gypsies from the time that he was ten years of age. It is entitled "The Gypsy's Parson." Mr. Saint Nihal Singh has written a book dealing with the Rajas of India, who have come to the aid of the Empire, entitled "The King's Indian Allies." Dr. E. Markham Lee, "Johannes Brahms: The Man and His Music"; Oswald G. Villard has written an important work entitled "Germany Embattled"; Dr. Geoffrey Martin has a companion volume to his other popular work on Chemistry, entitled "Modern Chemistry and its Wonders." The late Sergeant F. S. Brown, of the Canadian Contingent (Princess Pat's Own), left behind a number of war poems entitled "Contingent Ditties," that will be issued in a dainty little volume with an introduction by Holbrook Jackson. Mr. M. B. Karrachy-Smitt, a well-known Russian professor of languages, is writing a Russian Grammar, to enable Englishmen to learn easily and quickly the Russian language without the aid of a master, the first and elementary part of which will be issued shortly at a popular price. The Rev. Charles Courtenay has a delightful work on a subject rarely touched in literature, under the title of "The Empire of Silence." Two new books for boys, one by Robert Overton, entitled "Saturday Island; or, Fun and Friendship in an Elementary School," and another by an old friend, Harry Collingwood, entitled "A Pair of Adventurers in Search of El Dorado." Four new novels are announced of exceptional merit; a first effort by Mary Taylor Thornton, entitled "When Pan Pipes," another by the author of "The Uplanders," Walter Bamfylde, entitled "Midsummer Magic"; a third by

WE have to get our information respecting the German book trade through neutrals. For instance, this about the famous Tauchnitz Series is from the Chicago Dial :—

"A continuation of the Tauchnitz series of standard works in the English language is now announced, after a year's suspension of activity. But the general character of the books lately added to the Tauchnitz list is not exactly of the old order. In July of last year the series stopped with Number 4506. About twelve months later it was resumed with Number 4507, 'The War and America,' by Professor Hugo Münsterberg, whose work is described by the publisher as 'a lucid and convincing description of the present war by the famous American psychologist and Austausch-Professor [Exchange Professor].' Number 4508 is 'The Austrian Officer at Work and at Play,' by Dorothea Gerard. A series of lively and clever sketches of the Austrian Army, by an Englishwoman married to an Austrian officer." Number 4509 is another book from the ready pen of the 'Austausch-Professor,'—'The Peace and America.' New impressions of earlier issues are now coming out, it is reported. Will their authors receive the customary honorarium from Leipzig?"

[It is amusing to find a German professor is employed to carry on these "Standard Works in the English Language," and by giving a German view of the present War!—ED., P.C.]

The Kingdom of the Blind

ONE of the most interesting places in London is "St. Dunstons," Regent's Park, where those who have received the sorest wounds in the whole of the War are being taught to accustom themselves to a new state of life. At "St. Dunstons," the soldiers and sailors blinded in the War are being taught trades which will enable them to earn a livelihood in the future. All the profits accruing from the sales of "The Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Gift Book" are to be devoted to this cause, and the reception which it has already received from the bookselling trade augurs well for its success.

In spite of the many calls which have already been made upon the literary and artistic professions, there was an immediate response from innumerable artists, poets and authors when the object of the book became known. The contributions range from essays to short stories, which, with the exception of one or two, have all been specially written for the book, and the contributors include most of the best names in literature and art. Many very beautiful illustrations are reproduced by the four-colour process. It was only by printing an extremely large quantity of the book that the publishers, Messrs. Jarrold & Sons, were able to produce at the price announced—3s. net.

Her Majesty Queen Mary has manifested great interest in the book, and has signified her intention to purchase several copies when ready.

Trade Notes

THE trade will be interested to know that Messrs. Jarrold & Sons, of Norwich and London, have secured the services, as manager, of Mr. Arthur Greening, late of Messrs. Greening & Co.

Mr. Chas. H. Cummins, Bookseller, Stroud Green Road, has been presented with an oak writing desk and illuminated address by the members of the North London Branch of the London and Provincial Retail Newsagents Association, as a token of appreciation for faithful and zealous services as honorary secretary.

Revision of Trade terms on non-net Books

SIR,—Relative to the revision of terms to the trade advised by some publishers, I think immediate action ought to be taken by the Associated Booksellers, and the lines I suggest would be that every bookseller in the country exhibits a printed notice in his window advising the public that some publishers having revised the cost of all discountable books in their catalogue to the trade (other than six shilling novels), on account of the increased cost of paper, printing and bookbinding, and those terms being identical with those which the public participate in at the moment, i.e., 3d. in the 1s. discount, the carriage and all other expenses having to be borne by the retailer, that there is no alternative but to reduce the rate of discount to the public to 2d. in the 1s., and that such books can be procured to order only.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES P. PORTER
(Proprietor of Galloway & Porter.
University Booksellers, Cambridge.)

[We are sure the public will recognise that when everything is increasing in price they must expect books also to cost more. From their advertisement in our issue this week it will be seen that Messrs. Stanley Paul & Co. are including net books in their revised terms. Messrs. Macmillan inform us that six-shilling novels and net books are not affected by their revised trade terms. So far as we can ascertain only the firms mentioned have altered their terms at present, but we are told others feel they may be compelled to follow suit. It is surely an argument in favour of making all books net as far as possible, including fiction, as is done in America.—ED.]

English editions of Dana's "Two Years before the Mast"

SIR,—May I be permitted to add to my former letters on the above subject an extract from a letter I have just received from Mr. S. G. Roe, of Ross, Herefordshire. Mr. Roe writes :—"I was very much interested in your letter to THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR of September 25th regarding Dana's book, 'Two Years Before the Mast,' as I have a copy dated 1841. My copy is in the original paper covers as issued by Moxon, of London, much like one of our modern 6d. novels except that it cost 3s. 6d. when issued. The publisher has a lengthy foreword which says very distinctly that his is the first English edition, and he also says that officers of our Navy were of opinion that the work would be of benefit to the Fleet, which may have originated the story of its 'presentation.'" Thus we see that the first American edition appeared in 1840, and the first English edition in 1841, a compliment not only to the great qualities of the work, but also to the quick intelligence of the English publisher.—Yours, &c.,

T. P. BROWNE.

DEAR SIR,—With reference to the note, "Centennial of the Author of 'Two Years Before the Mast,'" in THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR of September 4th, and Mr. T. P. Browne's (of Newcastle-on-Tyne) reply to it in the issue of September 25th, page 772, will you kindly allow me herewith to corroborate his explanation as to the first English edition, &c., as I happen to be likewise in the possession of another copy of the very exact description in all but the size of it, viz., 5½ × 3½, which cannot be a 24mo. That the ship is actually the Pilgrim is mentioned in my copy at the very Pratt, and the date of it, 1845, as documentary evidence, the two different editions published by Routledge and by Moxon in 1854 cannot have been the first English editions.

In conclusion, will you kindly take notice of the extracted quotations below (as to dates) (at page 65 in my copy), and compare them with those of your statement of September 4th:—

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind,
 and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books,
 from the invention of printing to
 the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints
 and Arundel Prints are included.
 The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best,
 bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most-easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication
 which gives the entire catalogue
 of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest
 help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

IMPORTANT

Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co., Ltd., wish to point out that no blame can be attached to them in case of non-arrival of supplies of BELTAN THE SMITH, by JEFFERY FARNOL, 6/-, published yesterday. Every effort has been made to get copies into the hands of Booksellers on or before the day of publication. The great demand was fully anticipated, but many Carriers and Packers have refused to take delivery, and several Railway and Steamship Companies declined to accept parcels or bales.

"dropped"

"FOR THIS RELIEF MUCH THANKS."

—Hamlet.

ANYTHING more unwise than to tax postage at a time when business is under the heels of War—or at any time—it is difficult to imagine. It would be equivalent to taking away the oil and substituting sand in all the machinery of the State.

For all newspapers like ours, depending so largely for their distribution on the post, the increase in our bill for postage from ½d. to 1d. would have meant a loss of hundreds of pounds per annum. We did our best to aid the general protest against the abolition of the halfpenny postage rate, and, to quote "Hamlet" again, may at least lay the flattering unction to our soul that as Mr. McKenna and Mr. Herbert Samuel both promised to give our arguments consideration, that at least they helped.

Official Statement in the Commons

Mr. Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster-General, announced in the House of Commons on Tuesday that the proposal to abolish the halfpenny postal rates has been dropped.

In reply to Sir W. Byles (L., Salford, N.) Mr. Samuel said :—

"With respect to the proposal to abolish the halfpenny postal rates, it is clear from the representations which have been received that even if adopted for the period of the war there would be a widespread public demand for a return to the halfpenny postage. The additional rate cannot, therefore, be regarded as likely to prove a continuing source of revenue.

"As to the amount of revenue to be expected, the Post Office estimate which was presented to the Retrenchment Committee was speculative, since there was no previous experience which afforded any guidance. The estimate made a large allowance for probable diminution of traffic in consequence of the increased rates, and it is recognised that the allowance may well be insufficient, particularly at the outset. In view of these considerations and the disturbance of business arrangements that would be involved by the changes, the Government will not proceed with the proposed increases in the postcard and halfpenny packet rates.

"At the same time it is considered that the regulations by which any registered daily or weekly newspaper up to the limit of 5 lb. in weight must be carried by the Post Office for a halfpenny should no longer be continued. I shall propose that the halfpenny rate should be confined to newspapers weighing 6 oz. or less, which will include all the ordinary numbers of the daily papers, and above that there should be an additional charge of a halfpenny for every further 6 oz.

"With respect to Press telegraph rates, I have been in communication with representatives of all Press organisations, and I propose by agreement with them to modify the scale of charges. I will make a further statement on the second reading of the Bill."

Subsequently Mr. Samuel introduced a Bill to alter the statutory limits of postal and telegraph rates, and for purposes connected therewith. It was read a first time.

Notes and Announcements

"THE BOOK OF THE THIN RED LINE" is the taking title of Sir Henry Newbolt's new book, which will be Messrs. Longmans' Christmas Book for 1915. It is published at 5s. net, and contains eight coloured plates and thirty-eight illustrations in black-and-white by Stanley L. Wood.

Constantinople has the eyes of the world on it, and great interest attaches to the announcement of Messrs. Longmans' new illustrated work, entitled "Constantinople Old and New." The author, Mr. H. G. Dwight, has lived in the famous city in boyhood and manhood, in real intimacy with the people.

"Midsummer Magic," by Walter Bamfylde, appears to be pleasing the critics more and more, both in England and America, at least those who have had the good fortune to read the proof sheets or the original manuscript. Messrs. Putnam's Sons, who have acquired the American and Canadian rights, think so highly of it that they give it first place in their list.

Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. are printing a second impression of Mr. Ian Malcolm's "War Pictures Behind the Lines," and the work will appear shortly in a French translation with MM. Berger Levrault, of Paris. The publication of the book in the United States has been arranged with Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co., of New York.

"Between the Lines," by Boyd Cable, which Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. will publish on October 28th, is an attempt to tell something of the manner of struggle that has gone on for months between the lines along the Western Front, and more especially of what lies behind and goes to the making of those curt and vague terms in the War communiqués. The whole of the book has been written at the Front, within sound of the German guns, and for the most part within shell and rifle range.

The critical position of affairs in the Balkans and the important part played by Greece in the political drama there, make particularly appropriate the publication of "The Life of M. Venizelos," which Mr. Murray is issuing. The biography is written by M. Kerofilas, who not only knows M. Venizelos intimately as a friend, but has accompanied the great statesman on many of his diplomatic missions. It is, therefore, a book of no usual authority.

Within the next week or two, Mr. Murray will publish Mrs. Kathleen Norris' novel, "The Story of Julia Page."

Messrs. Blackwood announce for publication on the 19th inst., a book of particular interest by Mr. Robert Holmes, the well-known Police Court Missionary and Probation Officer. During the last seventeen years, Mr. Holmes has visited in their own homes, 16,738 men and lads, after prosecution in the police court; and most of these have now retrieved their position in society. When the War broke out, 1,267 of them answered the Nation's call, and in "My Police Court Friends with the Colours," Mr. Holmes places before their fellow-countrymen the brief biographies of seventy-two of these heroes. The publishers think so well of the book that they are bringing it within the reach of all by issuing it at 2s. net.

As a real thrill, "The Thirty-Nine Steps," by Mr. John Buchan, which Messrs. Blackwood are issuing on the 19th, in their "Popular Shilling Series," can have few rivals. Mr. John Buchan is sending some of the best accounts we have had from the fighting line in France.

Messrs. Blackwood are also issuing in this series a new edition of one of their most popular volumes, Mrs. Diver's famous novel, "Captain Desmond, V.C." Mrs. Diver has revised and partly rewritten this book, and this—the twenty-sixth impression—will be a much altered and greatly improved version.

Messrs. Methuen announce the publication of Mr. Samuel J. Beckett's "The Fjords and Folk of Norway." The first half of this work deals with the history of Norway, its literature, art, folklore and national life, and the remaining portion is devoted to an alphabetical index of most of the better-known places on the Norwegian coast. It is illustrated by numerous original photographs.

Mr. Robert Scott announces for immediate publication a new work by the Rev. Prebendary H. P. Denison, B.A., entitled "Some Spiritual Lessons of the War," and also a new volume of "Illustrations from the Great War," by the Rev. J. W. W. Moeran, M.A.

Not Nietzsche misunderstood, but Gobineau misunderstood is the driving spirit behind the enemy in this war. The "Inequality of Human Races," which Mr. Heinemann is publishing next week, was shamelessly misinterpreted by the German professors and adapted to the imperialistic needs of their country. Races being unequal—so these worthies told their compatriots—the Teuton race was the superior race and destined to govern the world.

"Battle" is the title of a little brochure of verse by Wilfrid Wilson Gibson, just published by Mr. Elkin Mathews. The author appears to have written most of these striking poems during or in the intervals of battle in Belgium.

MANGEL-WURZELS

Last year I was hoeing, Hoeing mangel-wurzels,
Hoeing mangel-wurzels all day in the sun.
Hoeing for the squire
Down in Gloucestershire
Willy-nilly till the sweating job was done.

Now I'm in the 'wurzels
In the mangel-wurzels,
All day in the 'wurzels 'neath the Belgian sun.

But among this little lot
It's a different job I've got—
For you don't hoe mangel-wurzels with a gun.

Mr. S. T. Wood, who is well known and greatly appreciated in Canada for his delightful nature study sketches, will shortly publish through Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons a book entitled "The Rambles of a Canadian Naturalist." The book will contain six colour pictures by R. Holmes and 27 decorations in black and white.

Mr. Unwin will publish on October 18th, Mr. Jethro Bithell's book on "Contemporary Belgian Literature." The virility and daring of the Belgians is manifested as much in their recent literature as in their struggle with Germany.

In view of the great revival of interest in Russian literature, Mr. Unwin is publishing on October 18th, a new edition of a remarkable novel, "Mimi's Marriage," by V. Mikoulitch (Lidia Ivanovna Veselitskaya). A special introduction has been written for the new edition by Dr. C. Hagberg Wright.

"The Jolly Duchess," Mr. Charles E. Pearce's forthcoming book on Harriot, Duchess of St. Albans, and her times, will be of especial interest both to the lover of stage gossip, and to the student of social life in the early years of the nineteenth century. It is unusually rich in illustrations of the caricatures of the day, all of which are reproduced for the first time. But perhaps that which will entertain most is the curious story of the double marriage of Harriot Mellon to Thomas Coutts, the banker. Outside the Coutts family probably no one knows the facts of this romance, with its secret and irregular ceremony in St. Pancras church, the bribing of the curate, the falsification of the register, and the compulsory second solemnization. Thomas Coutts died a few years after his marriage, and his widow then married the Duke of St. Albans. The late Baroness Burdett Coutts, of course, derived her wealth from the Duchess. Messrs. Stanley Paul & Co. are the publishers.

Messrs. Greening & Co. will have ready shortly in their Lotus Library Series of translations of Continental authors, "Madame Bovary," by Gustave Flaubert, "Salammbô," by Gustave Flaubert, "Sapho," by Alphonse Daudet, "Vathek," by William Beckford.

"The Hoverers," by Lucas Cleeve, has been added to Greening & Co.'s "Clear Type" series of sixpenny novels.

Mr. John Lane will publish on the 19th inst. a new volume of poems by Stephen Phillips. It is called "Panama and Other Poems," and is uniform with the other works of this author. There is an original etching frontispiece by Joseph Pennell of a part of the Panama Canal during its construction.

An interesting addition to the literature dealing with the war will be published immediately by Messrs. Macmillan, under the title of "With the Russian Army: being the experiences of a National Guardsman." Its author, Major Robert R. McCormick, is an American who was invited by the Grand Duke Nicolas to visit the troops under his command, and was furthermore permitted to see the inside of the Russian military organisation and frontier fortresses. It will contain some attractive illustrations.

Messrs. Macmillan will also publish immediately "The Personal Life of Josiah Wedgwood, the Potter," by his great-granddaughter, the late Miss Julia Wedgwood. The volume has been revised and edited, with an introduction and a prefatory memoir of the author, by Professor C. H. Herford, and there are a number of illustrations.

Sir Mark Sykes, M.P., has written a short history of the Turkish Empire, and it is about to be issued by Messrs. Macmillan, under the title of "The Caliphs' Last Heritage." It is provided with illustrations and maps.

Bishop Welldon's volume of reminiscences entitled "Recollections and Reflections," is announced for publication on the 21st inst., by the House of Cassell. At one time Captain of Eton and later Headmaster of Harrow, he stands in the unique position of being able to contrast the methods of the two great public schools, and their formative influences. During his episcopate in India he was brought into contact with many religious faiths, and he will state his views upon the spirit of the British Government, upon Christian Missions, and upon the native questions. As Canon of Westminster he was one of the ecclesiastics officiating at the Coronation of King Edward VII, and his volume gives us an interesting account of the ceremony while Manchester affords him the opportunity as Dean of Manchester of dealing with many unconsidered aspects of industrial matters.

In aid of our Blinded Soldiers and Sailors

18 crown 4to. at 3s. net on October 29th, as we have previously mentioned, Messrs. Jarrold & Sons are publishing a work which needs no words of ours to recommend it to all the booksellers in our Empire. It is published in aid of our splendid men who in land fights or sea fights have been blinded in this great war. It is called "The Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Gift Book." Mr. Goodchild, the Editor, one of Messrs. Jarrold's staff who has just got his commission, called and gave us some interesting particulars about the book—already his firm has had to reprint it three times before publication. The contributors include many of the best writers of the day; there are coloured illustrations by Hugh Thomson, and many reproductions from photographs showing the blind at work, &c.

BLIND SOLDIERS AND SAILORS AT WORK. From "The Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Gift Book" (Jarrold)

established a magnificent hostel at St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park, where our brave blinded defenders may be received and trained to their new condition of life. No cause is more worthy of support than this, which aims to build around these isolated lives a world in which they may find comfort, and, so far as it is possible, relief from the calamity which has befallen them. The blinded heroes lead very active lives: Braille reading, writing and typewriting are taught them by a skilled staff; carpentry, boot repairing, mat making, basket making, massage and telephony are also taught. In the grounds of the hostel the men receive instruction in poultry farming, market gardening, and other useful occupations. Upon the completion of their training, the men will be placed in the most suitable surroundings—generally in their own homes—in various parts of the country, where they may carry on the trades they have learned.

Every sale of a copy of the Blinded's Book will materially assist in carrying on the good work which has already achieved most satisfactory results.

The Bible in Portuguese

THE completion of the translation of the entire Bible into the Portuguese language is announced by the American Bible Society, which says that the great Portuguese-speaking public is not in Portugal, but in Brazil, and here the language is undergoing many changes.

Authors and the War

MR. RUDYARD KIPLING is not the only novelist who has lost a son in action. "George Egerton's" only boy died bravely about the same time as Mr. John Kipling, as did the son of the late Mr. Richard Marsh. Other novelist fathers in mourning are Mr. Neil Munro and Mr. Horace Annesley Vachell. A son of the late Marion Crawford and a son of the late Oscar Wilde also have fallen.—News of the World.

Death of John Bishop Putnam

WE regret to say news has been received by cable from New York of the death of Mr. John Bishop Putnam on Thursday, October 7th. Mr. Putnam was a partner in the firm of G. P. Putnam's Sons, and the managing director of the Knickerbocker Press. He was born in 1848, and throughout his career he was associated with the publishing house founded by his father. He had charge of the manufacturing side of the business, including printing, engraving and binding, and he took a prominent part in all matters connected with the American printing trade. For recreation the out-of-door life appealed to him strongly, and he was an enthusiastic angler and traveller, especially in the wild parts of America and Canada. He leaves a widow and two sons, Robert Faulkner Putnam, who is in the publishing house, and George Palmer Putnam, who is Mayor of Bend, Oregon. Mr. Putnam last visited London in January, 1912.

"Every Irishman's Library"

MR. T. FISHER UNWIN has added a famous book, Maxwell's "Wild Sports of the West," to his new and most attractive series entitled "Every Irish-man's Library," of which some six volumes are now ready, price 2s. 6d. each, in a handsome Irish green cloth, which shows up the gold lettering and the quaint design which is evidently copied from some old Irish cross or monument.
The general editors of this new "Library"
are A. P. Graves, M.A., Wm. Magennis, M.A., and Douglas Hyde, LL.D.; and this book by W. H. Maxwell has an Introduction by the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Dunraven. Every sportsman with any literary feeling at all must sooner or later come across the "Wild Sports of the West." The title alone is a good enough introduction, and in his Introduction the Earl of Dunraven has said just the very words we should have said by way of warning to the reader of today, who doubtless has often seen references to this book as a classic on sport, and who may be disappointed if he expects too much. This book was first published by Richard Bentley in 2 vols.
in 1832, and was reprinted by him two or three times, and by others later.
During the best part of a century since it was written a thousand books of the kind have appeared, and the reader of to-day is in consequence far more exacting. The chief value of the book is the racy picture it gives of Irish life and of sport in the wilds of Connaught soon after the battle of Waterloo. By the way, Maxwell's "Stories of Waterloo" is a delightful book by one who took part in the battle as a captain in the 88th Regiment, and had previously fought in the Peninsular campaign; it well deserves a place in this Irishman's Library. Maxwell was not a very experienced angler when he visited Connaught;
he tells us as much himself; and he was a little too ready to accept the stories about monster fish, especially pike, which he heard, also to believe that the only flies and tackle of the least use were those used by the natives. Although sport is the staple of the book, there is so much breezy description of a country which was then, as he tells us, almost as unknown as Australia, and of its people, life and legends, that it is not necessary to be a lover of the rod or the gun to find interest in its pages. From the following little note it will be seen that even its latest publisher has found it attractive:—

MY DEAR MARSTON,—I have been reading with great pleasure "Wild Sports of the West," by W. H. Maxwell. I suppose it is a novelty for a publisher to read his own books! However, as you are a fisherman and will appreciate the volume I am sending a copy on for your acceptance.—Yours very truly,
T. FISHER UNWIN.

If we may make a suggestion to the editors it is that a little bibliography of each work they select would be useful and interesting. The reader can then see its pedigree at a glance. Although not reprinted so many times as some books on sport, few books have been more quoted from than this.

New Regulations re Parcels for Holland

MR. H. E. CRIBB, of Wm. Dawson & Sons (Low's Export Dept.), kindly writes to say:—

"It may interest you to know that we have just been informed that in future the Customs at Harwich will not allow through any parcels going to "Holland" which contain maps above the scale of 4 in. to a mile, this refers to all illustrated papers and printed books from England."

Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. will publish a new book entitled "The Pearl Fishers," by H. De Vere Stacpoole, author of "The Blue Lagoon." This is a story of adventure on a South-Sea coral island.

Mr. Galsworthy

"AND after all, life is a splendid thing. Mr. Galsworthy seems to have mellowed a bit with the passing years. He was never acrid or bitter, but in the older days he was generally ironic. Now he is broader in his sympathy or in his love. He has no villains; he has many who seem inordinately stupid, tedious, dull, narrow, selfish, but they generally have something nice about them for all that. They do all kinds of things; they are hot-tempered, weak, silly, hasty, irrational, brave, loving, but never simply malignant or malevolent. It is a long time since we have had one who came so near the great satirist of an earlier day who gave us his view of partial evil and universal good. We may gather that in this case, as in that, we have more of a literary than a philosophic view; but that is a very good thing, for it is literature with which we are dealing. It is certainly no philosophic view that Mr. Galsworthy means to offer us; he will be satisfied if he can make us see with him—

'The glory, jest, and riddle of the world.'

EDWARD E. HALE.

(From a long article in the Chicago Dial.)

New volumes in "Everyman's Library"

MESSRS. J. M. DENT & SONS will publish twelve important new books in their "Everyman's Library" about October 22nd. This issue is one of the most interesting we have had for some time for it includes Green's "Short History of the English People" in two volumes. This edition is more than a mere reprint, for Mr. L. Cecil Jane, without interfering with the author's text in any way, has revised the data carefully by adding critical notes where necessary at the end of the sections and has revised the lists of the authorities. In a preface he sums up the value of this great history. There is also an appendix of some 40 pages by Mr. R. P. Farley, B.A., which brings the history up to date and deals specially with the advance in social policy and life during the nineteenth century. The two volumes thus make the most complete history of the English people extant. In the 1s. cloth edition the work is in two volumes, but in all other editions the two volumes are bound together. In the Essay section there will be an important edition of Newman's "On the Scope and Nature of University Education" with an introduction by Wilfrid Ward. A volume of Penn's includes "The Peace of Europe, Some Fruits of Solitude, and other Writings." In Fiction, the works of Dickens will be completed in the Library by "Edwin Drood," with an introduction by G. K. Chesterton, and Gogol, the great Russian novelist will be introduced into the "Everyman's Library" by his "Dead Souls," translated into English by C. J. Hogarth. The other fiction volume will be Balzac's "Ursule Mirouet" with an introduction by George Saintsbury. Ibsen will be represented by a volume which contains three of his comedies, "Lady Inger of Ostraat," "Love's Comedy."

and "The League of Youth," translated into English by R. Farquharson Sharp. Some of Mrs. Ewing's best known and much-loved stories will form two volumes. The first will contain "Mrs. Overtheway's Remembrances," &c., and the second "Jackanapes" and "Daddy Darwin's Dovecot," illustrated by R. Caldecott, and "The Story of a Short Life," illustrated by Dora Curtis. The volume will contain an introduction by Mrs. Horatia K. F. Eden. The other book in the Young People's section will be George Macdonald's "Phantastes: A Faerie Romance," with an introduction by Dr. Greville MacDonald. In Biography there is "The Life of the first Duke of Newcastle," and other writings, by Margaret, Duchess of Newcastle.

Famous German Orientalists killed in action

WAR's devastation in the field of letters and learning has never been so great as in this present conflict, partly because there never before has been so great a war, and still more because no previous war has involved to such an extent the foremost nations of the civilised world. A single news item from the Frankfurter Zeitung is illustrative: "Oriental scholarship in Germany has suffered a severe loss in the death, on the battlefield, of three of its most prominent exponents, Dr. Erich Graefe, Hermann Thorning, and Ewald Lüders. Dr. Graefe, whose brilliant work in Semitic languages, and especially in the dialects current in Egypt, had already marked him out for a high position in the Hamburg Seminary, fell in the battle on the Marne; Thorning whose investigations into the Islamic brotherhood of the Dervishes cast new light upon the relationship of that order to Western European religious institutions, was killed at Esternay; and Lüders, a specialist in Oriental jurisprudence, was slain at Vitry-le-François." When the end is reached and the death lists are all in, there will be a staggering array of talent and genius lost to the world. And yet we still hear an occasional voice raised in behalf of the insane delusion that all this slaughter will somehow result in cultural progress!—The Dial.

Book Auction Sales

From their advertisement in our columns it will be seen that Messrs. Hodgson of Chancery Lane, the famous auctioneers of books and library property, are resuming their sales towards the end of this month. We are glad to hear from them that War has not interfered with their business nearly so much as they expected.

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS.—Messrs. Karlake ask us to state that this year's volume may be later than usual, in consequence of a parcel containing the stock of six entire sheets having been lost in transit by the railway. It is hoped that the parcel may yet be found as if not the missing sheets will have to be reprinted.

Letters to the Editor

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our Correspondents.

A Note from Melbourne

DEAR SIR,—In your PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR of July 3rd, under the heading of "An Austrian Army Awfully Arrayed," appears a verse whose authorship your readers would, perhaps, like to know.

The writer of the lines—

"'Tis books will cause the flag of peace through earth to be unfurled, Produce the parliament of man and federate the world," is Mr. E. W. Cole, of Cole's Book Arcade, Melbourne, now in his eighty-third year.

This verse appears in a poem on books, entitled "What Books Have Done and Will Do for Mankind," p. 22. The original is written, "Books thus will cause the flag of peace," &c., and not as quoted in THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR.

I have pleasure in forwarding, under separate cover, with Mr. E. W. Cole's compliments, some copies of the complete poem. Also a pamphlet, entitled "Sayings of a Hundred Great Men," in praise of books, which may also be of interest.—Yours truly,

T. E. G. SMITH,

Manager for E. W. Cole.

Sydney, N.S.W.

[We are much obliged to Mr. Cole, and will send copies to our correspondents. Since that correspondence about "An Austrian Army Awfully Arrayed," appeared in the P.C., with German help they've gone and got Belgrade. But if the Huns go far enough, they will find themselves, like the Turks, up against an Australian Army.—ED.]

The Cambridge Pocket Diary, 1915-1916

DEAR SIR,—I have pleasure in sending you herewith a copy of The Cambridge Pocket Diary, 1915-16. The Diary has for some years proved its usefulness to all who are interested in the work of the University of Cambridge, and it will, I think, be found useful by many others in academic and legal circles, since it meets the need which has often been felt for a diary that will cover the academic year, beginning with October, rather than the calendar year beginning with January. The Cambridge Pocket Diary is published in three forms: (1) in roan limp with rounded corners and gilt edges, price 1s. net; (2) in Persian calf binding with a pocket attached to the back, containing a pencil and a pocket in the cover for stamps, &c., price 2s. net; (3) in Russia binding, with a pencil, price 2s. 6d. net.—Yours faithfully,

C. F. CLAY, Manager.

The Cambridge University Press,
Fetter Lane, E.C.

[A most useful little pocket diary for all who are going to Cambridge, or are there, or have been there; a most acceptable present for a Cambridge man at the Front.—ED.]

"Le Cippe"

DEAR SIR,—The book which we beg to submit to-day to your judgment is but a short one. However the rare qualities of "Le Cippe" ("The Tombstone") compensate for its lack of quantity. If the publishers' opinion is of any importance, we may perhaps be allowed to say that we consider this booklet a little masterpiece, not only as a pathetic human document of high psychologic value, but above all as a jewel of style. We dare say that probably no living French author writes a more perfect, a more ideal language. Considered as fiction only, the series of letters which form "Le Cippe" are of slight interest. But the idea of these letters, addressed by a woman to a friend, at first while he is alive, and then after his death in order to erect him a memorial, is very poetic.—Yours faithfully,

THE IRIS PUBLISHING CO.

September 29th.

[It is certainly a very delicate and artistic play on the intellectual feelings of a woman who imagines herself merged into the soul of her lover. It is rather morbid—as must any letters to a dead person be—and yet her faith in his living on is vividly presented. It is tragic with the poignancy of love in face of death.]

Trade Terms

SIR,—I note your editorial comment on my letter to you re trade terms on non-net books. I agree with you that it is an argument in favour of making all books net; but I do not agree that the trade should have their standard discounts disorganised through a few firms, and when the obvious solution for any publisher is to issue and price his publications solely on the cost of production, and which practice has surely been in vogue in the past.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES P. PORTER.

From Messrs. Cassell & Co., Ltd.—"The Cinematograph Book: a Complete, Practical Guide to the Taking and Projecting of Cinematograph Pictures," edited by Bernard E. Jones, editor of Work; with eight half-tone plates and numerous line drawings in the text. This book, as the preface tells us, provides a simple and easily understood guide to the art and practice of making and projecting cinematograph pictures. There are also directions for home exhibitions; and when the dangers of the film have really been eliminated, we expect to see an unbounded increase in the use of the cinematograph in the home, the school, and the lecture room. We should like to ask Mr. Radford, whose name figures so prominently as President of the Film Censors, why he allows so many Americans to open that inevitable drawer, to pull out that inevitable gun, and commit suicide as regularly as though it were a law of nature. It is not a good suggestion to plant in the minds of the young. In fact, the use of the gun in American films is overdone and absurd—unless we are to suppose that Americans can never hit anything they aim at, or never use bullets; perhaps their suicides are done with blank cartridge.

From Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co., Ltd.—"Beltane the Smith: a Romance," by Jeffery Farnol, author of "The Broad Highway." The traveller in our Islands, especially if a native, cannot fail to be impressed and greatly interested by the great number of extinct volcanoes which are met with in every direction—ruins of the castles and keeps of the brave old days of chivalry. Many a writer has attempted to revive for us the life of those times—few, indeed, with any approach to the success of Sir Walter Scott—and it has always seemed to us to be one of the most difficult things to make a really successful work of the imagination out of those days of feudal chieftains, generally at war with each other, and united only when some strong king held them in subjection. Mr. Farnol is not a Sir Walter; the sense of mystery, the touch of melancholy or of sadness, the air of learning, and, above all, the poetic feeling so interwoven in Scott's splendid romances, if not all absent in "Beltane the Smith," are far less impressive. But in the great essentials of vivid reflection of life and character, and the power to interest the reader in beings whose counterparts lived centuries ago, Mr. Farnol has few equals. In this strong and bold story of great adventures and fine actions, the scenes and characters are so well set forth that the reader, for the time, takes part in them. Instead of empty ruins, the great strongholds are alive with life, and we see them belching forth knights in armour with their followers, to ravage and destroy, to fight for each other or against each other, to besiege each other, to carry off each other's fair ladies, and—generally speaking—to do all those great things which Don Quixote praised, as well as all those evil things that came under the lash of his scorn. In addition to being very strong, very handsome, very brave, very gentle, very obstinate, and in every possible way a knight fit to be of the company of King Arthur, in addition to all this, our hero—"My Beltane," as his chronicler lovingly calls him—is a reformer centuries ahead of his time: serfdom and the divine right of dukes and kings to do as they please are denounced by him, whose motto was liberty, equality and fraternity. But obstinate and Quixotic as he often is, we are not surprised that the fairest ladies and noblest fall in love with him; and very charming, indeed, is the way they make love to him, and his, at first, but occasional responses. In fact, until the last chapter, neither the proud and glorious young Duchess Helen of Mortain, nor the reader, is sure that the pseudo smith, but real duke and hero, will ever get the chance to get those children of his own which his faithful Roger so often promised him. These are fighting times. Beltane is always fighting, but always to help the helpless, to set free the prisoners, to punish and root out the lords of misrule. It is a book which, if others like as much as we do, will be indeed well liked for its fine spirit and good humour, for its gaiety and variety of great and wonderful adventures, and for its vivid and convincing picture of the times when Ludlow Castle, Hurstmonceaux, Pevensey, Peel, Norham, Pontefract, Newcastle, and a hundred other castles and keeps were young and arrogant. That the lovely Helen should have donned armour, taken service with her lover as his squire, passed through many perils with him, and he not even guess she was a woman, till he caught her bathing by moonlight—well, it all makes the romance the more romantic.

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind, and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books, from the invention of printing to the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints and Arundel Prints are included. The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best, bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication which gives the entire catalogue of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

UNWIN'S CORNER (17)

INDIAN THOUGHT: Past and Present

This work has been undertaken with the object of presenting to students and to the general public an account of the thought underlying the social and religious situation in India to-day. Seeley, in his "Expansion of Empire," drew attention to the fact that "the most characteristic work of our Empire is the introduction in the midst of Brahmanism of European views of the Universe." An examination has therefore been undertaken into the history of Indian thought. It has been traced from the Vedic period through the Upanishads, the various schools of Philosophic systems, and through Buddhism to the present day. The doctrines of religious systems, so far as they are based on philosophic thought, are detailed, and their pantheistic, idealistic or theistic principles explained.

"In Aid of the Funds of the National Book Trade Provident Society"

"The Odd Volume"

It would be interesting if the Secretary of the N.B.T.P.S. could tell us whose idea it was originally to build, equip, and launch "The Odd Volume," as an aid to that excellent Society. Also it would be interesting to know how much hard cash the excellent idea has already brought in.

The Editor, Mr. St. John Adcock, is to be congratulated on having succeeded, in spite of the War, in producing such a bright and lively budget of illustrations, mainly in colour, and articles by many of the best-known and most popular artists and writers of the day—including, among the

Writers

Neil Munro, A. St. John Adcock, J. E. Patterson, Walter Emanuel, Coulson Kernahan, F. Raymond Coulson, Robb Lawson, W. L. George, Holbrook Jackson, Richard le Gallienne, Winifred B. Mylechreest, St. John G. Ervine, Muriel Stuart, Sylvia Lynd, W. Pett Ridge, Editha L. Blaikley, F. J. Randall, and Bart Kennedy.

Artists

W. Campbell Nicolson (who has done a capital cover for this year's "Odd Volume," with jolly portraits of two lawyers, Asquith and Darling—or is it F. E. Smith?), Chas. Crombie, Lawson Wood, G. A. Boden, Wilmot-Lunt, G. E. Studdy, John Hassall, Geo. Belcher, J. A. Shepherd, W. Heath Robinson, Harold C. Earnshaw, A. K. Macdonald, Will Owen, Arthur Watts, G. L. Stampa, J. V. Abbey, Geo. Morrow, A. Wallis Mills, Frank Emanuel, Leslie F. Everett, Ernest Blaikley, Alfred Leete, E. A. Stevens, Lewis Baumer, C. E. Brock, H. Radcliffe Wilson, James Thorpe, E. H. Shepherd, Lance Thackeray, Bert Thomas, Hope Read, W. K. Haselden, Sir R. Baden-Powell, Harry Rountree, Chas. Robinson, Starr Wood, Thomas Downey, R. E. Higgins.

In the name of the book trade, we beg to thank all these writers and artists and can assure them that the help they have so generously given to the National Book Trade Provident Society is fully appreciated—especially in such a time as this, when the work of the writer and artist is so seriously affected.

In his Editorial Note, Mr. Adcock makes handsome acknowledgment for value received in the shape of assistance rendered, for instance:—

How much "The Odd Volume" owes in this as in other years to the able and energetic management of Mr. Harold Shaylor (of Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall & Co.), and to the unfailing interest of the members of "The Odd Volume" Committee, nobody knows better than myself, whose work has been lightened and made pleasant by their co-operation to such an extent that I feel I can scarcely call it by the name of work without flattering myself unduly.

We feel we should like to give the names of all the publishing houses and other advertisers who have subscribed to its success by paying for advertisements—but there are more than sixty of them.

A word of praise is due to "The Complete Press," of West Norwood, London, which establishment appears to have engraved the illustrations and done all the printing, including the very excellent colour printing.

It is almost unnecessary to ask our readers to get all the customers they can for "The Odd Volume," except that this year the public is being stormed at on every side for money—and is not so willing to part with a shilling as in the piping times of peace.

Notes and Announcements

MESSRS. MACMILLAN & Co. will publish immediately, at the price of sixpence net, a booklet containing Mr. Rudyard Kipling's articles on "France at War."

Messrs. Macmillan & Co will also publish immediately, under the title of "The Caliphs' Last Heritage," a short history of the Turkish Empire, by Lieut.-Colonel Sir Mark Sykes, Bart., M.P. The volume will contain a number of attractive illustrations and valuable maps.

Messrs. Macmillan have had in preparation for a considerable time, and will shortly publish, their new and final edition of the "Short History of the English People," by J. R. Green—a book which has been in their charge for forty years. This final edition now about to be published, includes an Epilogue which continues the history to the present day. Seventy pages of this epilogue are devoted to the social and industrial history of England; and some eighty pages to foreign and imperial policy, and to the development of the great dominions of the Empire. In this work Mrs. Green has had the advice and assistance of scholars who have valued the "Short History of the English People."

* THE ODD VOLUME, Edited by A. St. John Adcock, Published in aid of the Funds of the National Book Trade Provident Society. London: Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., Ltd.

Yet another addition to the literature dealing with the Great War is about to appear, under the title of "With the Russian Army: being the Experiences of a National Guardsman." Its author, Major Robert R. McCormick, is an American who has enjoyed a very exceptional opportunity of gathering valuable information, for he was, as a special mark of favour, invited by the Grand Duke Nicolas to visit the troops under his command, and was furthermore permitted to see the inside of the Russian military organisation and frontier fortresses. The book will be attractively illustrated, and will be published by Messrs. Macmillan & Co.

Mr. John Foster Fraser, who has returned from a visit to Russia, where he went to examine industrial and economic conditions during the present War, has just completed a volume entitled "Russia of To-day," which will be published immediately by The House of Cassell.

Gardening handbooks have always been a feature of Messrs. Cassell's big series of gardening volumes. The latest two additions will appeal to the amateur gardener as distinctly topical. "Bulb Growing for Amateurs" shows how it is possible to have a gay garden all the year round by means of the bulbous plants. "The Greenhouse, its Flowers and Management" tells how to grow scores of beautiful flowers and how to manage the ventilation, heating, watering and other details. Tables tell at a glance when the plants bloom, when to sow, &c. Cold greenhouse and frame work are also dealt with. Mr. H. H. Thomas, the well-known gardening expert and editor of "The Gardener," is author of both shilling handbooks.

"Cassell's Winter Annual" is described by its publishers as "some" Annual and indeed with its promise of 320 pages for one shilling net it seems to merit the slang phrase. With complete stories by such famous authors as H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, W. J. Locke, Charles Garvice, E. Phillips Oppenheim, A. E. W. Mason, Ruby M. Ayres, I. A. R. Wylie, Mary Cholmondeley, May Edginton, Captain Frank H. Shaw, and a 60,000 word novel by Andrew Soutar, "Cassell's Winter Annual" should prove record value. In addition to this there is a big Christmas Humour Section of 8 pages in exquisite three-colour work by the most famous of humorous artists. We understand from Messrs. Cassell that the advance orders from the trade have been such as promise to touch the "out of print" mark at an early stage.

Mr. Erskine MacDonald has just published an attractive well-produced little volume containing a collection of verse—good, bad, and indifferent—entitled, "The Glory of Belgium," edited by Russell Markland, with a Preface by Emile Cammaerts. "The Profits on this volume will be devoted to the Belgian Repatriation Fund." It is very delightful to find this confident anticipation of "profits" out of more or less fugitive poems and still more so to suppose that they will aid in the repatriation of Belgium—but it is a charming idea to invite poetry to aid in such a task for gods and men.

Mr. Morton Fullerton's book, "Problems of Power," in addition to the French translation, is to appear also in Japanese.

Mr. Lee Warner, as publisher to the Medici Society, Ltd., is issuing a new series of booklets in literature and the arts under the general title of "Memorabilia." There will be fourteen titles in the first issue, of which eight will be unillustrated and six illustrated. The published price will be one shilling net each. The books are all printed in the well-known Riccardi Press founts designed by Mr. Herbert Horne for the Society.

Messrs. Rivington will publish next week "A Short New Testament History," by the Rev. A. R. Whitham, M.A.

Mrs. Margaret Deland is about to publish through Messrs. Harper, a new volume "Around Old Chester." Dr. Lavender and other friends well known in Mrs. Deland's stories again make their appearance.

"Trench Mates in France," by J. S. Zerby, is a boy's story of war and adventure which makes a point of explaining details of armaments, airships, bombs, strategy and tactics. It will be issued immediately by Messrs. Harper.

Mr. Norman Duncan is publishing immediately through Messrs. Harpers, his "Australian Byways," an account of his travels by stage coach and camel back through the back blocks outskirting Australian civilisation.

"Finland and the Finns," by Mr. Arthur Reade, is a comprehensive description of modern Finland by one who has made his home there. The book contains four illustrations in colour, eight in mono-tone, and a map. Messrs. Methuen are the publishers.

Messrs. Methuen are also publishing "Naples and Southern Italy," a volume of the well-known series by Edward Hutton which will cover the whole of the Italian peninsula. The book deals with Naples fully, and moves by slow stages to Salerno and to Paola, where the mountains are crossed to Cosenza, where Alaric lies buried in the bed of the Buzento. At Taranto Apulia is entered. Finally, after lingering by the way in many a fair city, we reach Benevento on the way back to Naples. There are twelve illustrations in colour by Frank Crisp, who, since painting these water-colours, has died on the field of battle. There are also sixteen other illustrations and a map.

Mr. W. A. Hirst has written a very useful book of convenient size and moderate compass for travellers and all who are interested in South America, including the Panama Canal. The volume is entitled "A Guide to South America," and is published by Messrs. Methuen.

An important biography by Miss Mary F. Sandars is announced by Stanley Paul & Co., for early publication, under the title, "The Life and Times of Queen Adelaide." Queen Adelaide has not hitherto met with very favourable treatment at the hands of historians, and very little is really known concerning her, but Miss Mary Sandars has written her life from a sympathetic point of view, and throws much light on the great difficulties—both political and domestic—which she had to contend with as the wife of William IV. One of the outstanding features of her reign was her successful attempt to raise the morals of the Court, in which work she was a pioneer to her greater successor, Queen Victoria. Besides much information which has never before been printed, the work contains many rare illustrations.

Mr. Archibald Marshall's new story is entitled "Upsidonia," and will be published immediately by Stanley Paul & Co. The story relates the diverting adventures of a young man in a country where poverty is aimed at as the ideal state, and the possession of wealth is considered degrading.

Messrs. McBride, Nast & Co., Rolls House, Bream's Buildings, have been fortunate in securing for their autumn list no fewer than three volumes of interest to all who are attracted by things Russian to-day. Madame Polenov, whose name is already familiar to students of Russian art, took down from the peasants themselves the "Folk Tales" of Russia and has illustrated them in her own inimitable way. The book will contain 12 full page facsimile copper-plate engravings in colour, and the first edition, limited to 350 copies, will be published at two guineas. Miss N. Peacock will contribute a special note on Russian Folk Tales. The second book is "The Russian Garland," edited by Mr. Robert Steele with eight illustrations in colour by Mr. J. R. de Rosciszewski. "The Russian Garland" is taken from some old Russian chap books, and will be published at 3s. 6d. A companion volume will be "Fairy Tales of Eastern Europe," by the translator of "Quo Vadis," who gathered them in the course of his travels.

In letters, as in affairs, something new is always coming out of Africa. A novel of African romance, which is said to be the most striking since "King Solomon's Mines," has been written by Mr. A. A. Nelson under the title "Wings of Danger," and will be published shortly by McBride, Nast & Co. Mr. Nelson blends ancient and modern, and makes Cecil Rhodes' empire building schemes the means of taking the reader to the mysterious land of Valkyria. Viking survivals and modern Britons in Africa open up possibilities of romance of the most refreshing order.

The late Mr. Henry Spicer

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. Henry Spicer, formerly M.P. for South Islington, which took place at Aberdeen Park, Highbury, on October 18th, 1915. Mr. Spicer was a member of the family which controls the well-known paper-making business in New Bridge Street. He was the son of the late Mr. Henry Spicer, of Highlands, Putney Heath, one of the founders of the firm, and cousin to Mr. Evan Spicer L.C.C., and Sir Albert Spicer, M.P.

Like so many other members of the Spicer family (says the Daily Chronicle), Mr. Spicer was a member of the Congregational Church, and was an active worker in connection with church affairs. He was elected in the Liberal interest in 1885 as the first member for South Islington, but lost his seat in the following year as a consequence of the Home Rule split.

Mr. Spicer's health had for many years necessitated an annual visit to Egypt, and this resulted in his interest being aroused in Egyptology. Of recent years his health had become steadily worse, and latterly he had been a confirmed invalid. His wife, who died some years ago, was the daughter of Dr. Mullins, one of the secretaries of the London Missionary Society.

Mr. Spicer was greatly liked by those who came into contact with him in business by reason of his courtesy and affability.

The Book Trade and the War

Mr. H. E. Seagers, Secretary and General Manager of the English Review, has been granted a commission in the Hampshire Regiment; and during his absence on active service, Mr. Andrew Donaldson will act as Secretary and General Manager of the Company.

National Book Trade Provident Society

A MEETING of the Committee of the above society was held on Thursday, October 14th, 1915, in the Registered Offices. Twelve applications for membership in the Insurance Division were received and passed. The Committee granted temporary assistance of 10s. per week for thirteen weeks to a member in Scotland.

Manchester and District Booksellers' and Stationers' Association

At the committee meeting held last Friday, the President, Mr. F. Johnson (Williams & Norgate) in the chair, it was decided to hold a Whist Drive, in aid of the British Red Cross Fund, and as a means of bringing the members together again.

The Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. J. Barlow (S.P.C.K.), reported that a very liberal sum had been subscribed to the fund in aid of the widow and family of a late member, Mr. Mason (formerly of Chorlton & Knowles, Ltd.). The amount raised will enable the committee to make a weekly grant until the New Year.

It was decided to hold the Whist Drive on Saturday evening, November 6th, 1915, at Smallman's Restaurant, Deansgate, Manchester, at 6.45 p.m. For tickets (1s. 6d. each), apply not later than Friday, October 29th, 1915, to Mr. F. J. Barlow, Hon. Secretary (pro. tem.), 12, St. Mary's Street, Deansgate, Manchester.

Mr. Kerslake has retired from the Hon. Secretaryship, having taken another position with the same employers—Messrs. W. H. Smith & Son—in London.

Russian, Arabic and Latin Self-Taught

THE esteem in which the Self-Taught series of language books, published by Messrs. E. Marlborough & Co., is held, is manifested by their growing popularity. This is only to be expected at a time, like the present, when the exigencies of war are daily increasing the necessity for means of intercommunication with Continental countries. The fifth revised edition of "Russian Self-Taught" (2s. 6d., paper 2s.) has just been issued and forms an excellent introduction to the Russian language "as she is spoke." Mr. John Marshall, M.A., for many years resident in Petrograd, has again revised its pages, and the lists of naval and military terms are particularly good. Another excellent feature is the clear Russian text adopted throughout, which combined with the system of phonetic pronunciation in Roman characters will simplify the student's effort, and enable even a casual visitor quickly to make himself understood when called upon to do so. For the future, as trade opens out, this manual should become of even greater value, and we are glad to hear that, with Mr. Marshall's assistance, the publishers are contemplating further developments in connection with the Russian language. "Arabic Self-Taught" (2s. 6d., paper 2s.), fifth edition revised and enlarged, by the Rev. N. Odeh, is not much altered, but is a practical little book likely to continue to be of much service in the Near and Middle East, and we understand there is a good enquiry for it. "Latin Self-Taught" (1s. 6d., paper 1s.), second edition, by John Topham, has an interest of its own, in that it deals with a dead language. It is, however, a language which is one of the principal sources of our own and other European tongues. We understand the issue of the book was somewhat experimental, but it has evidently been successful, seeing that a second edition has already been called for. Several pages are devoted to lists of medical, chemical and dispensing terms, making it all the more acceptable just now to all helpers in hospital and Red Cross work.

The British Review

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & NORGATE inform us that owing to a change of proprietorship of The British Review, no further numbers will be issued by them.

The £1,500 Bross Book Prize awarded

THE second decennial prize of six thousand dollars, offered by the Trustees of Lake Forest University under the terms of a bequest from the late William Bross, has been awarded to the Rev. Thomas James Thorburn, D.D., LL.D., St. Helen's Down, Hastings, England, for his book of Christian apologetics entitled "The Mythical Interpretation of the Gospels: Critical Studies in the Historic Narratives." The judges in this prize competition were President William Douglas Mackenzie of Hartford Seminary, Professor Rufus M. Jones of Haverford College, and Professor Benjamin L. Hobson of McCormick Seminary. Eight months were required for the judges to examine the 49 manuscripts submitted, which represented authors scattered all the way from England through the United States to Japan and Australia. The names and addresses of the competing authors were unknown to the judges, who had before them only the titles of the manuscripts and mottoes appended by the authors. The winning manuscript was numbered thirteen in the list sent to the judges, and its motto was "Vivimus in Spe"—"We live in hope."

The first decennial Bross prize was awarded ten years ago to the late Professor James Orr, D.D., of the United Free Church College, Glasgow, for his treatise on "The Problem of the Old Testament." This book has had a very wide circulation and has been translated into several foreign languages.

The new Bross Prize book will be published as Volume VII of the Bross Library, and in accordance with the provisions of the Deed of Gift, complimentary copies will be sent to libraries throughout the United States and to certain libraries in foreign lands.

"The Gypsy's Parson" *

MESSRS. SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & Co., LTD., have recently brought out one of the most interesting books relating to gypsy life that has ever been published. It is not often that such a staunch non-Church of England paper has such praise for a work by a Church of England parson as the Daily News (October 4th, 1915) has for "The Gypsy's Parson: His Experiences and Adventures," by the Rev. George Hall. Our contemporary in a long notice, says: "This book is treasure trove. It is one of the most interesting and delightful books it has been our good fortune to come across for many a long day, but the most interesting thing about it is the author himself. He is a country parson. A great point in the Apologia for the Church of England is the wide-minded humanity and tolerance which so often flourishes amid their secular episcopal groves ("secular episcopal groves" is distinctly good!). Now why could not the Daily News have left

CHILDHOOD

By MAXIM GORKI

Without strain, in a style classic in its simplicity, swiftness and vividness, the eminent Russian novelist herein tells the story of his life from his earliest memory to his seventeenth year, when his grandfather threw him out of the house, telling him to shift for himself. It is a human document, explaining the mind and career of one of the greatest writers of a nation notable for its literary artists.

Letters to the Editor

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our Correspondents.

Trafalgar Day and our Silent Navy

SIR,—To-morrow the nation will remember that 110 years ago Nelson died in the cockpit of the Victory with these words upon his lips, "Thank God I have done my duty." To-day the British Empire cannot forget that the Royal Navy stands between the Mother Land and invasion and our merchant service between our families and starvation.

The Queen recently honoured the British and Foreign Sailors' Society by visiting its headquarters in East London, and it is a significant fact that Her Majesty consented to be photographed while standing before the oak timber taken from Nelson's famous Flagship Victory. Before this same piece of oak (but on board the ship) stood the late Queen Victoria in the early part of her reign, and she also paid silent tribute to the immortal Nelson.

To-day (October 20th) the Society is recognising in various ways the debt we owe to the sailor and his ship. There is presented to Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, the Commander-in-Chief, a Trafalgar souvenir suitably inscribed. It is the bust of Nelson made of copper from his own flagships, standing on Victory oak and fixed upon a base of serpentine Cornish rock. It is a tribute to our invincible Navy which enabled Britannia on October 21st, 1915, to be what she was in 1805, "Mistress of the Seas," so that our splendid and heroic armies from Australia, Canada, India, New Zealand and the Motherland have crossed in safety to defend the Empire, and to stand shoulder to shoulder with our noble French Allies.

There will also be unveiled in the John Cory Sailors' Rest, Milford Haven, by Vice-Admiral Charles H. Dare, M.V.O., a tablet, to record the immense services specially rendered by the Society since this world war began.

In the Society's various buildings tireless workers have dealt with no fewer than 57 torpedoed crews. The night when the men, women and children rescued from the ill-fated Falaba were landed at Milford Haven and welcomed to the hospitality of the Sailors' Rest will probably never be forgotten by the workers.

It gives me peculiar pleasure to announce that 79 essays were sent from the schools of New Zealand written upon the subject, "To show in the great war of 1914-15 what the British Empire owes to its Sailors both Royal and Mercantile." The adjudicators have awarded prizes to the following pupils in the North and South Islands:—

Arnold Taylor, Whangapara School, Great Barrier Island, North Island.

Ruth Ellen Speight, Petane School, Hawke's Bay, North Island.

Harold Woolf, West Christchurch District High School, South Island.

it at that? We should all have felt that this War was hastening the time when to be a Christian was to have a season ticket for every Christian church. The Daily News explains that by "tolerance" it does not mean so much toleration of theological differences as forbearing lovingkindness towards our poor wayward race itself. "This is sometimes accompanied by great intolerance in matters of dogma."

"Mr. Hall is a delightful companion—the best of good company. Pose, affectation, mannerism, are all foreign to him. . . . He delights in the open air, in wind and sun, in flowers and birds, and, most of all, in unsophisticated human beings, especially the gypsies, with whom he seems to have lived from childhood in the closest camaraderie."

Surely most people like the things which Mr. Hall likes, open air, wind, sun, flowers, &c., and most people are more or less interested in gypsies, though we are not so sure they look upon them as unsophisticated.

We are glad to say that in addition to more than forty interesting illustrations from photographs and a glossary of gypsy words, there is a good index. The title-page description of a book is that which gets into the national and standard keys to literature, i.e., book catalogues, and as there is no mention on its title page of the forty-four photographs which add so much to the value of this work, it is probable they may not be mentioned. At half a guinea net this most attractive volume should have a ready sale.

A new story is announced by Messrs. Hutchinson & Co., entitled "The Lad With Wings." The author is Berta Ruck (Mrs. Oliver Onions), who wrote "His Official Fiancée."

Bibliography of the War

A THIRD volume of "Books on the Great War," by F. W. T. Lange and W. T. Berry (of St. Bride Institute Library), which is now ready, brings the bibliography of the Great War to the end of the first year of the great struggle. Mr. W. T. Berry being on military service, this very useful work is, so we understand, to be continued by Mr. Lange, with the assistance of Mr. Lawrence H. Dawson, editor and author of "Historical Allusions," &c.; and joint-author with Mr. Charles Morris, of "Why the Nations are at War."

In aid of the Officers' Families Fund

"THE Story of the Highland Regiments," by Frederick Watson, just published by Messrs. A. & C. Black, Ltd., covers a century-and-a-half of British warfare, and concludes with the battle of Festubert. It makes a special appeal this autumn, as the author's profits during the War will be handed over to the Officers' Families Fund. The coloured illustrations are by Allan Stewart, and the price is 5s. net.

Trade Notes

It is with deep regret that we learn of the death, on September 19th, of Mr. E. W. Kirtland at the age of 37, after more than twenty years' service with the Oxford University Press, during the greater part of which he was engaged in the advertisement department and in travelling. Mr. Kirtland started on his journey to the Eastern Counties on August 23rd, but he suddenly became ill at Ipswich on September 2nd and had to return to London, where it was discovered that he was suffering from rheumatic fever. He left a widow and five children.

Hilda Mary Florence Valentine, Girls' High School, Timaru, South Island.

The subject for next year is, "Draw a map of the world and anticipate the changes that will be made by Britain and her Allies being victorious."

Having presided over a meeting at the Mansion House on the eve of the war, I was asked to appeal to the friends of the sailor, and I now beg to publicly thank those who have already responded so generously. Particularly would I thank the British American Tobacco Company, Ltd., for their most generous gift of a quarter of a million Flag Cigarettes which the Society will distribute among both seafarers and soldiers.

The Lord Mayor of Manchester has kindly promised the Guildhall for a Trafalgar Day Commemoration, and Admiral Sir George F. King-Hall, formerly Commander-in-Chief of the Australian Squadron, will attend to take part and receive gifts.

None appreciate the position of our sailors more truly and keenly than the Press of our country. With the winter before us any kindly word from the editor will be appreciated by—Yours very faithfully,

G. H. REID.

[No words are needed. All will endorse what the Right Hon. Sir Geo. H. Reid, the High Commissioner for Australia, says. Sir George calls it our silent Fleet, but though silent it yet speaketh! and our enemies know that it is ready at any moment to give them "the Nelson touch."—ED.]

The Tax on Postage

SIR,—While agreeing with your satisfaction at the retention of the half-penny post, I venture to point out that publications other than daily and weekly ones are evidently omitted from the concessions, and although—as compared with registered newspapers—they have needed special consideration for a long time, it seems as though a 100 per cent. tax (in some quarters the incidence is assumed to be heavier than 100 per cent.) is to be imposed upon them. A uniform rate of six ounces for a half-penny for periodical publications would remove the grievance under which un-registerable magazines have laboured for many years, whereas the two ounces a penny rate will accentuate it, adversely affecting many trade and class publications which serve a useful purpose and which, not being in general demand like a newspaper or illustrated weekly, are less easily obtainable from book-sellers and newsagents, and in consequence have developed, in spite of the postal handicap, an extensive direct circulation. At the present time a copy of The Poetry Review, which does not find a place on the bookstalls as readily as The Graphic, or The Strand Magazine, weighs just under eight ounces and gets through the post for 2d.; apparently after this month the postal charge will be 4d. for transmission in a less secure manner, or 8d. if protected and closed down as now. The lesser increase means an addition of above £8 to the cost of distributing a thousand copies, or much more than such publications are able to bear, while the subscriber will hesitate at paying such a comparatively heavy and disproportionate addition to the published price. In consequence many such "non-commercial" publications, hitherto maintained under financial difficulties, will fall beneath this last straw, which will act as a tax on literature, if magazines are not granted the concessions that are promised to newspapers. I may also be allowed to point out, as one who publishes a considerable number of shilling booklets, that the increased postal rates will affect their distribution most heavily, each small booklet having to bear an entirely disproportionate tax, which will have the effect of strangling a very tenuous, struggling trade. If the postcard manufacturers and the publishers of registered newspapers have received consideration, why cannot others whose businesses are even more affected by the alteration of postal rates receive equal consideration? Are they to be exploited—if not entirely ruined—for a speculative advantage to the revenue while others are saved?—Yours, &c.,

ERSKINE MACDONALD.

Malory House,
Featherstone Buildings, W.C., October 19th.

[We hope that the Postmaster-General has had his attention directed to the matters to which Mr. MacDonald refers. We can hardly believe it, but we were told by the editor of one of our leading weeklies that it was a newspaper man, still connected with a big newspaper, who suggested these postal taxes—which are all in restraint of trade, out of which the taxes have to be paid.—ED.]

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

Is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind, and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books, from the invention of printing to the present day, for 5s 3d per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints and Arundel Prints are included. The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best, bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most-easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication which gives the entire catalogue of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part, on inspection.

Publishers' Circular

The National Book Fortnight

The New Book Trade Campaign

THE Publishers' Association are now putting into operation the scheme which was mooted at their meeting in July last—a National Campaign to widen the circle of book-buyers. Arrangements have now been completed with several of the leading London and Provincial dailies, who will devote a special page, headed—

"The National Book Fortnight"

Once a week during the period commencing from November 22nd to December 4th.

The Press Campaign

The central columns of this page will consist each week of special editorial articles, contributed by Mr. H. G. Wells, Mr. Arnold Bennett, Mr. Arthur C. Benson, and other leading authors, who will write on such subjects as "The Book as a Gift," "The Book as a Silent Friend," &c. These columns will also contain classified guides for book-buyers, and will invite readers to apply to their local bookseller for the publishers' catalogue.

Alongside these columns, attractive announcements of the various publishers will be inserted.

Where it is the custom of booksellers to advertise in the local journals, it is suggested that booksellers might combine in advertising in such journals on agreed dates within that period, securing editorial co-operation in the scheme. If a combination is not possible in each town or district, it is suggested that individual booksellers should advertise their leading lines and secure the co-operation of local editors in advocating the claims of the National Book Fortnight scheme.

The Society of Authors have also promised their support and practical help wherever possible.

The Booksellers' Window Display

The Publishers' Association will heartily welcome the assistance of the booksellers in this co-operative effort to emphasize the claims of the book "for recreation, solace and instruction."

The directions in which such help can be given may briefly be suggested as, during the fortnight commencing November 22nd and ending December 4th—

To make a point of inviting potential book-buyers in their districts to come and inspect their stock;

To offer the publishers' catalogue to prospective customers;

To make a special show of the most appealing volumes; and
To exhibit the special advertising material, which will be provided free of cost by the Publishers' Association.

Advertising Material

The Publishers' Association are supplying the following material free of cost:—

Window streamers (5 ft. wide by 18 in. deep), reading, "Take a Book Home with You!" "Give Books this Christmas," &c.

Window slips (10 in. by 10 in. each), with a striking motto upon book-buying.

Artistic cards for interior display, with similar mottoes.

We are asked to say that orders for this advertising material should be sent in at once to the Secretary, the Publishers' Association, Stationers' Hall Court; and we are glad to hear that very hearty support is promised for this operation, for which the publishers are supplying the artillery, and the booksellers will do the charging.

We are also glad to say there is no gas about the statement that we have now received orders for over 50,000 copies of the Publishers' Association Official Christmas Catalogue; in fact, it is out of print before publication. We can also say from specimens of the worked sheets that Messrs. Ballantyne are printing the illustrations in admirable style.

Notes and Announcements

MR. MURRAY is publishing this week Dr. Buzzard's book, "With the Turkish Army in the Crimea and Asia Minor," which should be of very particular interest in these days. It is actually sixty years since Dr. Buzzard had the experiences described in his book, but even that space of time is as nothing when considering the unchanging East. They are the same Turks.

Mr. Murray is re-publishing at once, at 2s. 6d. each, the two books by Mr. J. C. Tregarthen, which in more expensive form have already won wide appreciation. They are "The Story of a Hare" and "The Story of an Otter."

Copies of "A Thousand Years of Russian History," by Mrs. Sonia E. Howe, which was published last week, have been accepted by Her Majesty Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra. The work is published by Messrs. Williams & Norgate, who announce two other books of topical interest for this week: "Italian Leaders of To-day," by Helen Zimmern, the author of "Italy of the Italians," &c. Miss Zimmern has taken the leaders of all parties—H.M. King Victor, his generals, his admirals, and his ministers—and in a series of over a dozen brilliant character sketches has typified the best forces at work in Italy to-day. Her text is refreshed with portraits and many a vivid and significant anecdote. And a new volume by the author of "Echoes of the Fleet," entitled "The Lord High Admiral and Others," being vivid impressions and stories of the British Navy.

Messrs. Macmillan & Co. will publish on November 2nd a "History of the Norwegian People," by Professor Knut Gjerset. The work will consist of two substantial volumes, and will contain a large number of illustrations and maps.

The same publishers will also issue immediately as volumes of their "True Stories of Great Americans" series, a life of "Christopher Columbus," by Mildred Stapley, and of "Davy Crockett," by William C. Sprague.

"With the First Canadian Contingent" is the title of a volume which is to be published immediately by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton to help the funds of the Canadian Field Comforts Commission. The book, which is illustrated with a large number of mounted and other photographs, tells all about the progress of the First Canadian Contingent from Valcartier and Salisbury Plain to Neuve Chapelle—and after. And, between the lines, you may read something of the tender, business-like sympathy and care of the Canadian women for the brave men who went to fight for them, as well as for the Empire.

Mr. Unwin published on October 25th a translation of Dr. A. L. Cureau's "Savage Man in Central Africa: A Study of Primitive Races in the French Congo," a book which is likely to take a permanent place among ethnographical works. The volume is illustrated by original photographs, many of which are unique.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin was the publisher of "Social Life in the Insect World," a selection from the "Souvenirs Entomologiques" of the great French naturalist J. H. Fabre, who has just died. A year or two ago Mr. Unwin brought out a life of Fabre by Dr. G. V. Legros, entitled "Fabre: Poet of Science."

The many friends and colleagues of Miss Myra B. Barr will be interested to hear that on her return to Cape Town, after a short trip to England and France, she has been appointed editor of the South African Lady's Pictorial. This journal is the leading monthly publication of the kind in the Union of South Africa, and Miss Barr's varied experience should give it additional weight and standing.

His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to accept a copy of Mr. Frederick Watson's book "The Story of the Highland Regiments," recently published by Messrs. A. & C. Black, Ltd. The author's profits from this volume during the War will be handed to the Officers' Families Fund.

Admirers of Mr. Brangwyn will remember that paintings and etchings of bridges have held an important position in his art for about a dozen years. They and others will be interested to hear that Mr. John Lane published, on the 25th inst., "A Book of Bridges," the pictures being by Frank Brangwyn, A.R.A., and the text by Walter Shaw Sparrow.

"The Crimes of England" is the title of an important forthcoming work by Mr. G. K. Chesterton, to be published by Messrs. Cecil Palmer & Hayward, of Oakley House, Bloomsbury Street, W.C.

Messrs. Macmillan & Co. are adding to their series, "True Stories of Great Americans," a volume on William Penn, by Mr. Rupert S. Holland; and one on Benjamin Franklin, by Mr. E. Lawrence Dudley.

Mr. Lalla Griswold, author of "Deering of Deal," and other stories of school and college life, is issuing, through Messrs. Macmillan & Co., a tale, entitled "Deal Woods."

Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. will publish immediately a new novel entitled, "Moiac of Gascony," by Mrs. Stepney Rawson. It is an historical romance of the time of Edward I.

The Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Clarke, K.C., has long felt the urgent need for a revision of the version of the Psalms which is found in our English Prayer Book. It is by that version that the Psalms are known to the people, and it is always the Prayer Book that is known and quoted. That version has certain defects—some of translation, some of expression—and it is with the object of trying carefully and reverently to remove these defects that Sir Edward Clarke has prepared the text of "The Book of Psalms: The Prayer-book Version Corrected," which will be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co., on the 4th of November.

The Rev. Canon R. B. Girdlestone, M.A., has arranged for publication an entirely new work entitled: "A Book of Prayers: with Bible Reading for the Home Circle." This will be issued immediately through Messrs. Morgan & Scott, Ltd.

"Through the War to the Kingdom," is the title of a new book by the Rev. Edward Shillito, M.A., to be published almost immediately by Messrs. Morgan & Scott, Ltd.

"Glad be Thy Heart" is the title of a welcome addition to Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall & Co.'s charming little "Rosemary Booklets," price 4d. net. It is a selection of quotations arranged by "H. S." and shows wide reading and good sense in selection of what may be fairly called heartening messages from all sorts and conditions of men and women to men and women—particularly useful in these days when the daily wail of so many is "Woe! woe!! woe!!!"

instead of "Buck up!" and "Put your shoulder to the wheel." Since writing this we find that "Glad be Thy Heart" is included in a dainty 1s. net volume containing similar selections, the whole entitled "Be of Good Cheer." If anybody cannot sleep because they are worrying about Zepps, let them read these 500 recipes against worry; if that does not send them to sleep nothing will.

"Light on the Balkan Darkness," by Crawford Price, is the title of a timely little 1s. net book, just published by Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall & Co. No one is better qualified to write on the vexed question of the Balkans than Mr. Crawford Price. Having been intimately connected with political developments in the Balkan States for the past seven years, his experiences, culled straight from the Balkan "Cockpit of Europe," are of exceptional value. Events move so swiftly that already Bulgaria and Serbia are at each other's throats. At the moment of writing Britain is offering Greece Cyprus as ground bait. We fear she will not bite.

His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to accept a copy of Mr. Leslie Ward's very successful book, "Forty Years of 'Spy,'" just published by Messrs. Chatto & Windus.

"Drum-Taps," Walt Whitman's great war-poems, are being issued in a small volume by Messrs. Chatto & Windus with, as an introduction, the very able article on the poems which was originally published in the Times Literary Supplement.

Messrs. Chatto & Windus have also nearly ready for publication a gift-book of an unusual character. This is a satire on war, entitled "The Ballet of the Nations," by Vernon Lee, and it has been decorated throughout in colour by Maxwell Armfield.

Mr. H. M. Hyndman's new book, "The Future of Democracy," was published by Messrs. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd., on the 25th.

Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. will publish a new novel entitled "The Mystery of Barnard Hanson," by Una L. Silberrad.

Messrs. Methuen are publishing at once Mr. J. R. Moreton Macdonald's "History of France," in three volumes, with twelve maps.

Messrs. Methuen are publishing a cheap and condensed edition of Miss Norma Lorimer's "By the Waters of Egypt," with sixteen illustrations in colour by Benton Fletcher.

Messrs. Methuen announce a new edition of Mr. Lucas's companionable books at 2s. 6d. net each volume. On November 4th will be published the following seven titles, "Loiterer's Harvest," "Character and Comedy," "Old Lamps for New," "Friendly Town," "Gentlest Art," "Over Bemer-ton's," "London Lavender."

Mr. Thomas Tofts, publisher of The Managing Engineer, 93 and 94, Chancery Lane, W.C., writes: "Kindly note that I have this day published the book 'Painting by Immersion and by Compressed Air,' by Arthur S. Jennings. The published price is 10s. 6d., and the book contains 272 pages and 150 illustrations." Evidently a most valuable practical handbook to the new time-saving methods of applying paint for preservative or ornamental purposes by dipping, spraying, or other mechanical means, the mere idea of which would have made Mr. Ruskin ill for a week.

Few societies give their members so much for their membership money as "The Japan Society," as £1 is a year entitles them to copies of the fine publications issued by the Society in addition to other privileges; for instance, Volume XIII of the "Transactions" contains over 150 pages with many fine illustrations in photogravure and half tone illustrating 'Metals and Metal Working in Old Japan,' "Avocations of Japanese Women," &c. The frontispiece is a portrait of Lord Redesdale; it is also a warning to the Japanese of how undignified the British pot hat can make a man look, worn cocked on one side in the "won't go home till morning" style. The article by Naoshi Kato, Esq., on "Eastern Ideas and the Japanese Spirit" is particularly interesting.

Booksellers' Provident Institution

At the meeting of the Board of Directors, held at Stationers' Hall, on Wednesday, October 20th, a vote of sympathy with Mr. F. H. Miles, Trustee, on the death in action of his son, 2nd Lieut. John Harris Miles—who had for several years been an auditor of the Institution—was unanimously passed; and a similar vote was also accorded to Mr. Sydney Gedge, the Hon. Secretary, whose son, Lieut. Cecil Bertie Gedge, had also fallen in action.

The sum of £98 1s. 8d. was granted for the relief of members and widows of members and a vote of thanks was passed to the Publishers' Association for their kind offer of a free advertisement of the Institution on the wrapper of the Association's Christmas Catalogue.

Mr. C. J. Longman presided at the meeting, and there were also present: Messrs. J. R. Blade, L. Carrdus, J. Cooper, J. Foster, J. W. Harden, C. H. Hollingsworth, F. J. James, G. H. Johnson, A. S. Lewis, W. Longman, A. W. Mills, A. J. Sabin, E. Shallis, F. W. Smith, G. C. Sole, J. E. Stroulger, R. E. Taylor.

The Peace Calendar, 1916

DR. JOHN J. MULLOWNEY, a member of the Religious Society of Friends or Quakers, and a member of the Philadelphia yearly meeting, has compiled the "Peace Calendar and Diary for 1916," which is to be published by Paul Elder & Co., San Francisco, in the near future.

The late Mr. C. W. Hobbs

CHARLES WILLOUGHBY HOBBS, manager of the Edinburgh depôt of the Oxford University Press, ever since it was established in 1881—the year of publication of the Revised Version of the New Testament—died on October 18th, aged sixty-nine years. He had been ill for some time, and ultimately succumbed to heart failure; but he was able to take a lively interest in affairs up to within two hours of his death. There will be many to mourn Mr. Hobbs, especially in Edinburgh, where the whole of the book-selling trade knew and respected him. In Portobello and Joppa he was greatly beloved; and his purse and good counsel were ever at the service of those in need. He was an elder of the Portobello Parish Church, and the superintendent of the Sunday School, of which teachers and scholars alike will greatly miss him. The funeral took place on the 22nd inst., at Morningside Cemetery, where many friends assembled to show their sympathy.

THE LATE MR. CHARLES WILLOUGHBY HOBBS Manager of the Edinburgh Depot of the Oxford University Press from 1881

Before Mr. Hobbs joined the Oxford Press, he was for twelve years with Messrs. Samuel Bagster & Sons, in Paternoster Row.

"Sport, Travel and Adventure"*

MR. T. FISHER UNWIN is publishing immediately a book which would certainly be hailed with cheers in all the camps, and mess rooms, and hospitals where our soldiers and sailors are gathered together. In fact, for every one who has any love for sport or travel or adventure, and especially for that large class of English readers who love all three, this handsome and well illustrated volume will have a close attraction. The Editor, Mr. A. G. Lewis, is to be congratulated on the excellent choice both of subjects and pictures, and also for the bibliography giving particulars of more than half a hundred standard works on sport and travel which have provided the material for this work. In his introduction Mr.

* "Sport, Travel and Adventure." Edited by A. G. Lewis. With 58 illustrations. London: T. Fisher Unwin, Ltd. Demy octavo. Price 10s. 6d. net.

Lewis says: "While there is an enormous number of books by individual travellers, there does not appear to be any collection of such stories as are here related—stories of the hairbreadth escapes of the big-game hunter, the thrilling adventures of the explorer of unknown lands, or the great risks faced by the climber in his attempt to conquer some virgin peak." We have not made any search, but if Mr. Lewis is correct it certainly is a very extraordinary thing. We remember some half century ago the late Mr. Edward Marston translating and publishing a French work entitled "Adventures on the Great Hunting Grounds of the World," and there have been similar collections of accounts of sport, but we do not remember any such general mixed bag as Mr. Lewis gives us. Personally, we could have dispensed with the chapter on Marriage Customs in favour of one on adventures with great game fish, such as Dr. Charles F. Holder tells so well, as exciting and dangerous as any sport on land. But perhaps Mr. Lewis draws the line at angling stories, and many may agree with him as to marriage being entitled to a place among the great adventures.

What great attention Mr. Fisher Unwin gives to sport and travel is shown by the fact that the extracts have been compiled chiefly from works published by him. In addition to the special features there are chapters on Carnivals, Superstitions, Native Marriage Customs, &c. We have read the book with great interest, and often thought in doing so what delight it would give to the many thousands of our wounded men who want something to amuse them in their enforced idleness. We have sent our copy to some sailors invalided home from the Dardanelles. A special word of praise is due to the varied interest of the numerous illustrations and the excellent printing of the work by Messrs. Unwin Bros., Ltd., the Gresham Press, Woking and London. The scope of the work covers most of the world.

Venice

VENICE, like London, has received visits from hostile aircraft, and all lovers of the beautiful city of the Adriatic are anxious for its safety. An opportune publication will be the Art Annual, devoted to the work of Mr. Henry Woods, R.A., for the famous painter has lived in Venice for nearly forty years and has painted innumerable pictures there. His paintings are not only attractive in composition and colour, but they have historical value, the backgrounds revealing the buildings of Venice in all their glory. The author of the monograph is Mr. James Greig, and there will be about fifty illustrations, some in colour.

Mrs. Mary Gaunt is publishing with Messrs. T. Werner Laurie, Ltd., a collection of stories called "The Ends of the Earth." Few women have travelled so widely as the author of "Alone in West Africa," and the stories she tells in her new book deal with Labrador, Tasmania, Siberia, China, and many other out-of-the-way places she has visited.

The Publishers' Circular in the Colonies

It was very pleasant, in these strenuous times, when it is no easy matter to keep up a weekly service of the P.C., to get the following—of course, quite unsolicited and indeed unexpected—testimonial to its popularity in our Colonies and in the great British Nations of Australasia, South Africa, &c.

Ruskin House,
40, Museum St., W.C.
Oct. 14th, 1915.

DEAR MR. MARSTON,—I have been meaning to tell you for some time past how much I found THE PUBLISHERS' CIRCULAR was appreciated in the Colonies.

Many of the booksellers I visited in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the Far East and elsewhere, told me they found it indispensable.

Yours sincerely,
STANLEY UNWIN.

If our friends in Greater Britain who know other booksellers who do not take the P.C. will send us their addresses, we shall gladly angle for them by sending some free copies as ground bait.

Telling a Secret

"CAN you keep a secret, uncle?"
"Yes."

"Well, auntie has eloped with the chauffeur and they've borrowed your motor."

The French Book Trade and the War

WE regret to see another well-known and respected name in the list of those who have died for their country in Bibliographie de la France, for October 8th 1915.

Adolphe Nourrit

"Nous avons eu la douleur d'apprendre le décès de M. Adolphe Nourrit; grièvement blessé d'une balle le 11 septembre, il a succombé le 26 du même mois, à l'hôpital de Francport où il avait été transporté.

"Après avoir fait son service militaire comme engagé conditionnel, il avait été nommé officier de réserve, puis passé dans l'armée territoriale, il était parti au moment de la mobilisation en qualité de lieutenant, puis promu capitaine aux chasseurs alpins, pendant la guerre. C'est dans la tranchée, au milieu de ses hommes, qu'il a été frappé.

"Il avait été cité à l'ordre du jour et avait reçu la croix de guerre et la croix de chevalier de la Légion d'honneur, pour la façon dont il menait sa compagnie au feu.

"Fils de Robert Nourrit et de Mlle. Plon, sœur d'Eugène Plon, il était né en 1869. Après ses études, il entra à l'imprimerie Plon, comme simple apprenti; il occupa par la suite divers emplois jusqu'à la mort de M. Eugène Plon, son oncle, en 1895, époque à laquelle il devint un des associés de la maison Plon-Nourrit et Cie, avec ses beaux-frères, MM. Mainguet et Bourdel.

"Il était président de la Société de secours mutuels de l'imprimerie typographique, trésorier du Syndicat patronal des imprimeurs typographes, et membre du Cercle de la librairie depuis 1894.

"Il laisse d'unanimes regrets à tous ceux qui ont eu la bonne fortune de l'approcher et de pouvoir apprécier le charme de son caractère fin et délicat, de sa serviabilité et de son inlassable bonté, à laquelle on n'avait jamais recours en vain.

"Nous adressons à Mme. Nourrit, sa mère, à Mme. A. Nourrit, sa veuve, à nos confrères Pierre Mainguet et Joseph Bourdel, ainsi qu'à toute la famille, l'expression de nos sentiments de douloureuse sympathie."

[The names of Nourrit & Plon are known wherever French literature is known.—ED. P.C.]

WE are glad to hear that Mr. Eric Marston, son of Mr. Arthur Marston and nephew of the Editor of the P.C., who received a bullet wound in the face during the British advance at Loos, is making a good recovery.

An Electric Man

AN automaton figure of a man, constructed in Paris for advertising purposes, can be given more than 5,600 different poses by electric motors in its base, while a concealed phonograph makes it speak or sing. If would be more useful in these days if it could fight.

"The House that Jack Built"

A Novelty Toy-Book

MESSRS. GALL & INGLIS, of London and Edinburgh, are bringing out an attractive innovation of the picture book type, the shape a strong cardboard well-designed and coloured cottage, which contains a set of figures depicting the characters of "The House that Jack Built." We have the Malt, the Rat, the Cat, a resplendent Cock, a most engaging-looking Man—all-tattered-and-torn, a charming Maiden-all-forlorn, and an individual bearing the legend on his back "This is Jack." The figures are cut out so that each stands up, and no more charming or artistic method of teaching little ones the ancient rhyme could well be imagined. The artist prefers to remain anonymous, but his work shows a deft touch. The price of the House complete is 1s. 6d.

The pictures may also be had in a neat box-case, price 1s.

A second toy-box is also issued containing 100 pictures for cutting out and colouring. It is entitled "Paper Toys and How to Make Them," and consists of numerous simple toys to be made out of paper, which the youngsters, with the ready marked out figures to guide them, can easily make up. A book of instructions is included.

The boxes may be had on favourable trade terms from Messrs. Gall & Inglis, London and Edinburgh.

Railway Delays and Difficulties

The Blinded Soldiers' Gift Book

BUSINESS houses are experiencing very considerable difficulties in fulfilling orders owing to great delays on the railways. As an instance, we hear that over twenty tons of paper ordered by Messrs. Jarrold for the "Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Gift Book" was held up on the railway for nearly three weeks. This delay has necessitated postponement of the publishing day, which was fixed for October 29th, to November 12th.

Trade Note

MESSRS. HUTCHINSON & Co. regret that they have been obliged to postpone the publication of Lord Redesdale's "Memories" to Tuesday, November 2nd, owing to the difficulties in binding the large number required for the first delivery.

Captain F. W. Campbell, the author of "Private Spud Tamson," has a new book coming out next week with Messrs. Cassell. The title is "The Kangaroo Marines," and it devotes itself to a pen picture of the conquerors of Anzac. As an impartial observer this will form his written homage to the lads from "down under." Captain Campbell has been to the Dardanelles but was invalided home.

The New Zealand Book Trade and the War

DEAR SIR,—We notice week by week you are recording those members of the book trade who are doing their little bit for their King and Country. The New Zealand book trade is also endeavouring to do its share. My partner, Mr. E. H. Penny, who is a native of Stockport, has suffered a severe loss in the death of his eldest son at the Dardanelles, where he was killed in action. The writer has also enlisted, and expects to go into camp in October. I am a native of Edinburgh, and was for some years in the service of Messrs. John Menzies & Co., Ltd., Edinburgh, Bookstall Department. Mr. A. C. Tassie, first assistant with Messrs. S. & W. Mackay, booksellers, Wellington, has recently joined. Trusting you will record this fact to show our friends that New Zealand is heart and soul with you.—Yours very respectfully,

Bookselling at Buenos Aires

DEAR SIR,—We shall be glad if you will insert in your next issue a notice to the following effect: "Mitchell's Bookstore, Buenos Aires, has purchased the stock and trading title of The English Book Exchange, of the same city, and will in future trade as Mitchell's Bookstore and English Book Exchange."

Mr. Mitchell's business in Buenos Aires continues to progress, and this acquisition is a further development of his already extensive trade.—Yours faithfully,

"Sovereigns and Statesmen of Europe," a volume by Princess Catherine Radziwill, is announced for immediate publication by the House of Cassell. In this book the Princess whose "Royal Marriage Market of Europe" evoked so much comment, will use the intimate knowledge she possesses of the reigning houses of Europe to give her impressions of them.

Important Notice

BLINDED SOLDIERS AND SAILORS GIFT BOOK

Owing to three causes over which the Publishers could have no possible control, they have to inform the Trade that they are compelled to further postpone Publishing Day:—

- 1. The difficulties of Railway transit are greatly responsible for the delay. Paper for one of the editions (25,000 copies) was held up on the Railway for a fortnight, and only traced after wiring from Junction to Junction.*
- 2. The great shortage of labour prevents Printers and Binders turning out so many copies per day as they had hoped and expected.*
- 3. The splendid response of the Trade to the appeal for our Blinded Fighters has made still another reprint (the fourth) necessary before publication, and it is desired to try and arrange for all Booksellers to have their orders executed in full before Publishing Day.*

These are the three reasons for further delay. After visiting the works of the several Printers and Binders who are engaged on the work, the Publishers feel safe to announce that the Gift Book for the Blinded Soldiers and Sailors' Fund will positively be published on:—

NOVEMBER 12th

The Trade will understand and appreciate that the time of publishing would not have been altered had it been humanly possible to get the book out on the date originally proposed. However, Messrs. Jarrold & Son feel fully confident that this unavoidable delay will make no difference to the efforts of the Trade for help to make a record sale for the Sake of the Cause.

"At last we have a uniform edition, well printed and indexed, and including Mrs. Barrington's 'Life,' which is indispensable for reference as to the facts of his career. But the new edition has better claims on our regard than its satisfactory form: it contains more Bagehot than ever we had before, and any one who loves literature will inevitably want all the Bagehot he can get."—Spectator.

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

Is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind,
and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books,
from the invention of printing to
the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints
and Arundel Prints are included.
The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best,
bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most-easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication
which gives the entire catalogue
of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest
help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.

Dr. George Haven Putnam's Memories of a Publisher*

DR. GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM has lost no time in completing his reminiscences and bringing the story of his life down to 1895. Few Americans have been more outspoken in their denunciation of Germany's methods of waging war than the soldier-publisher Putnam, and this is doing more than we can fully appreciate in this country. Dr. Putnam was educated in Germany, has all his life had the most friendly relations with Germans, and has worthily represented the publishers of America at nearly every International Congress of Publishers; he is also well known to prominent naturalised and other Germans in America. For such a neutral to throw off his neutrality and condemn German acts and deeds as sternly as any Englishman could do, makes us feel all the more honour and respect for him. Dr. Putnam gives a letter from a friend of his "who holds high office in the British Government," who thanks him for that "you and the very large section of trustworthy American papers did do and would do all that could be done; but I think we did hope some stern reprimand would have been administered by the nation itself"—i.e., in condemnation of German actions.

We do not know that Dr. Putnam would go so far as his outspoken friend, ex-President Roosevelt, who would have protected American lives by threat of war, but at any rate we are grateful for all he has done.

This handsome volume is a continuation of Dr. Putnam's former work, entitled "Memories of My Youth," which told us of his boyhood in England and his service during the American Civil War as private, sergeant, quartermaster, adjutant, acting chaplain, and acting major.

In September, 1865, he landed in New York to begin his business career and as a citizen—for Dr. Putnam has done his part in American politics as well as in American publishing—but for his persistent energy copyright in America would probably be in the same hopeless state it was a quarter of a century ago.

In his opening chapter on "Life in New York in the Sixties," we get a glimpse of Charles Dickens as seen by the eyes of the young American soldier, who doubtless resented the "bitter strictures of 1862." Dr. P. says he retains the impression of a great elasticity and variety of facial expression and of utterance which together brought to the audience a most vivid realisation and real impersonation of each character. He also remembers "a purple velvet waistcoat, with a mass of heavy watch-chain extended across both sides." Dickensians will not feel grateful for the suggestion that it was the cash he got which led Dickens to modify the views he had expressed in "Martin Chuzzlewit" and "American Notes," nor is it flattering to the American character to suppose that Dickens was insincere in his retractions. One reason why Dickens was popular in the States was his striking personal resemblance to Uncle Sam—see all the volumes of Punch and Harper's Weekly from 1860 to 1900.

Dr. Putnam has always been a fighter for Free Trade, and as a member of the Cobden Club was charged by certain Republican papers with receiving British gold to fight the Republicans and the High Tariff policy. Of course, there was no foundation for the charge.

The House of Putnam claims always to have repudiated the piratical point of view in publishing; Dr. Putnam, indeed, tells us that his father "believed that the publishers who, like himself, had always refused to issue American editions excepting under arrangements with the transatlantic authors, ought, when international copyright should be established, to be in a position to secure a decided business advantage over their less conscientious competitors"—another proof of the truth of the axiom that "Honesty is the best policy," for few other American publishers have been so continuously successful for generations as the Putnams.

A chapter which will have special interest on this side is "Some London Publishers in the Sixties." In 1866 Dr. Putnam's father sent him to London "to make acquaintance with his old-time correspondents in the book trade."

Young Putnam got the impression that the London publishers of that time "belonged in large part to the group of Englishmen who had not been sympathetic with the cause of the North, and who had been quite ready to accept as an established fact the disruption of the American Republic." This surely was a wrong impression; the present writer remembers, for instance, the late Mr. Edward Marston explaining the causes of the Civil War, and why the majority of our people hoped the North would win. Surely it was also a wrong impression that the young American got of the late Mr. Richard Bentley as one having "no very keen interest in literary undertakings." There is a pleasant note about Mr. George Smith, who "ought to have been made Baron Smith of Waterloo Place."

* "Memories of a Publisher, 1865-1895." By George Haven Putnam. Litt. D., late Brevet Major 176th Regt. N.Y.S. Volunteers. G. P. Putnam's Sons. New York and London, 1915. With photogravure portrait.

Dr. Putnam has a none too favourable notice of Henry George Bohn, whose guest he was at Twickenham, where he was "interested in noting how bad the manners of an Englishman were allowed to be if he possessed money and some social importance"; since then the Doctor must have noted that similar allowances are not refused to men of other nations, not even to Americans, under similar conditions.

Of John Murray the third, Dr. P. has pleasant memories, and says he was one of the old Tory group who seemed surprised, if not disappointed, at the success of the North. Mr. Murray's general manager at that time was the late Mr. Cooke and we regret to hear that Mr. Cooke's remarks were so well calculated to justify the young American's resentment. Dr. P. says "he was a Tory, and not one of the courtly kind," like the head of the Murray House. Other publishers of the period referred to are George Bell, Sampson Low, Sidney Williams, of Williams & Norgate. Of course, a good part of the work relates to the history of his own firm and its relations with American and foreign authors, but also no small part is taken up in describing American politics and politicians, and Dr. Putnam's connection with them. He is evidently much amused to record that President Arthur said, "George Haven Putnam is a liar."

It was at the house of his friend Alexander Macmillan that Dr. Putnam heard of the death of President Garfield. A young American girl had been engaged to recite, and before she could tell her story she fainted in Dr. P.'s arms. He deposited the young lady on the sofa, and remembers that she was very pretty. Of his friend President Roosevelt Dr. P. gives quite a long account. It seems Roosevelt was a publisher at one time. "It was his habit to address me by my first name, whatever might be the company present," and then the Doctor makes this amusing addition: "I was myself, of course, always careful to preserve official respect, excepting when we were alone." Not the least interesting chapters are accounts of Dr. P.'s visits to Oxford and Cambridge. Among British authors referred to are R. L. Stevenson, and Walter Besant—the chapter on Besant and the Authors' Society is decidedly interesting. As a frequent visitor at the house of the author of "Lorna Doone" it is difficult to understand such a slip as "William" Blackmore. Dr. Putnam, in one of his many voyages across the Atlantic, had Lord Kitchener as a shipmate, and gives an interesting and in some respects not very flattering account of our great soldier. One of the longest chapters describes "The Fight for Copyright," and we are glad to have this personal record of one who has done more than perhaps any other to improve the laws of copyright, both national and international.

There are many other matters of interest, to which we hope to refer later on, in Dr. Putnam's very welcome work, which cannot fail to appeal to a large circle of readers on this side of the Atlantic as well as in America. It is a record of which any man might be proud.

The style of the book is attractive, very modest and unpretentious; in fact, it reads as though the author were telling his story over a good cigar in the club smoking room.

Notes and Announcements

"OLD FAMILIAR FACES" was the title chosen by the late Theodore Watts-Dunton for his volume of recollections of the many famous men and women with whom he had been on terms of intimate friendship. For many years, he intended to republish these contributions to the Athenæum, which will be issued by Mr. Herbert Jenkins on November 12th, together with illustrations after D. G. Rossetti, &c. The editor contributes an introduction, dealing with life at "The Pines."

"Christ at Carnival and other Poems," by Muriel Stuart, will be published on the same date, by the same publisher. When the title-poem appeared in the English Review earlier in the year, Miss Stuart was greeted as a new poet who would very quickly come into her own.

LONGMAN-FLETCHER.—On the 1st inst. at St. James', Paddington by the Rev. Canon Palmes, Captain Robert Guy Longman (10th Gordon Highlanders), son of Mr. and Mrs. George Longman, of Holmwood, Surrey, to Dorothy Marriott, daughter of the late John Martineau Fletcher and Mrs. Fletcher, of 9, Stanhope Street, W.

Mr. W. H. Helm's long-expected biography of the famous French woman artist, "Vigée Lebrun," will now be published, in the course of a week or so, by Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. In this study of the most famous of French women artists, the author has drawn on new material, and supplied a very full catalogue of her pictures. The book forms a large quarto volume, illustrated with a frontispiece in colour and forty photogravure plates.

The Bishop of Birmingham will publish immediately, through Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co., a little book, entitled "A Fortnight at the Front." It gives the impressions produced by the campaign in France upon one who saw something of the War of 1870, with a sketch of the changes noticeable in the character of the peoples of some of the nations engaged. The Bishop intends to devote any profits he may receive from the book to Queen Mary's War Fund.

A collected edition of the historical works of Sir Francis Palgrave, K.H., is being prepared by his son, Sir R. H. Inglis Palgrave, F.R.S. This edition will be published by the Cambridge University Press, and will consist of about ten volumes, royal 8vo. Maps, genealogical tables, two portraits of Sir Francis Palgrave, other illustrations, and notes will be included.

Mr. Kenneth Grahame, author of the "Golden Age," has compiled for the Cambridge University Press an anthology in two parts, entitled, the "Cambridge Book of Poetry for Children."

In connection with "The Spirit of the Soil" by Gordon D. Knox (Constable & Co., Ltd.), which gives a full description of Professor Bottomley's remarkable experiments in, and the results achieved by the use of bacterised peat, it is interesting to note the great public spirit shown by Professor Bottomley in offering to sacrifice all rights and patents connected with bacterised peat during the period of the War in order that the food production of this country may be increased to the maximum possible.

Messrs. T. Werner Laurie, Ltd., are just publishing "The Honey of Romance: Being the Tragic Love Story of a Publisher's Wife," by Maud Churton Braby. This is Mrs. Braby's first novel since "Downward," and having the same intensely human appeal is doubtless destined to achieve an equally far-reaching success. It is the story of a London publisher's wife who has reached the age when a modern woman asks herself "What has life done for me?" and, looking forward, reflects sadly "Is this all?" The complex love-problem, worked out between two couples, gives an opportunity for some original scenes. An agreeable light relief is afforded by amusing sketches of London literary life seen from a somewhat whimsical point of view that cannot fail to interest the reader.

Mr. Louis Tracy, in his forthcoming novel, "His Unknown Wife," will return to the style of "Rainbow Island," the book which made him famous.

The British Red Cross Society are about to issue a new Manual (No. 5) through the House of Cassell, under the title of "British Red Cross Cookery Manual."

The Aberdeen Book-Lover for November, which is published by Messrs. D. Wyllie & Son, contains, among other articles and notes, an account of Mr. Edward Townsend Smith, the well-known Aberdeen bookseller; indeed, few were better known than "Smith of Aberdeen." Mr. Smith died suddenly on June 6th last. There is a pen and ink portrait by Mr. Beattie Scott. We are glad to see the Booklover going so strong in these strenuous times.

On November 11th, Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co., will publish, with six illustrations, "General Pichegru's Treason," by Major Sir John Hall, Bart.; also "Father Payne," by one who spent three years with him.

"Nurse Cavell: The Story of Her Life and Martyrdom," was published on Friday, by Messrs. C. Arthur Pearson, Ltd., price 6d. net. It contains four illustrations, including a recent portrait of the martyr-nurse of Brussels, that has not hitherto been published. The cover is in two colours, and the whole of the official documents in the case are given.

On November 8th, Mr. Unwin will publish Mrs. Elizabeth Cooper's book, "The Harem and the Purdah: Studies of Oriental Women." Mrs. Cooper has lived for many years in Eastern countries, and is well-known as a lecturer on women's work and the progress of women's education. Her work is said to bring a vivid light to bear upon the differences between Oriental and Occidental ideals and culture for women.

With the November issue, the British Review will be published by the Wm. Dawson Publishing Co., Ltd. The number will contain an important article of revelations by a French military doctor who was taken prisoner, showing how the Germans treat wounded prisoners of war.

Mr. S. P. B. Mais, who is English Master of the Army Class at Sherborne School, has written "An English Course for Army Candidates." It is designed to meet the ever-increasing demand for a highly specialized treatment of the subject as required by the Army Council. Messrs. Sidgwick & Jackson are the publishers.

Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons will publish shortly "The Willow Weaver, and Seven other Stories," by Michael Wood.

"An Englishman in the Russian Ranks," by John Morse, is announced by Duckworth's as being a first-hand account by an Englishman who for ten months was fighting with the Russian Army in Poland and Courland. The author was in Eastern Germany at the time of the outbreak of War but managed to get across the frontier and witnessed the first acts of War. He was accepted by the Russian Army as a volunteer and was for ten months continually engaged in the fighting until finally invalided home.

The Dean of Durham is about to issue, through Messrs. Macmillan & Co., a volume of "War-Time Sermons." Dr. Henson carefully avoids the violences of thought and speech which are so easy at the present time, and holds before his congregation the intrinsic wrongness of mere revenge, the sacred duty of forgiveness, and the necessity of so carrying through this conflict that the fellowship of mankind shall be strengthened and exalted, not permanently obstructed.

"The Kingdom of the Winding Road," written by Miss Cornelia Meigs, and about to be published by Messrs. Macmillan & Co., is a fairy-story detailing the experiences of a remarkable beggar as he Events move with such rapidity that although the preface of this latest and most up-to-date book about the War in the Near East is as late as September, already the author's hope that Bulgaria could be won over to the Allies has been shattered; it looks as though Roumania may follow Bulgaria's example and that Greece will if she can risk coast bombardment. There are over thirty very good illustrations—a fact which might have been mentioned on the title page with advantage—a title page is like a letter of introduction: the more favourable the letter the better the introduction.

Oxford Branch

MEMBERS of the above Branch and their friends met for the first time this season, on Wednesday, October 28th in the Large Room, 50, Broad Street, under the chairmanship of Mr. F. S. Thornton, and listened to a paper by Mr. B. H. Blackwell on "Robert Herrick."

In his opening remarks Mr. Blackwell said that the choice of his subject at a time like the present, when the thoughts of all were centred on the War, might seem to call for an apology. If so, it might be urged with some reason that it would be a relief to many to have their thoughts turned for a short space to other scenes, to glimpses of quiet country life and old English customs as set forth in the works of one of the sweetest and most charming of English poets.

Dealing next with the life of Herrick, of which records are scant and imperfect, and illustrating this with extracts and quotations from the "Hesperides" and "Noble Numbers," reference was made to his Cambridge career, his connection with Ben Jonson and lesser lights in the literary firmament of London in the early years of the Seventeenth Century, his despair when, after ordination, he suffered "banishment" to the village of Dean Prior on the borders of Dartmoor among his joyful return from the "dull confines of the West" to his beloved London after his ejection, the publication of his poems as a means of replenishing his diminished exchequer, and his return, at the Restoration, to Dean Prior where he lived in contentment, delighting in various animal pets, cared for by his faithful "Prue," and producing the best of his poems.

With some references to Brand, Aubrey, and others on the subject of May-day customs, and illustrating Herrick's crowning effort, "Corinna's going a Maying," Mr. Blackwell said "To fill in the picture let us for a moment call to mind some small place such as Witney or Woodstock, or one of the townlets found in North Oxfordshire and the Cotswolds, where the grey stone of the buildings contrasts so charmingly with the surrounding greenery. Let us imagine one of those picturesque steep-

BUCKINGHAM PALACE TO MY PEOPLE.

At this grave moment in the struggle between my people and a highly organised enemy who has transgressed the Laws of Nations and changed the ordinance that binds civilised Europe together, I appeal to you.

I rejoice in my Empire's effort, and I feel pride in the voluntary response from my Subjects all over the world who have sacrificed home, fortune, and life itself in order that another may not inherit the free Empire which their ancestors and mine have built.

I ask you to make good these sacrifices.

The end is not in sight. More men and yet more are wanted to keep my Armies in the Field, and through them to secure Victory and enduring Peace.

In ancient days the darkest moment has ever produced in men of our race the sternest resolve.

I ask you, men of all classes, to come forward voluntarily and take your share in the fight.

In freely responding to my appeal, you will be giving your support to our brothers, who, for long months, have nobly upheld Britain's past traditions, and the glory of her Arms.

travels the land over, playing a magical flute and coming to the rescue of those in trouble. With its bright appearance, and attractive illustrations in colour, it would form a very suitable gift-book for children at Christmas and other times.

Mr. Andrew Melrose has published a book of the greatest interest, entitled "Russia, the Balkans and the Dardanelles," by Mr. Granville Fortescue, the Special Correspondent of The Daily Telegraph. It is dedicated to the officers and men of the Mediterranean Force "in appreciation of their heroism." The book records some battle pictures in Poland and in the Dardanelles and also gives a general impression of the military and political situation in the Balkans.

roofed, half-timber houses where the diamond-paned lattice windows overhang the footpath, and are almost within arm's reach. The sun is just rising, 'the clouds—to quote Milton—'in thousand liveries dight.' The air is keen but exhilarating, the sound of horns is heard in the meadows, and already parties of young people are stripping the snowy hedges, for May Day then was nearly a fortnight later than it is now, and in such a season as we had last year (1914) the hawthorn would be in full blossom. We may imagine the poet as a young man, decked out in his best, and with new ribbons to his hose, standing below and impatiently beating the half-open casement with a bough as he catches a glimpse of Corinna putting the last touches to her hair.

Rise and put on your foliage, and be seen
To come forth like the spring-time, fresh and green,
And sweet as Flora. Take no care
For jewels for your gown, or hair :
Fear not, the leaves will strew
Gems in abundance upon you :—

Come, let us go while we are in our prime,
And take the harmless folly of the time ;
We shall grow old apace, and die
Before we know our liberty :
Our life is short, and our days run
As fast away as does the sun :
And, as a vapour, or a drop of rain
Once lost, can ne'er be found again ;
So when or you or I are made
A fable, song, or fleeting shade ;

All love, all liking, all delight
Lies drown'd with us in endless night.
Then, while time serves, and we are but decaying,
Come, my Corinna, come, let's go a-Maying !
After producing this delightful poem Herrick was justified in writing of his book :—

Thou art a plant, sprung up to wither never
But, like a laurel, to grow green for ever ;

though elsewhere he pretends to think that it may be used by fishmongers "to make loose gown for mackerel"; but in his most despondent mood he can hardly have dreamed that it would be neglected for nearly a century. He was just at the turn of the tide, and, with most of his predecessors of the Elizabethan and Caroline periods, was consigned for nearly a century to undeserved oblivion. Their quaint conceits, their airy trifles, their infinite variety of form and metre, gave place to the rigidity of Pope, Swift and Johnson and their numerous imitators, and the heroic couplet—perhaps the easiest form in which verse can be written—a measure which may be likened to the regular tick-tock of a well-trained roadster who never breaks into a gallop—held the field for many a long year.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Blackwell was proposed by Mr. F. W. Chaundey and carried with acclamation.

"Book Auction Records" *

IN spite of the War we are very glad to say that Mr. Frank Karslake can be congratulated on giving us the biggest and best volume of all the twelve volumes of his invaluable "Book Auction Records." One of the most important of its features is that in addition to recording old books it also records the sale of books right down to the current year, and consequently it is of service to many who only deal in modern books. Many standard editions and editions de luxe go out of print quickly, and their values appreciate, and the bookseller who holds stocks of such books should know the latest selling prices. Of course, there is another side to this picture, but unless a bookseller believes in the old saying, "Where ignorance is bliss," &c., even then this book will be useful. But its chief use is to the antiquarian bookseller and collector, and we can personally testify to its great value as a ready guide to the prices which books fetch at the chief British and American book auctions. This record extends to over 600 pages for sales in 1914-15, and shows what an enormous business is done in old books. In addition, Mr. Karslake gives us over 60 pages of text matter, every page of which is interesting to book lovers, and many illustrations. How he can give such a valuable book for 21s. we do not know.

* "Book Auction Records," a Price and Annotated Record of London, Dublin, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and American Book-Auctions: including books from the date of the invention of printing to the current year, and also Baxter Prints and Arundel Society Publications. Edited by Frank Karslake. Vol. 12, for the Auction Season 1914-15 (containing 15,250 Records). Karslake & Co., 35, Pond Street, Hampstead, London, N.W.

Queensland Fibres for Paper Making

THE London Correspondent of the North Queensland Register, 22, Basinghall Street, London, E.C., informs us that the Australian Minister for External Affairs has received, through the High Commissioner, a report by the Director of the Imperial Institute, London, on the utilization of Australian fibrous materials for paper making. The director states that the fibrous refuse of Queensland sugarcanes, known as "bagasse" or "megasse," could be used for the purpose of manufacturing, trials with this material have been carried out in Trinidad, with good results. An examination of the fibre of the blackboy tree (Xanthorrhoea proissii) was made at the Imperial Institute some years ago, and the results showed that the material could be used for making paper pulp, but experiments on a commercial scale would be necessary to prove whether the process would be remunerative. The fibre of Posidonia Australia has also been examined at the Imperial Institute, but it has been found that the percentage of cellulose is low, and that it would be necessary to remove the mineral matter which is mechanically associated with the fibre before converting the latter into pulp. The fibre would, however, probably be saleable for paper-making if it could be supplied at a sufficiently low price. It has been suggested that the fibre of Queensland prickly pear might be used for paper-making, but an investigation at the Imperial Institute has shown that the pulp consists of very short fibres, and would be of comparatively low value.

Loan Exhibition in aid of British Red Cross Society

LEADING members of the Japanese Colony in London have thought that at the present moment, when the forces of their country are collaborating with those of England and her European Allies in vindicating the cause of justice, right and civilisation, a contribution towards the needs of the British Red Cross Society might be obtained by bringing together representative examples of Japanese arts and handicrafts, selected from the collections of art lovers in England.

Under the patronage of His Excellency the Japanese Ambassador Marquis K. Inoyé, such an exhibit is on view up to November 13th at the Galleries of Messrs. Yamanaka & Co., 127, New Bond Street.

An Australian Imperial Review

WE have received from the printers and publishers, Messrs. Alex. McKinley & Co., of Alfred Place, Collins Street East, Melbourne, what is apparently No. 54 (price, 9d.) of what is presumably a monthly publication, entitled The Imperial Review, edited by Demos. It is an interesting miscellany, in seventy 8vo pages, in a blue cover. More than forty different subjects are briefly dealt with, sometimes in rather a scrappy jerky style. The following titles of subjects will indicate how Demos takes the whole world for his oyster: "Manchester (The Canal)"; "Delhi Coronation"; "H.M.A.S. Australia"; "Charivari (a little history of Punch)"; "Lord Grey"; "Rome"; "Venice"; "Argentina"; "New York"; "Chicago"; "Paris"; "Strasbourg"; "The Dickensian"; "London to Edinburgh"; "Mexico"; "Joseph—Egypt—Covent Garden."

It is not a commonplace miscellany by any means, and deals with important problems in an arresting way—generally in an uncommon sensible way.

"Is Venus Inhabited?" and "Stars of the Southern Skies"

THE other night, when looking up at one of Count Zeppelin's famous dreadnoughts of the air, which was dropping bombs calmly indifferent to our shells bursting around it, we could not help thinking, "Yes, by Jingo! Deutschland lieber Alles" (Germany over all!), when a voice of authority came from across the road, "Put that light out! put that light out!!" Not seeing any light, we resumed our star gazing, when, "D——n you, put that light out!!!" made us realize that the fussy special constable was referring to the red light at the end of our cigar! These are nights when star gazing is in fashion, which lends all the more interest to two little works just published by Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co., viz., "Is Venus Inhabited?" by C. E. Housden (member of the British Astronomical Association), with a diagram; and "Stars of the Southern Skies," by M. A. Orr (Mrs. John Evershed), with an excellent map of the stars of the southern hemisphere, and other illustrations. Mr. Housden, in his little pamphlet, makes out a good case, so far as we can judge, for his view that Venus, at any rate, may be inhabited. If there are any Venusians, he says they have, at any rate, an inexhaustible ice-field at their back. Venus always keeps her face towards the sun, so her back is always frozen. To irrigate the dry hot side the inhabitants could artificially melt this ice reservoir, and then, by means of pumps and pipes, convey the water where they wished "to reclaim the outlying arid areas." We have read Mr. Housden's ingenious arguments with amusement, but we fear until the famous German Count has improved his airship sufficiently to enable him to go and pump the people on Venus, the truth will not leak out. Probably not then.

In her charming little work, "Stars of the Southern Skies"—written for beginners—"for those who have learned or are learning to recognize the southern constellations"—Mrs. Evershed tells them that the Southern Hemisphere "possesses the most beautiful part of the Milky Way," quite the cream of it, in fact;

also "the two brightest stars in the sky (Sirius and Canopus), the finest coloured-star cluster and the largest globular cluster, the brightest double star, the nearest of the stars, and the brightest of the large gaseous nebulae." Obviously a good little guide to all these bright particular stars ought to be very interesting, and that is just what this is.

"STRAFFING."—We take from a Sumatra paper a list of some of the words which the Germans in their patriotic ardour propose to substitute for the English sporting terms formerly in use:—

Golf: Löcherballspiel.

Cricket: Dreistäbenschlagerspiel.

Leg before: Beinenschwindel.

Not out: Nochnichtabgemacht.

Wicket: Dreistäbeneinrichtung.

Half-time: Halbspielwartepause.

Hands: Händefeher.

Start: Abgangsstelle.

Starter: Hauptabgangsstelleaufsichtsvorsteher.

We can now understand the position of the German who says he has no time for sport.—Punch.

The Duke Litta on the War

MR. T. FISHER UNWIN has lately received from Venice an interesting letter from the Duke Litta-Visconti-Arese, the author of "The Soul of a Priest" and "Monsignor Villarosa." He writes: "I see that war correspondents are going to be allowed at the front, several from London papers, so we shall soon have more particulars about the actual fighting; for though the laconic despatches of General Cadorna are wonderful examples of modest and truthful writing, they cannot satisfy entirely the layman who knows nothing of strategy and tactics. So I will not say a word about our troops, except this, that a member of the English Military Mission to the front calls them 'stunning,' a high compliment coming from one who certainly knows. What I should like you to realise, so that you let it be known to your many friends, is the admirable spirit which has pervaded the whole nation; all party strife has been radically obliterated, economic disputes of old standing, some of which were exceedingly grave and threatening, have been settled, the élan of charity is magnificent, and the self-sacrifice of all classes admirable."

The latest Pronunciation of Latin

MESSRS. E. MARLBOROUGH & CO. have recently published a second and revised edition of "Latin Self-Taught: By the Natural Method with Phonetic Pronunciation," by John Topham. All who learned what Latin they know, or knew, before the modern beastly German system of pronouncing Latin came into fashion ought to obtain a copy of this admirable little eighteenpenny work, for, as Mr. Topham says:—

"In this manual the 'reformed' pronunciation, which has already been established to so large an extent in our Universities and other educational centres, has been adopted in conjunction with the simple and popular method known as Marlborough's System of Phonetics. . . . Mr. Topham adds: "By this system the student is enabled to speak the language as it was most probably spoken by the ancient Romans themselves." We believe that many of the best British Latinists refuse to accept this new-fangled pronunciation, and repudiate the idea that it is the language of Caesar, Horace and Ovid. Here are a few examples from the Vocabularies showing the way the words are arranged:—

| English. | Latin. | Pronunciation. |
|---------------|----------------|---------------------|
| Billow, wave | fluctus | flook'tōos |
| Cold, -ness | frigus | free'gōoss |
| Constellation | sīdus | see'dōoss |
| Life | vit-a | wee'tah |
| Rainbow | arcus cœlestis | ahr'coos kilais'tis |
| Sky | coel-um | koy'lōom |
| Bird | av-is | ah'wiss |
| Swan | cygn-us | kēug'nōoss |
| Common | vulgār-is | wool'gah'ris |
| Bowels | viscēra | * wees'keh-rah |
| Egg | ōv-um | oh-wōom |
| Food | cibus | kib'ōos |
| Girdle | cingūl-um | keen'goolōom |
| On this side | cis, citra | kiss, keet'rah |
| Round | circum | keer'kōom |
| Bind | vincire | ween-kee'reh |
| Come | venire | wen-ee'reh |
| See | videre | wid-a'reh |
| Conquer | vincere | wen'keh'reh |

So Yoolioos Kaiser did not say veni, vidi, vici, but wen-ee, wee'dee, wee'kee, or something of the kind. It cannot, we think, be said that when our professors went to Germany for their Latin pronunciation it was a case, as they would say, of dahmnoom ahps-kweh een-yoo'riah.*

A word of praise is due for the excellence of the printing and the variety of type used to differentiate the wording. When re-printing, we hope the title will not be printed upside down along the back as at present. That it is upside down will be seen at once by placing a dozen copies flat one on top of another in a pile, an arrangement which book-sellers have to resort to continually with stock on their counters; and also very often in shelves and pigeon-holes, so that an assistant has often to get upon a ladder and stand on his head to read the title, which otherwise he could read from the floor.

War Office and Newspapers for Abroad

THE War Office announces that on and after Saturday, November 6th, newspapers, magazines, books, and other printed publications (other than trade circulars) will not be sent forward to neutral European countries unless posted direct from the office of publishers or newsagents who have obtained permission from the War Office for this purpose.

Publishers and newsagents desirous of obtaining permission to send newspapers, &c., to places on the Continent should communicate with the War Office, stating whether they have existing orders for the dispatch of newspapers, &c., to neutral countries, and the average quantity which they export weekly under these orders.

No information will be given as to the disposal of packets stopped under these regulations.

"Government by Natural Selection" is the title of a book by Hugh Taylor, which Messrs. Methuen are publishing. It was said by Locke that the end of government was the good of mankind; and by Bentham, that its end was the greatest happiness of the greatest number. The author of this essay holds that the end of government, as he would have it, is the greatest sum of national energy of which the people is capable.

The Northern Territory of Australia

Under the title, "An Untamed Territory: The Northern Territory of Australia," Messrs. Macmillan have recently published a bright account by Elsie R. Masson, of Port Darwin and of the outlying parts of the Northern Territory. Probably in no other part of the great Continent of Australia are nature and the natives less changed than in that huge expanse of it called simply Northern Territory—roughly, a thousand miles from North to South, and 700 from East to West. At present, it appears to be little better than a "No-Man's Land," but, undoubtedly, there is a great future before it, when "tourists taking the future railway across the continent, as the quickest route to the old world, via Darwin and the East, will be only perfunctorily interested when they are told they are passing through the great Northern Territory, famous for its pastoral lands, its agriculture, its mining, and openly bored with the old pioneer who insists on forcing on them his reminiscences of the early days of the Northern Territory." This is a glance into the future; of the past and present, aided by numerous and excellent illustrations and maps, Miss Masson gives us a vivid and entertaining picture.

A fine Anthology of English Poetry

FROM MESSRS. T. C. and E. C. JACK.—"A Book of English Poetry," edited by George Beaumont, M.A. Messrs. Jack are famous for giving us great books at small prices. Here, for 3s. 6d. net, we have a family Bible of English poetry, much of it almost as sacred as Holy Writ; 580 pages, containing over 1,000 poems. The publishers "feel confident that 'A Book of English Poetry' will be recognized as an anthology distinguished by fine insight in its compilation, and valuable because it is unusually comprehensive." All the same, we doubt if some of the modern poetry included will stand the strain of time. When Messrs. Jack are printing their next impression, may we beg of them to give an alphabetical index of the poets? It is true there is an index to "first lines," and a list of "Contents," but one of the most useful things about a good collection of poems is that you can, under the name of the poet in the index, at once turn to the specimens of his work. Surely this ought to be doubly the case in a volume which claims to be "double the size of any existing anthology." For instance, we wanted to see what specimens of R. L. Stevenson's work are given. The index to first lines is no use as we do not remember them; we turn to the "Contents," and find that every time you want one poet you have to look down the names of every man jack of them for five hundred years, arranged in no alphabetical order. Life is too short. We hoped to have found that Stevenson had written some verses on the escape of the Calliope out of the hurricane at Samoa; we believe he did write on this subject. The re-arrangement of the "Contents" under the poets' names in alphabetical order would unquestionably double the value of this most valuable collection.

A new Life of Marlborough

MESSRS. CHAPMAN & HALL, LTD. have just published—and the time is surely very appropriate—a new "Life of the Duke of Marlborough," by Edward Thomas. We rather expected an apology in the usual style for adding another life of the great Duke to those in existence, but Mr. Thomas begins fighting without any preliminary skirmish. He has evidently studied his subject carefully. He has a clear style—which reminds one of Carlyle with his aside

MAXIM GORKI

Author of "My Childhood" (Werner Laurie)

comments on his subject matter. He does not flatter Marlborough, and takes a much more judicial view of many of Marlborough's acts and deeds than did the late Sir Garnet Wolseley in his life of the Duke published twenty years ago. Lord Wolseley seems to palliate Churchill's treachery to his King (James) and asks why he was singled out for abuse among all the traitors and conspirators of the time. As Mr. Thomas says, "because he was a soldier. It looks ill for a soldier to lie to his King up to the last moment and then slip away to the hostile army." Exactly. Much of the country now lying under the curse of war was familiar to Marlborough and made famous by his campaigns. This handsome volume with its excellent illustrations would make a welcome present for any officer of our Army at the Front, or anywhere else. Our soldiers are again having experience of war at La Bassée, Neuve Chapelle, &c., and must have dug up relics of Marlborough's day.

Trade Notes and News

MR. CHAS. H. CUMMINS, bookseller, Stroud Green Road, N., was one of six speakers at a trade meeting held at Anderton's Hotel on Thursday. His subject was "Miscellaneous Collecting."

"D." WRITES:—"A bookseller and stationer in the Midlands was called upon by a traveller he had not previously done business with. After failing to get a line, the traveller produced a sample book of 'In Memoriam' cards. 'Ah,' said the stationer, 'yes, I used to get those from Artemus Ward, the kalendar people.' Needless to say, the traveller came away minus two buttons from his weskit."

MESSRS. BAILLIERE, TINDALL & COX beg to advise the trade that all books hitherto published by them at subject rates will in future be treated as net books, and will accordingly be supplied at the same rates as books originally issued net. In the next issue of their catalogue the word "net" will appear after the price of all these books, and no catalogue will be issued by them without an indication to that effect being stamped on the cover. [We wish we could make the same announcement on behalf of all publishers!—ED.]

In our next week's issue will be given the results of Messrs. Williams & Norgate's "Window Display" and "Show Card" Competitions in connection with the "Home University Library," together with illustrations of some of the winning designs.

Letters to the Editor

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our Correspondents.

Von big Mistake!

DEAR SIR,—We have witness in the advertisement we give you for the book "Belgian Art in Exile," a deplorable mistake. In the list of the collaborateurs you put E. Von Haeren instead of E. Verhaeren, the great Belgian poet. I am sure he would not like to be mistaken for a German, and we should be very pleased if you could correct this mistake in your next issue.—Yours truly,

E. J. MAY.

Hon. Sec., Belgian Art in Exile.

Office of Colour,
25, Victoria Street, S.W.

[Sorry if it was our mistake—and in any case.—ED.]

All Net

DEAR SIR,—Most booksellers will have received letters from Messrs. Baillière Tindall & Cox and the Scientific Press, Ltd., to the effect that owing to the increased cost of production all books in their catalogues which have been published at subject rates hitherto will be supplied at the same terms as net books, that is to say, all the books they publish will in future be net to the public. A shrewd and powerful blow this at the ruinous discount system.

Will not other publishers seize the present opportunity to bring to an end a practice that is neither good for them or the booksellers? They may now, at one stroke, meet their own extra costs and enable us to meet ours.

If this happy result is obtained we shall have derived from the War at least one good thing.—Yours faithfully,

HENRY R. FIRMIN.

BOOK-AUCTION RECORDS

Is the Youngest and the Most Vigorous publication of its kind,
 and the greatest help the dealer in books has ever had. Each year it gives 15,000 Records of books,
 from the invention of printing to
 the present day, for 5s. 3d. per quarter, being a lower price than publications which give a much smaller number of Records. Each Part is in one alphabet, and an Index is given with Part 4. Each part has an illustrated article of value to booksellers. Baxter Prints
 and Arundel Prints are included.
 The Dublin, Edinburgh, and Glasgow sales are also recorded. The Clique says:—"It is the best,
 bar none." "It is the most comprehensive, the cheapest, and the most-easily-referred-to work of its kind." "It is the only publication
 which gives the entire catalogue
 of the great Douglas sale of Cruikshankiana." "It is not an idle boast for the publishers to advertise that it is the greatest
 help the dealer in books has ever had." Send a postcard for a part on inspection.
